Wash. County Reports No Serious Farm Accidents

The present week has been designated as National Farm Safety Week in order to stress the importance of safety precautions as a means of cutting down and eliminating accidents to farm workers, according to Roy L. Davidson, Farm Labor Assistant.

Washington County has not experienced any serious accidents to farm workers since 1944 when a girl berry picker was severely injured in a truck collision. Even minor accidents resulting from workers getting on and off vehicles in motion, and similar acts of carelessness are on the decline. However, now accidents have been eliminated and there is still opportunity to improve farm working conditions. The State Industrial Accident Commission has issued a safety code governing the transportation of farm workers which stresses all safety precautions which must be complied with in transporting the workers to and from the farm. It is pointed out that most accidents occur while the workers are being transported, although some accidents are the result of carelessness in the field or orchard.

The Farm Labor Office at Hillsboro has on hand a supply of the Safety Code which governs all phases of transportation giving the requirements relative to vehicles, drivers, and workers while in transit. Any farmer may have a copy of this Safety Code by contacting the Farm Labor Office.

Washington County's good record in cutting down on the accident toll is attributed to the cooperation of farmers in equipping their traveling vehicles with safety measures and abiding by the requirements in the Safety Code. Such things as end gates and side boards have eliminated the possibility of youngsters falling or jumping from trucks while in motion. However, some trucks not properly equipped have been observed hauling berry pickers, and it cannot be too strongly stressed that such trucks should be equipped to comply with the Safety Code.

The Farm Labor service urges all farmers to continue to exercise every precaution to protect their workers. One serious accident to a youthful farm worker can result in a serious hindrance to the recruitment of youth workers.

The Low Down From Hickory Grove

Every time I read about this Mr. Byrd—the Virginia Senator—I feel like picking up my pencil and sayin' to him, "pardon, more power to you." He is one of my favorite senators. That old "Sore-back" knows what ails this country. He knows what we gotta do if we are to keep 2 cars in every garage versus a goat in the woodshed, like in Europe. And the gent has perseverance. Like a good coon dog, when he gets the scent, he stays. He sees an excess of 2 million on the Govt. pay roll, and costing the citizens around 5 million bucks pet annum—not including the hotel bills, free gas, airplane trips, etc.

And the latest on Mr. Byrd is where the CIO puts him on the purge list, but which Mr. Byrd says, it is his greatest compliment, and badge of honor. There is some hombre—he is an old-south democrat. He is entitled to a nice letter from all kinds of citizens—union or rebel, or native son. And while talking about Virginia, that Gov. Tuck there, he could have a pat on the back too—he
