Bloody Skull Dance

Around the pyramid of human skulls all bloody, dances the chief of the tribe. He wears a belt of human heads, also bloody and he dances and prances and circles as is the way of the head hunters in this part of Africa. Then steps up the English M. D., Sir Alexander Clark, to speak nine powerful words into the chiefs ear—"God had a Son who died for your sins." That was all and the affair went on.

Later, the chief came to Dr. Clark asking to know more about God's Son who died for his sins. They spent many moons together, as Sir Alexander told it and the chief asked for baptism. This was refused and the man went away to return later saying he had been back where he used to hunt heads and now he went to win souls. He showed his necklace with many knots and each knot stood for a soul won. And he had two of the converts with him. So the chief came into baptism and that part of Africa into peace. And it all began with the nine powerful words—"God had a Son who died for your sins."

When your heart grows heavy repeat them over and over—"God had a Son who died for my sins." Over and over until you can say—I came to Jesus as I was, weary and worn and sad. I found in Him a resting place and He has made me glad.
