LEARN TO SHARE

Sharing, too, is a freedom of Democracy. Many of us have not realized this until today, when we have to mobilize all of our resources to be sure to win the war. As a nation, we are free today to choose our way to fight to maintain our individuality, our freedom. We choose to impose upon ourselves regulations that change and restrict our customary way of living. We choose the way, because we know it is best for all of us that we divide fairly the supplies we have among all who need them. It is only fair for all to share and share alike.

The spirit, however, must guide all of our activities, in every walk of life, in every part of the nation, every day. Only in this way, can we be sure of winning the war. Sharing and rationing is something new for most of us. The homemakers of America have a great responsibility to make it work; they have a difficult task, but it is only fair for all to share and share alike.

UNANSWERABLE

Spokesmen for the Northwestern Dairy Conference have asked a few questions which agricultural critics will have a tough time answering: "How can farmers be the cause of inflation when they are selling their farms to go to work in factories?"

"How can farmers be the cause of inflation when dairy herds are being and because of insufficient returns to pay bills and hire labor?"

"How can farmers be the cause of inflation when the farms have been and are continuously to be stripped of all hired labor by the attractiveness of factory jobs?"

"How long would the protected, industrial worker stand if he worked 80 hours per week instead of 48; if he worked for approximately one-half of what he is now getting and then was called insulting names?"

AMERICANS TELL THE TRUTH

Labor today is the most powerful single group in the nation. It can make or break war effort. Labor leaders, by demanding their pound of flesh during the emergency, can bring disastrous inflation which would wipe out a half century of labor gains, together with the savings and standards of living of every man, woman and child in the country.

Is it any wonder that Captain Eddie Rickenbacker has asked labor to make sacrifices along with the rest of us, forego extravagant overtime demands, help to protect the working rights of men returning from war, cease disruptive jurisdictional strife and make-work tactics; are these things too much to ask of labor at a time when the country is fighting for its very life? They most certainly are not.

The public agrees heart and soul with every word that Rickenbacker has uttered. Those who attempt to discredit him as a labor hater, who hurt labor, because the words he has spoken were born when he was very near death. Men near death think and speak the truth. And Americans like to hear the truth, no matter how unpleasant.

HE SPEAKS FROM THE HEART

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker is stating some brutal truths that both labor and political leaders have carefully dodged. Captain Rickenbacker has been saying what the public has been thinking—"Unity must begin by setting an example of unity, equality of sacrifice must honestly mean sacrifice by all, not sacrifice by the many for the financial and political advantage of the few." The efforts of Captain Rickenbacker's critics to undermine public respect for his opinions are as futile as the efforts of children to hold back the tide with their sand dams on the ocean beach.

CRUX OF THE FOOD PROBLEM

The president of a leading farm organization touched the crux of the food problem when he said: "There has been failures on the food front. That failure can be traced to the failure of administrative agencies. Empty store shelves, empty meat counters, disruption of production, and distribution, are the inevitable result. Now these same people express great concern over food shortages. They have not yet worked out with farm organizations a sound program based on the knowledge of farmers and their organizations."

Subsidies and laws will not create food. Only the farmers can do that, and they need manpower, machinery and stability of government policies which will encourage production instead of keeping it in a constant state of confusion.

BY VALENTINE VOX

Don't believe that the Father of our Country George Washington ever dreamed that this U. S. was ever going to get as big as it is, and doubt even if of Honest Abe had an idea that America would build up such a great population.

