

City Ponders Plans to Pay Sewer Costs

ORDINANCE PASSES; PROVIDES SETTING UP OF DISTRICTS

In a study of various plans by which the costs of Beaverton's impending sewer costs will be paid, the City Council at last Monday's meeting heard sanitary engineer Carl Green of Cunningham and Associates, review the experience of Junction City, whose sanitary system will compare in size to about 3/4 of the proposed Beaverton plant.

Earlier, the council had passed Ordinance 263, which defines procedures for establishment of sewer districts and the construction of a collection system. The new measure also provides for methods of assessment and for condemnation of private property, under state law, wherever needed in the system construction.

In Junction City, minimum service charge for private users is 133% of the water bills, with a minimum of $2.00 per month. In addition, a 15 mill levy has been laid on all private property with a $50 connection fee for each sewer user. The city has about 420 water users and estimated costs of the sewage disposal plant is set at $292,000.

Commercial users, for industrial purposes, pay an extra 200% in addition to the general 133% based on monthly water use.

Feeling that taxation of private property was already a heavy enough burden to bear, the City Council expressed little interest in a property tax. Furthermore, because construction problems were not as complicated in Beaverton, as in Junction City, the city fathers further indicated a belief that a minimum charge of about 75% of monthly water bills would bring in sufficient revenue to meet payment of bonds for the main disposal and treatment facilities.

The council, meanwhile, discussed possibilities of starting sewer assessments with bills for January use of water, in order to meet immediate expenses without the necessity of issuing sewer bonds at a time of an unsettled money market.

MOTION AUTHORIZES 3 TO NEGOTIATE FOR SITE LOCATION

Immediate negotiation to acquire by purchase or condemnation a suitable site for the construction of a sewage disposal system was ordered by resolution, December 6, when the Beaverton City Council so authorized the Mayor, Recorder and City Engineer.

Tentative location, fitting the physical needs of such a plant, has been found in the low-lying area north of the Oregon Electric rail line on property now owned by Alexander Pesenti.

At the Council meeting, Mayor Paul Knepp offered his resignation in favor of Mayor-Elect H. H. Jeffries in view of the urgent sewer problems with which Mr. Jeffries' administration will concern itself. ## County Sale of Christmas Seals Report $3329.25

First reports on the annual Christmas Seal sale in Washington county tells of $3,329.25 netted as of Friday, December 3, announces Mrs. Zola Morgan, executive secretary of the Washington County Tuberculosis & Health Association. Receipts for the first two weeks of the campaign last year were $3100.

The improvement in response to the Christmas Seal appeal is "heartening," Mrs. Morgan said, pointing out that all additional contributions will mean that the work of the association can be extended.

The 1948 Seal Sale is as important today as it was in 1907, when it was first instituted, Mrs. Morgan continues, because "we still have a long road to travel before complete victory over the disease is attained. There is an estimated 500,000 persons with active tuberculosis in the United States and only half of that number is known to health authorities. The other quarter of a million persons must be found and placed under treatment."

In 1904, Mrs. Morgan declares, tuberculosis was the top cause of death in this country. The death rate cut of 80 per cent means that 4,000,000 persons have actually been spared from death due to tuberculosis.

Seventy-five per cent of the money received in the county stays here, the association secretary said. Twenty per cent goes to the state association to finance its statewide services and five per cent goes to the National Tuberculosis association.

"The tuberculosis association's case-finding activities are financed solely by sale of Christmas Seal," Mrs. Morgan states.

Delegation From Beaverton Urges Vacation of Road

A delegation of Beaverton business men appeared before the Washington County Court Friday, December 3, to urge the vacation of a little-used county road bordering the present north side of Bernard Airfield, so that the field may be extended 1200 feet to Walker Road.

The present field is 2800 feet long and the extension would make the landing strip 4,000 feet which is sufficiently long to accommodate large planes and to lessen present landing hazards.

Charles Bernard, owner of the airfield and of the land north of the present road which would become part of the airfield, expressed his willingness to dedicate the necessary land and to construct at his own expense a 50-foot road which would meet county specifications to replace the present road.

The new road would run from the northwest corner of present airfield north to Walker Road. The present road is an ungraded road and impassable except during periods of dry weather.

Beaverton men present at the hearing were Ray Clearwater, Wil-Grauer, Guy Carr, Leonard Adams, Harry Antrobus, Dr. J. R. Talbert, Thurlow Weed, James Duncan, Bruce McMahon and Francis Holboke.

Thurlow Weed, local attorney, presented to the county court a resolution unanimously adopted by Beaverton Kiwanis Club favoring the road vacation and airport expansion. L. S. White, secretary of the Portland Airplane Commission, presented aerial views of the airfield and adjacent territory, and stated that the Commission favored the proposed airstrip lengthening and considered it of utmost importance to the development of the greater Portland area.
