Odds and Ends of Council Meeting

OWNERSHIP REPORT

E. N. Murner, deputy county assessor who has been retained by the city of Beaverton, presented a preliminary report on a large size job—determining property ownership within the sewer's area to lay the ground-work for city assessment. Mr. Murner has discovered instances of lots without any access to proposed sewer lines. The city is now considering the addition of stub lines to serve such cases. Additions will also be made to the drainage area served by the proposed storm sewer system. This will include ditches which lead into storm sewer inlets.

INDUSTRIAL SITES

To tax or not to tax seems to be the burning question, at the Tuesday meeting, in regard to the railroad company tracks and sewer assessments.

The Southern Pacific, for instance, has some total of 3460 feet along side sewer lines. The big puzzle was justification in laying a tax for this sewer installation.

From the sidelines came a report that the city of Medford in its sewer construction, allegedly made a point of extending its lines to railroad property, with resulting taxation.

The idea is not all take, however. There's a bit of give to the picture, too.

Sewer installation increases the desirability of railroad property as modern industrial sites.

HALL ST. CROSSING

Condemnation of about one third of a garage on the east side of Hall street, belonging to Mr. Maller is looked for as the Hall street crossing of the Tualatin Valley Highway (Canyon Road, that is) moves into final stages.

WATER EXTENSION

Accepted by the city council is a contract providing for an extension of water line to the property of Mrs. Bonnie Grimm, on S. W. Menlo Drive.

The deal includes an arrangement for future connections by whomsoever gets around to it is payment to Mrs. Grimm to reimburse her for expense of putting in the line.

PAGING PIED PIPER

No pied piper has appeared on the scene to help the residents along Erickson street. But judging reports at the meeting, one would be surely welcomed.

Described is a rat infestation of sewer rats that closely approach a cat in size and some of the women of the neighborhood are a bit timid of venturing beyond their house.

Not reported was whether or not these husky rodents make a promise of thumbing their noses at everyone who goes by!

TRADE LANES

Everybody will be glad to know that Walt Larson of Carr Chevrolet who went to the Veterans Hospital in Portland about three weeks ago, is somewhat improved. Walt's case hasn't been thoroughly diagnosed as yet and the latest word is that he will require considerable rest before he returns to work. Meanwhile he has everybody's best wishes.

Fred Rudolph, new owner of the Associated Station in Aloha, announces that he will have a grand opening sometime in July with a variety of prizes offered visitors.

Employees of Tillman's Tip Top were guests at a little party given by Harry Rothschild a week ago Saturday night at the Legion Hall. It lasted, we hear, until the wee hours, a sure sign that all had a good time.

Discovery of a partially completed square opening in the back door of the Teresi Food Center in Haskell Shopping Center last week revealed that thieves had attempted to break in during the night. Evidently they were frightened off just before they were ready to push the opening thru. The sheriff's office in Hillsboro stated that similar jobs had been done in Forest Grove lately.

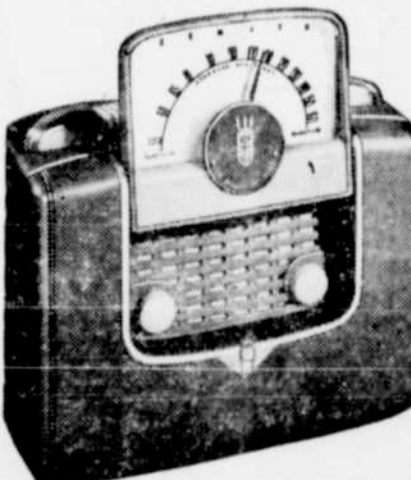

Vacationitis, that bug that usually hits us at about this time of the year, evidently took a good bite at the Beaverton Business Men's club according to attendance at the last meeting, June 16. Usually 60 members show up but only 11 answered roll call this time. ... Who's playing hooky?

INSURANCE QUESTION

New insurance policy which excludes coverage for anyone over 70 years of age fails to satisfy members of the Beaverton volunteer fire department.

One of its members, L. F. Humburg, of S. E. Franklin street, would be so left out and he is considered one of the most faithful and competent firemen of the lot.

This year's policy scales down the benefit for death or disability from $5,000 to $3,000 and makes this amount payable to the estate rather than beneficiary. The smoke eaters would like to have a little higher death benefit plus payment to beneficiary and plans are to reconcile the new policy to the wishes of the lads.

will open this Friday under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Hale who hail from Hillsboro. Featured will be a super-duper hamburger, warranted by Hale to be a meal in itself. The new owners are not new to the restaurant business, having chafed up 20 years in that line.

Mr. and Mrs. Fran Holboke (of Thrifty Market) are receiving congrats on a lusty son (Little Fran?) born last Wednesday in a Portland Hospital. Meanwhile Big Fran is said to be practicing diaper folding in his spare time at the store.

Kiddies will be glad to hear that free Shetland pony rides are on the schedule for them at the new Canyon Theatre Drive-In on Bertha-Beaverton highway, beginning Friday. Incidentally, we notice that the boys at the drive-in have ironed out some of the "bugs" natural to any new business. For example, cars are placed more promptly and patrons who left during the intermission under the impression that the show was over, are now advised by loudspeaker that another feature follows the brief intermission.
