Keep It Flying

Members of the Metzger community organizations are planning a very worthwhile project—a living memorial in honor of the boys and girls who have served their country. It is planned to establish this memorial in Metzger Park, making improvements so as to serve social and educational needs of the people of the community. This is a wonderful idea and we all wait with interest as their plans develop.

Used Car Ceiling Cut July 1

The OPA has announced that ceiling prices for used passenger cars will be reduced July 1. At the same time there will be a 4 per cent reduction in charges allowed for extra equipment on used cars, such as heaters and radios.

Must Endorse Coupons

Canning sugar coupons must be endorsed properly with name and ration book No. 4 serial numbers when consumers present them to grocers to get sugar. If the canning sugar coupons are not endorsed they will be debited against the store's sugar account.

In 1944, Americans in intercity transportation traveled more than 100,000,000,000 passenger-miles. Commercial freight moved about 1,200,000,000,000 ton-miles.

Lewis And Clark

The Great American Odyssey

A Condensed Story of the Historic Expedition of 1804-6

Copyright 1945 by Walter Menachem

CHAPTER I

(Continued from last week) In a secret message to Congress, January 18, 1803, Jefferson, now President of the United States, urged that trade with the western Indians be cultivated and that an expedition be sent to explore the country as far as the mouth of the Columbia River on the Pacific slope. Congress received this idea favorably and voted the sum of $2,500 for the expedition. Today this sum seems insignificant for the commonest kind of an investigation would cost many times that much. But, we must remember that those were not the days of high prices and large incomes. Most of the men served as soldiers for small pay, and all of them "lived off the country" as they went along. They carried some provisions, of course, but the main part of their living came from the wild game they encountered on the way.

It was necessary that the real purpose of the expedition be kept a secret because the country lying between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains was held by Spain and was known as Louisiana. If a foreign power should invade this territory without permission, it would be considered an unfriendly act and might result in war. But, before the expedition was equipped and ready to start, Louisiana was purchased from France, which had secured possession from Spain, and secrecy was no longer necessary.

The Low Down From Hickory Grove

Let us digress for a short time before we send Lewis and Clark on their memorable expedition, to relate briefly the highlights of that very important transaction, the Louisiana Purchase.

The history of old Louisiana reads like a chapter from a book of fiction. Men, women and children died in wrestling it from the Indians and fighting the fevers which infested its lower regions. Old World intrigue swayed its destinies and its government under French, Spanish and American rule offers a picture at once alluring and fascinating.

The Low Down From Hickory Grove

I see where Mr. Jackson, our top law man in France, is getting ready to open court to see if Germany is guilty of something, and he says up to now, no plan of going ahead has been agreed upon between the Allies.

Our fighters waded in and win wars—and then the cutaway-coat boys dilly-dally. By the time a lot of Germans ever come to trial, the sob-artists will be on deck with bouquets for the prisoners and we can turn half of 'em loose to start planning the next war, which we will be expected to get into—and quell.

We need to get off the dime and clamp down on the guilty, and then start trimming Germany down to controllable size. Give Denmark and Belgium and all the little bordering states a digestable slice of Hunland, and they will have space and elbow room to keep what is left of Germany, at arm's length.

But back to the bloody and guilty—everybody thought that they fixed that up at the Yalta meetin', or party, or whatever it was but she looks now like they musta talked about something else—like maybe what the catcher whispered to the pitcher—and then the batter hit the ball over the left field fence.

Yours with the low down