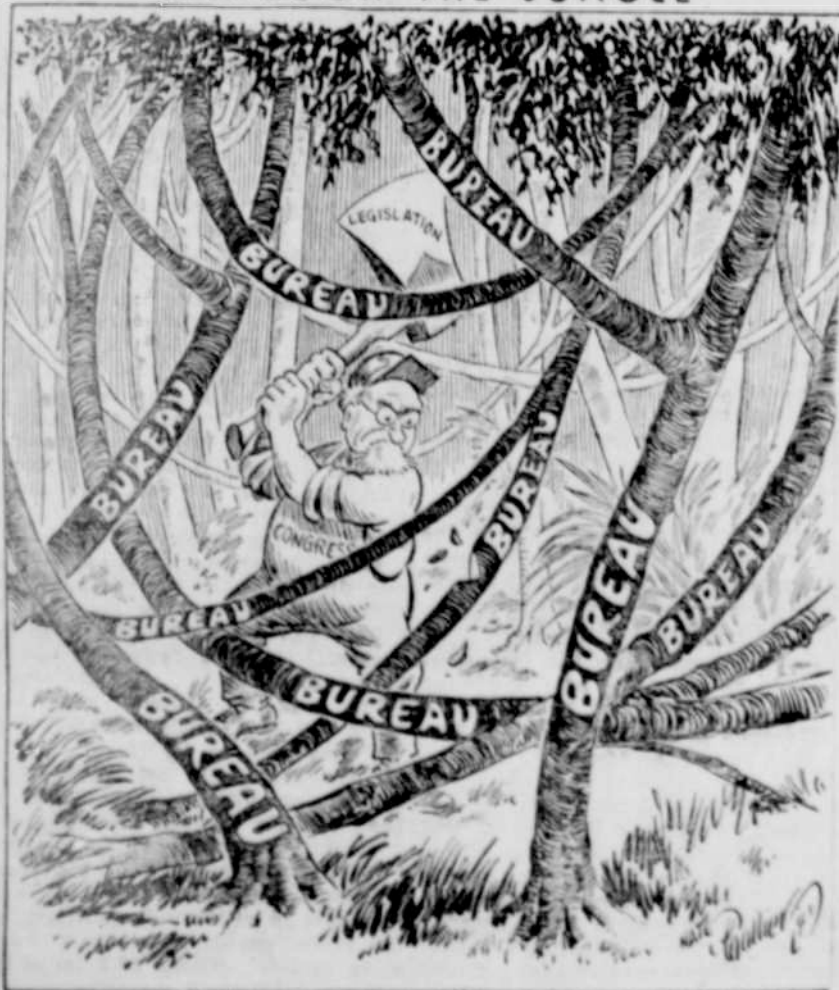

An it isn't only the population that beats me, its money an money figuring of today that beats me, for only forty or fifty years ago millionaires were but few, an now there are about as many paying that amount in taxes as we had people owning that much a few years ago.

Well, what I'm getting at is that this years INCOME for all of the U. S. will amount to a cool one hundred and twenty five BILLION DOLLARS, just how much money that is I'll never tell you, but just read in it—stagger me.

Of course fifteen billion of that will have to go for the payment of taxes, and that still leaves a hundred and ten billion to count for.

From the figures before me there seems but a possibility of more than a scant seventy billion dollars worth of available merchandise for us to buy during the year, and if such is the case there is going to be another forty billion which cannot be spent unless we choose to bid up prices on staples, and as I see it that way lies inflation.—And I don't think any of us want that, so why not loan this money to our government by buying War Bonds and Stamps—that's our only way out, seems to me.

THROUGH THE JUNGLE

Application forms for renewal of B and C gasoline rationing books will be available at service stations and OPA tire inspection stations, the OPA announces.

All C books and all maximum allotment B books which were issued when gasoline rationing started on December 1 expire at midnight February 28.

Holders of these books, who will need about the same amount of gasoline for the next three months as they used since December may obtain these forms from service stations and mail them to their local ration boards, who in turn will mail them the new ration books.

The form will be used by B and C (motorcycles), E and R (non-highway ration bookholders).

Motorists who will need substantially more gasoline than they have been using, must obtain another form, No. 335, from their local boards or from their plant transportation committees and submit them to the boards.

All Quiet On Guadalcanal

Guadalcanal, a relatively unimportant South Sea Island which became the battleground upon which America's first offensive in World War II was staged, appears to be peacefully quiet in the above picture, taken by a Marine Corps combat photographer. Tower at left is for observation purposes.

Cedar Mill School Helps to Buy Jeeps

A jeep costs $900 so the pupils of the Cedar Mill school feel that this week there is another jeep in service since their purchase of bonds and stamps have totaled $968.73. The goal of one thousand dollars for the school year will be reached and passed during the month of March.

Bond buyers during February include Harlene Ratterman, Betty Jean McDaniel, Beverly Larson, Delores Katterman and Dorothy Kurtz.

A sock designed to fit Uncle Sam has been placed in Mrs. Stroeve's room as a container for the discarded hosiery which the youngsters are bringing to school. Help fill it up!

A SWELL GUY

Place—A Macon, Ga., Hotel Lobby. Time—November last. Present—Dr. Harold B. Weir, pastor of a Chillicothe, Ohio, church and now serving as Army Pastor. Chatting with him, a paratrooper who had drifted in and found a seat alongside. Trooper being from the logging camps of the North-West. After some talk, the soldier asked:

"Have a drink?" No, Dr. Weir did not drink and saying that he went on talking to the lad about his father and mother, for whom the boy showed much love.

"Say What is your business?" "I'm pastor of a church up North," Dr. Weir said.

"Well, you're a swell guy. I asked you to take a drink and you did not preach to me about it. I came down here to get drunk to-night and just for that I am going to stay here and talk to you."

They talked until 10:30 and then went out to eat a little snack, when Dr. Weir saw the soldier off for Columbus, seventy-five miles away. An evening later on, the young trooper journeyed back to Macon to tell the pastor his resolve never to touch the "stuff" again.

Now as to beer—The brewers boast that by the sale in the canteens, taprooms now they will add a million new customers a year from the army men.

But in Russia, if a woman offers liquor to a soldier, she must serve six months in prison. And if she gives him a drink, she is shot. So says Valentina Ray Metz, a lecturer from Russia. And David Lloyd George, Prime Minister in the First World War, said England had three enemies, Germany, Austria and liquor. And the worst of these was the drink. By that he closed Great Britain for the duration. Shut out the drinks. He said they could not fight Germany and alcohol both at the same time.

So, which for our men? The cup the brewers offer with its bitter dregs? Or is it the cup of salvation through Christ, whom Dr. Weir and God's people offer Christ died for our sins. Receive Him as Lord and Savior and step ahead into the path of Christian duty. You say you are new in the Christian life and have no ability? Yet, the Bible commands it. Whatever that duty may be, the Bible tells it. Step ahead, having by the new birth come into his family, and God will meet you with Power From On High.

Papers Praised For Aiding Public

San Francisco, March 5—Editors of western newspapers were credited by Harry F. Camp, regional OPA administrator, with making a major contribution to the inauguration of the food point rationing program on the Pacific Coast.

Repeated publication of the consumer declaration form in hundreds of daily and weekly newspapers in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada and Arizona enabled hundreds of thousands of residents to get their ration books with a minimum loss of time, he said.

Our New Responsibility to learn to prepare meals with foods that are available, to use ration stamps to best advantage, to help others see the necessity of rationing—and our responsibility to make it work.
