A Visitor to the Hideout

Praises Volunteers

McDannell Brown, district OPA director, paid tribute Saturday to hundreds of volunteers throughout Oregon who contributed many thousands of hours during the past few weeks to helping local OPA boards get the new "A" gasoline books in the mails to waiting motorists.

"This was a herculean task," Brown declared, "and the OPA is once more indebted to the loyal cooperation of volunteers who unselfishly offered their services."

Contributing valuable man-hours were hundreds of housewives, business men and women, and representatives of many civic and fraternal groups.

Each day from Monday through Friday, the 200 American Red Cross "Army Moms" of Greensboro, N. C., staff nine sewing rooms scattered throughout the post area of Basic Training Center No. 10, Army Air Forces technical training command, doing alterations and repairs for the GI's.
