Radio Stars In Big Rally

July 4th at Shute Park, Hillsboro

Mammoth war bond rally, jam-packed with stage and radio stars, the afternoon of the Fourth of July will be one of the many highlights of the annual firemen-sponsored "Happy Days" celebration in Hillsboro.

The huge rally, which is scheduled from 4 to 6 p. m., next Tuesday and which is expected to provide the stimulus to put Washington county "over the top" on its $2,000,000 fifth war loan quota was arranged this week by Wilbur Carl, war bond director for the metropolitan district.

Feature speaker of the rally will be Com. M. H. McCoy of the U. S. navy, one of the few survivors of the infamous "Bataan March of Death." Com. McCoy will tell of his experiences and will come to Hillsboro after a ship launching in Portland. Also hope to obtain some members of Eddie Cantor show in Portland Tuesday.

A navy blimp from the Tillamook base will fly low over the crowd and a detachment of 50 men and 30 pieces of army equipment from Camp Adair will be in the Fourth of July parade and on display at the park.

Wonderful Gifts Planned
Highlights of the rally will be the giving away of a $240 pre-war davenport and chair set to a bond purchaser at the close of the program. The set was donated by Pfc. Ned Seiberts, proprietor of the Beaverton Furniture store and now with a combat unit of the army. Pfc. Seiberts has a wife and two youngsters living at Beaverton and has donated the furniture to help raise money to win the war so he can get back to his business. Auction for war bonds of valuable merchandise contributed by local merchants is also scheduled.

Miss Jean Robbins of Aloha was selected "Miss Democracy" for the Happy Day celebration at Hillsboro. Miss Robbins is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Vineyard of Aloha, and was sponsored by Aloha Grange. She will be attended by four girls, one of whom is Miss Helen O'Halloran of Tigard.

Bond Sale At Half-Way Mark

Halfway mark in the fifth war loan drive Saturday night found the county with a shade over half of its $2,000,000 quota raised according to figures released by H. L. MacKenzie and W. C. Christensen, co-chairmen of the county war finance committee. They urged Victory volunteers to speed the canvass of their territories, warning that the last half of the quota is always the hardest to raise.

Beaverton district has already sold $152,473.50 worth of bonds or 49% of its quota of $308,000, leaving a balance of $155,526.50 to be raised. Tigard area has sold $68,016 worth of bonds, 29% of its quota of $222,000, worth of bonds, leaving $153,984 to be sold. Totals for drive through Saturday night, June 24.

Bonds sold during the Fourth of July rally will be divided pro rata with each school district in the county in the ratio that the quota of the area bears to the county goal Christensen explained. This is being done because the purchasers will be residents from all parts of the county.

The West Slope and Benz district have doubled their quota of bonds, and encouraging reports are in from other districts.

Farmers are Urged to Order Arsenical Insecticide

Farmers are urged to put in their orders early for arsenical insecticides according to word received from the War Production Board by Palmer S. Torvond, county agent. Last minute orders may result in the farmers not being able to obtain the material when it is needed. Uncertain transportation facilities, man power shortage, and container shortages are the threats to last minute orders. Farmers are advised by the WPE that enough arsenical insecticides should be available to meet the need. In cases of extreme emergency it may be possible to get a certain amount of material on shorter notice. Farmers should place their orders with their regular dealers at least a month before the material is to be used.

Warning To Employers

Babson Says Some Are Shortsighted

New York City June 30—During the past few weeks I have directed this column to various groups of people, —colored workers, white workers, union labor, parents and investors. Permit me this week to give certain employers some good advice. This especially applies to the older men. There are many young forward-looking employers, but the stage has been stolen by the "die-hards."

Installment Sales
As a part of my education, I attend group meetings of various kinds, —church, social, scientific, labor and employers. All these groups—with the exception of the latter—have a definite constructive legislative program to make a better nation. We employers, however, present little constructive legislation. We have asked only for "lower taxes and to be let alone." I am sure this is a mistake.

Some economists recently discussed whether installment sales—which have temporarily been restricted under Presidential Orders during the War,—should be regulated after peace comes. They claim that to stabilize employment, installment purchases should be encouraged during depressions but retarded during booms. This would be sound practice; but what do most employers say? They reply, "No! The government should let us alone to handle our own credits as we damn please."

Accident Compensation
Labor has made an appeal for much more extensive accident compensation laws through a government insurance company. The argument is that employers will hesitate to employ returning soldiers who may have any defect of eyesight, hearing, lameness or otherwise, believing that such persons are more liable to accidents. To encourage employers to employ such, labor leaders urge an extension of industrial insurance. Do most employers agree? No! They insist that the government should "keep hands off"; while their insurance friends yell "Communism!" Is such an attitude by manufacturers and bankers wise?

Regulating Inventories
Credit men have suggested that legislation be enacted whereby inventories would be regulated in some way. One reason for unemployment is because stocks of raw materials and merchandise at times become so large that manufacturers and merchants suddenly stop buying. These credit men claim that normal inventories tend to keep employment normal. But here again, too many employers say, "No!" They demand "free enterprise," freedom to inflate or deflate and freedom to speculate or to hoard. Too many of us want freedom for ourselves without thinking of the other fellow's welfare.

Taxing Unused "Depreciation"
Accountants believe that some regulation should exist between depreciation, replacements and corporation taxes. They say that during a depression employers continue to charge vast sums to depreciation to save taxes, but they do not spend the money. Hence, this policy makes the depression so much worse. They believe that during a depression, when depreciation money is not spent
