plumbing and glass crowbars. Guaranteed goods do not leap from the hat. They cost sweat, tears—and time!

Few customers appreciate the prolonged effort which conscientious fabricators must devote to the development of any wholly new article. Between the drawing-board and the production line stretch long years of heartbreaking struggle. Testing in actual use imposes necessary delay. Finally, the all-important details of servicing must be perfected. All this and more is needed to assure lasting customer satisfaction.

How to Speed Reconversion Patriotic women and men will have an opportunity to render a signal service to national prosperity. They can use their influence and their purchasing power to encourage manufacturers to resume, at the earliest permissible moment, their output of proven products. Let these articles be up-to-date of course—and of top grade—but instead of weird dreams, give us basically normal items. These can be bought under a warranty, instead of a warning. Leave futurism to the future. Goods already developed can be produced promptly. Quality is a must. Speed is the essence. So let's remember old friends.

Only rapid reconversion from war work to peace work will ease the employment problem caused by returning service men and released war workers. A jobless crisis may explode in our faces if industry dallies with "electronic adventures" instead of rushing out standard items of electrical equipment. The automobile industry merits our support in its promise to get busy on regulation models before dabbling in rear-engined, tear-drop, picture cars. Reputable distributors in all lines will not jeopardize your welfare with half-baked experimental designs—merchandise booby-traps.

Standard Goods vs Comic Strips
Besides providing immediate jobs for veterans and ex-war workers, only a fast reconversion will help to swell the volume of goods and thus lessen inflationary perils. The silent menace of decayed money still lurks and looms. Delayed buying can disrupt a nation's economy, life and property as can robot planes and flying bombs. Price ceilings and ration stamps are only palliatives. The basic cure for inflation is to expand immediately production power to match buying power.

People are all steamed up over jet propulsion, radar, and other excitements. Do we want service men returning with the notion that ordinary cars, present-day refrigerators and humdrum vacuum cleaners are out-of-date? Will young salesmen aspire to sell only technicolored television sets, "wireless" kitchens, and rocket trips to the moon? Surely we all need to knock out of our heads the joke-goods of the comic strips and radio comedies—and keep first things first. A basic principle of progress is to use the foundations already constructed.

the war trains will roll
—as usual

Out on the line, December 25 will be as busy as any other day on the Southern Pacific. It won't be much of a holiday for our men at the front, either. The enemy doesn't stop shooting just because it's Christmas.

This Christmas Day and night we shall keep the war trains rolling, just as we have kept them rolling every day and night since Pearl Harbor.

To all the travelers and shippers we served this year—our heartfelt thanks for your sympathetic understanding of our problems, and the cheerful way you accepted the inconvenience of wartime transportation.

In sending you the Season's Greetings, we join with you in praying that next Christmas will be celebrated in a world of peace.

Civilians! To avoid disappointment please don't plan a holiday trip on Southern Pacific trains. Let a man in uniform go instead
