Osterloh was leader of a platoon making an attack on enemy positions on Horseshoe Ridge, north of Cebu City. During the final phase of the attack the enemy laid down a terrific 90mm mortar barrage covering the entire company front with devastating effect. Fifteen men were wounded in the initial barrage and lay exposed on the ridge. The enemy then directed withering machine gun and rifle fire on the area.

Lt. Osterloh went forward from his position of cover to supervise the evacuation of the wounded making several trips across seventy-five yards of fire swept ground. He was himself wounded but continued with his efforts until all of the wounded men were brought to a safe place.

Pioneers Ate Wild Honey

Back in the "Eighties" when the Beaverton country was sparsely settled and surrounded by heavy forests of fir and pine there were many wild bees in the woods, an old timer in this vicinity, Billy King, had an eagle-eye in spotting bee trees and harvested along in September gallons of strained honey gathered from the Coast Range mountains down to the nearby hills and many of the old pioneers had firewaxed honey on their hot cakes for breakfast.

McClelland, a seaman, first class, joined the crew of this destroyer in May, 1944, and saw his first action in the invasion of Saipan. Since then, his battle record shows participation in Naval engagements and landings at Guam, Tinian, Anguar, Peleliu, Layte, Mindoro and Luzon. ## Co-Operatives Experiments

Babson Discusses New Opportunities

Gloucester, Mass., Sept. 21—I recently walked by Lord & Taylor's beautiful Fifth Avenue show windows. Behold, I saw an elaborate exhibit of Folly Cove Designs. When a boy here in Gloucester I had a girl friend at a place on Cape Ann known as Folly Cove, when I went down there my father used to call it "Rogers Folly." As a I had never since heard of any other Folly Cove, I stopped at Lord & Taylor's and examined the goods. Sure enough! They were from my own Folly Cove of Gloucester. Furthermore, I was again proud of this Cove. The goods were as pretty as the girl I used to go with.

Better Living for Less Money So, at my first opportunity I hiked back to my old home at Gloucester where I am writing this column for my 400 friendly newspapers. Well, here is the remarkable story—A very intelligent girl named Virginia Lee Burton—a graduate of the Boston Art Museum, married a successful sculptor named George Demetrios. (By the way, if any "Mass. Tech." men read this story please note she is the daughter of our beloved Dean Burton and the sister of Senator Burton of Ohio). Well, although this couple could afford to live in any apartment of any city, they choose to live as God intended they should live. Hence, they bought a little farm here at Folly Cove and are living better for less money.

After the honeymoon was over and George and Virginia had started two fine boys on their way, they decided to try a truly co-operative experiment in art. They felt that many of the so-called "co-operative" enterprises are just a form of big business sailing under false colors. So this is what they did. They called together all their married neighbors, wives of farmers, fishermen, stonecutters and others. These were mothers who were doing their own housework and taking care of their own children. Hence, the first requirement was that work must be done at home.

The Joy of Creating Something The second requirement was that to hold these mother's interest they must be encouraged to use their heads as well as their hands. Hence, Virginia had them actually design and create something themselves. Yet, all of the townspeople—except Dorothy Norton and Louise Kenyon—thought this was impossible. Only these two believed that untrained people could design original patterns (and they must be absolutely original) for which great Fifth Avenue stores would scramble.

Well, these women have no company or organization. They call Mrs. Demetrios, "President"; while all the others are "Vice Presidents." They also elect a jury of five to settle any disputes which may arise. Each woman makes and owns her own designs; she carves the blocks (out of battleship linoleum); mixes the ink and rolls it on the blocks. Then the blocks are put over the cloth laid upon the floor and stamped; yes literally stamped upon because a woman must jump up and down on her block to make a good print. They began by making only table doilies scarfs, etc.; but now they make yard-goods for dresses, curtains and exquisite wallpaper.

Eliminating Overhead But there is one more feature which should be noted. It usually costs more to sell goods than to make them; but not so at Folly Cove. The overhead advertising and sales expense of these women amount to only 1 1/2%. Hence, each woman gets 98 1/2% cents of every dollar which the retail stores pay for the goods. These women certainly are teaching manufacturers something with distribution. This lesson alone entitles this story to be in this weekly financial column. But most important of all, this is proof that nothing succeeds like true co-operation. Here all have the same powers, vote opportunities and yet the income of each is based upon her own individual efforts. Questions: Why cannot this co-operative principle be applied to many other products? May there not be a suggestion here for returning veterans who want to be both independent and useful.
