Beaverton 3rd in Camp Fire Groups

By Mrs. L. F. Monahan

With more than 600 girls actively participating in the programs of over 55 groups, Washington county Camp Fire Girls are in the beginning phases of activity for another year, guided in the effort by some 174 adults who serve as leaders, sponsors and council members.

In the county, Hillsboro leads in the number of Camp Fire groups, with eighteen active and eight in the process of organization. Forest Grove comes second, with 14 active and two more underway. Beaverton with 11 active groups and two being formed, is third.

Leaders of groups in the Beaverton area include Mrs. Roy Anderson (West Slope), Mrs. H. J. Gregory, Mrs. R. C. Cavens, Mrs. D. S. Harwood, Mrs. W. L. Johanningmeier, Mrs. Philip Mead, Mrs. G. V. Palmrose, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Scott Horney, Mrs. L. W. Strayer, Mrs. R. S. Payne and Mrs. J. Altenhoffen.

Reedville has one Camp Fire group, under leadership of Mrs. James Becker and sponsored by the Reedville P.T.A. Tigard's one group is sponsored by the Evangelical Ladies Aid.

The Camp Fire movement started in 1911 when renowned educator Luther Halsey Gulick and his wife set the organization's program as an answer to the growing demand for constructive leisure time activities of girls. Aiming at the development of individual abilities as well as fostering cooperative spirit, the group has attracted over 2 million girls, since its inception.

National slogan, this year, is "Be Friendly, Make Friends". Under this impetus, the girls of the nation will fill red net stockings with sweets and other small items and send them to persons in Europe, who will in turn distribute them as gifts at Christmas time.

Locally, last year, the county Camp Fire groups made tray favors for hospitals and institutions, adopted "Grandmothers" from the Old Folks Home, care for children at Sunday School nurseries and made cotton balls for public health officers' use.

The Camp Fire Girls and the Boy Scouts will soon launch a joint campaign to raise funds for their organizations, to make possible a continuation of their good work.
