St. Mary's Academy Holds Traditional Exercises June 1

Class Day activities opened Thursday, May 29, with the celebration of the Eccalacure Mass by the Reverend Peter Sanguinetti, O. P., who also gave the occasional sermon. Afterwards the graduation students of both the high school and the elementary departments were breakfast guests of the faculty.

At the general assembly of students at 11 o'clock, Class '47 was paid special farewell honors. Margery Campbell, student body president was salutatorian, Helen Maschino, valedictorian. At the same time, awards were presented to Elizabeth Ercog and Patricia Kimberley for religion. Margery Campbell and Jean Ann Barron for general excellence, Maureen Ryan and Clota Kouscher for outstanding progress. Basketball honors were conferred upon Robert Smith, Captain, Mary Alice Coughlan, Helen Maschino, Phyllis Prier, Patricia Rigert, Geraldine Shaver and Geraldine Snipes. In the music department awards were earned by Shirlee Anderson and Judy Maginnis.

Sunday afternoon, June 1, the lovely chapel of St. Mary's of the Valley was the scene of the traditional commencement exercises of the school.

The graduates marched into chapel, filled with relatives and friends, while the organist played "Pomp and Circumstances". After the hymn, "Praise Ye the Lord" (Briggs) by the student choir, the Reverend Stephen Breitenstein of St. Stephen's, Portland, addressed the graduating classes.

The Reverend E. G. McMullen, O. P. chaplain, presented diplomas to the following high school graduates: Geraldine Bernards and Pauline Elizabeth Soher of Verboort, Marjorie Ann Edwards and Margaret Helen Maschino of Portland, Yvonne Betty Bernards and Margery Ann Campbell of Seattle and to the eighth grade graduates: Shirlee Anderson, Jean Ann Baorin, Joyce Berg, Carmen Couch, Donna Jean Davison, Eleanor Funke, Patricia Harding, Barbara Kenyon, Clota Keuscher, Patricia Kimberley.

Ann Koch, Sharon Lange, Patricia Ledwith, Mary Louise Roberts, Patricia Ryan, Patricia Smith, Nancy Lee Urban, Joan Van Domelen and Gwendolyn Van Slyke. After the singing of Witt-Rossini's "Ave Maria" Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was given by the Reverend McMullen, assisted by Fathers S. Breitenstein and John Goodrich of St. Mary's, Huber. The exercises appropriately concluded with "Holy God We Praise Thy Name."

Whooping Cough

Whooping cough causes more deaths in children under five years of age than measles, diphtheria and scarlet fever combined. Dangerous in itself, the aftermath may be even more serious. Bronchitis, bronchopneumonia, pleurisy, and pulmonary tuberculosis may follow unless the child is carefully guarded.

Epidemics of whooping cough occur most frequently in winter and early spring. Children from one to ten are most likely to catch the highly infectious disease, although babies and older people often have very serious and even fatal attacks. The great danger lies in the fact that the early symptoms can easily be mistaken for a simple cold. The child may have a runny nose, a dry cough and only slight fever. Yet in this early stage whooping cough is most infectious. A child with these symptoms should be kept at home and watched closely. If the cold does not soon clear up, a doctor should be consulted. The characteristic whoop never appears are the ones which spread the disease.

In a typical case, the cough will become more intense after a week or ten days. The child does not draw breath between a series of short coughs. He chokes over the thick sputum or phlegm and then draws in the breath deeply making the whoop. Attacks occur on an average of 20 times a day, most often at night. Paroxysms of sneezing may take the place of coughing.

The child often vomits at the end of a fit of coughing. This may happen so often that he does not get enough food and becomes emaciated. It is well to give food in small amounts immediately after the attack, other serious complications that may occur are hemorrhages and convulsions. These occasionally are so severe that they cause sudden death. The doctor will prescribe the proper treatment or medicines. Fresh air day and night is important, as the paroxysms get worse in a close, dusty or too cold atmosphere. The child should be kept in bed if the coughing is severe or if there is fever.

After three or four weeks the attacks become lighter and stop. A case of ordinary severity lasts usually about six weeks. However, the cough sometimes persists for months and the child remains weak and delicate. It is in this period that he should be watched with greatest care because of the danger of chest complications due to weakened resistance. Bronchopneumonia may develop suddenly. Exposure to tuberculosis germs may result in a serious, even quickly fatal attack of that disease. Immunization is the best protection against whooping cough. If given at least three months before exposure, the vaccine will usually prevent the disease in 85 per cent of children. In others who are vaccinated, the attack will be much less severe. Doctors advise that the vaccine be given to all children between four months and three years of age.
