Has Seen Much Action

Cpl. John R. Wreiser, route 2, Beaverton, mechanic, is now with the Fifth Army, Italy and is fighting in the 894th Tank Destroyer Battalion, recently advancing north of Pisa and along the approaches to the Gothic Line in Italy.

Fighting mainly against German infantry, the 894th had by mid-September destroyed 17 enemy tanks, many self-propelled guns, half-tracks, trucks, machineguns and mortar nests and enemy personnel. Of 21 German tanks encountered between the capture of Rome and mid-September, the unit destroyed nine and drove back the others.

It has been in action continuously except for a two-week rest period, since it first entered action on the Fifth Army front in Italy last December 17 in the Mignano sector. Its number of days in combat had reached 330 by mid-September, and 20 per cent of its personnel had become casualties in the Italian campaign alone.

The 894th started advance training Aug. 17, 1942, in England, began serving in North Africa the following January 17 and had been in combat 79 days when the Tunisian campaign closed, having fought at Kasserine Pass, Tebessa, Sebeitia, El Guettar, Sedjenane and Bizerte.

The 894th arrived in Italy last October 28, fought in the mountains of Mignano as artillery and was drawn out of the line January 9 for water-proofing in preparation for the beachhead operation at Anzio. The tank destroyers rolled onto the beachhead January 26 and withstood heavy counterattacks in February, sustaining British troops at Carocetto, providing the functions of tanks, mobile pillboxes, etc., and reconnaissance troops. Several TD crews knocked out Mark IV and Mark VI tanks at ranges of no more than 50 yards. One enemy thrust of 15 tanks was neutralized at a distance of 700 yards. The 894th maintained heavy gunfire across the beachhead for four months.

The tank destroyers moved rapidly north of Rome, through Civitavecchia, Tarquinia and Monte Alto. They moved into the line at Rirabellia June 28 in support of French elements of Fifth Army and fought through Siena, Poggibonsi, San Gimignano, Certaldo and up the hills to Castelfiorentino and the Aron River.

St. Mary's of the Valley

At a recent meeting the freshman class elected the following officers: Josephine Anzalone, president; Donna Kaufman, vice-president; Elsie Sommer, secretary-treasurer.

On October 17, the sodalists honored Our Lady by a living rosary. The students formed the rosary in the convent chapel and proceeded to the grotto of the Immaculate Conception, singing hymns enroute. At the shrine, a rosary for peace was recited.

In anticipation of Mission Sunday, Oct. 22, the sodality chose Thursday as "Mission" Day. The freshmen conducted a sale of mission tags; the sophomores sold refreshments just before a program sponsored by the juniors. After lively entertainment, the senior class found owners for the stuffed animals which they had made. The funds obtained will augment the library used in religious vacation schools conducted by the Sisters of St. Mary.

Margaret Jane Dooher '44, Eileen Einarson, and Betty Jo Murphy '41 were recent campus guests.

Honor students for the first six weeks' period are: First Honors, Josephine Anzalone; Second Honors, Freda Quinter, Teresa Roos, Margaret Hainek, Jane Rivers, Rosemary Roos, and Mary Ann Sohier; Third Honors: Luanne Fitzpatrick, Phyllis Prier, Geraldine Shaver, Betty Vanderzanden, Hermie Brudert, Margery Campbell, Vera Berning, Betty Lou Dugan, Olive Ethell, Telma Farrugia, Bernice Hertel, Cora Packard, Catherine Anzalone, Inez Leis, and Lucille Schnell.

Don't Send Cash for Gifts To Men Overseas

Persons who missed the October deadline for mailing Christmas packages overseas and who plan to send a belated gift of money to Army and Navy personnel should send the money via postal money order, the Army and Navy Post Offices emphasized. At such places where service men and women are stationed, it was pointed out, there is a local prohibition against the importation of U. S. currency and cash could not be used if received.

Late gift articles can also be sent Army personnel, without a written request from the service man, if they weigh less than eight ounces. However, the Army post office officials say there may be no assurance of their receipt by the addressee before December 25.

Quits Job For Better

Levi quit his fat job in the toll office the day Christ—The Son of Man—stepped up with Follow Me.

And why should Levi take up with one so poor as the Son of Man? Foxes have dens and the birds of the air have nests but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head. Surely Christ had no riches to offer to Levi. Why then did Levi follow Christ? And why have millions of others since that hour, left all to follow Him? Why at the cost of poverty, prison cell, stoning and death, do men leave all to follow Christ?

So Levi left all and out of it we have the Gospel as by Matthews—Levi's other name—Matthew. And Matthew in his Gospel is keen on records. Note that he says that how this and that took place with Christ, even as the prophets of old foretold. To search the records was his God-given talent.

As of old, Christ still calls. Follow Him to the cross of Calvary. Look up and see Him in death as He pays in grief and anguish for your unholy life. Then follow on as they lay Him in the tomb lay that lay Him away as though He were common flesh. But up from the grave of God and pour out blessings on the sons of men.

In that He died, He died to put away our sins. In that He liveth, He liveth to glorify God. As He calls let us also follow on. As we yield our talent over to Him, He pours out blessings. Through our yielded selves Christ blesses this poor world grown shabby through sin.

What talent do you offer Him? Is it to sweep the floor to the glory of God and do the housework? Or to patch the fences and handle the dairy herds? Maybe to teach school or work in an office—or at a drill press out in the plant. Is it to call the youngsters to a Week Day Bible School? Schools now spreading out from America. Or are you one of the two millions of Sunday School officers and teachers? Or is it to break the bread of life from the pulpit?

It is God who creates within us the desire to do his gracious will and who gives the power. Yield your talent, glorify him and earn eternal reward.

THE SWORDLESS CHRIST

Too long have pruning hooks and plows Been beaten into sword and shell And manhood's fair and fruitful boughs Been faggots for the flames of hell. Too long has hate and wrath conspired Till truth was scourged and sacrificed Too long we wait the day desired The Day of Peace: the Swordless Christ!
