Advance Info By Weather Report On Fire Status

A special logger's fire weather report will be broadcast six days a week, except Sunday, from radio station KOAC at 8:45 p. m. (P.D.T.), according to Albert Wiesendanger, executive secretary of Keep Oregon Green association. This new innovation in widespread dissemination of fire weather information will forecast weather data a full day in advance so that logging operators can anticipate working conditions to insure maximum safety. The forecasts will be made up by Owen Cramer, in charge of the U. S. weather bureau's fire weather unit, and will cover all of western and central Oregon. Operators will get daily information through this medium on humidity, wind velocity, precipitation and other weather elements. As near as possible weather data will be localized to specific areas. This is a cooperative project financed and sponsored by Keep Oregon Green association, radio station KOAC and the U. S. weather bureau. Wiesendanger pointed out. Wave length of KOAC is 550.
