Sylvan School Holds Annual Meeting

The annual board meeting of the Sylvan School was held Monday evening, June 17th. Louise Grondahl was elected the new school board member. Mrs. Grondahl formerly taught home economics at the University of Washington in Seattle, Washington and is well versed in school matters.
Spencer Hinsdale, the chairman of the board is serving his third year on the board and John Hooper, the other member, is serving his second year.
A much needed bond issue was voted for $60,000 to build a four room addition to the present school.
Since the school population has increased over 70 per cent in the last five years and since no additional space has been made, the school has become greatly overcrowded.
Health regulations require 300 cubic feet of air for each school child and Sylvan school during the last year has had less than 150 cubic feet per child. The principal's office, of necessity, has been used for the eighth grade class room and has been much too small.
A basement room, not intended for such use, has had to be used as a classroom and in order to heat this room, the rooms above had to be greatly overheated. Also, the sanitary equipment is extremely inadequate. There is no play space other than the gymnasium, which is much too small to accommodate the entire school population on rainy days.
These conditions can now be remedied since the bond issue has been approved.
Salary increases for the teachers were also passed.

GAME NEWS

Two lake and stream survey crews are being placed in the field this month by the Oregon State Game Commission. One four-man crew will be assigned to make a survey of the major coastal streams south of the Columbia River to the California line. Their work will include study of fish populations, looking for barriers to fish migrations and making recommendations for stream improvements. Some of the more important coastal lakes also will receive attention.
The second crew will work on the major problem lakes in the Cascade Range and make initial surveys on a number of lakes not covered in previous years. The men will also engage in improvement work where trash fish are a problem.
With the setting of all the pheasant eggs needed for this year's production at the four game Commission game farms, approximately 6,500 adult birds have been released in both western and eastern Oregon. The goal for this year's total production of pheasants has been set for 60,000.
