Hand Infection Changes Plan on Demo Conference

A hand infection, this week, radically changed the plans of Lyman Ross, county Democratic central committee chairman, who resides between Huber and Aloha and who had planned to attend the regional party conference at San Francisco.

Ross scratched his hand on blackberry brambles and then he cleaned a chicken for a customer, at his hatchery.

His plans for the conference were all set, including plane reservations. But though he was slated to appear on a panel of leaders to discuss party farm programs, he landed in Jones hospital, instead, and his reservations were cancelled.

By Wednesday morning of this week, he had recovered sufficiently to be up and about "under slow bell" at home. And all he knows about the Democratic conference is what he can learn from the daily papers—which he says isn't much!

Deadline Nears On Filbert Pact Referendum Vote

A reminder to Filbert growers in the States of Oregon and Washington that midnight, September 23, 1949, is the deadline for mailing ballots in a referendum on a proposed federal marketing agreement and order program was issued this week by Arthur P. Ireland, chairman of the Washington, County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

The ballot is a part of a printed brochure mailed last week to all independent Filbert growers of record in the States of Oregon and Washington, and may be detached and mailed in an already-addressed envelope requiring no postage. All the co-operative Associations handling Filberts have indicated they will vote for their membership so it will not be necessary for members of such organizations to vote individually in the referendum.

Any of the independent growers who failed to receive a ballot by mail may obtain one, together with a copy of the proposed marketing agreement and instructions for voting, at the county agricultural conservation office, located at the Court House, Hillsboro, Oregon, or from the office of the county agent of the Agricultural Extension Service, Court House, Hillsboro, Oregon.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture already has announced its approval of the program which, to become effective, must have the approval of at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the referendum or by the producers of at least two-thirds of the volume of Filbert production represented.

Handlers are being sent an identical marketing agreement for their concurrence.

The marketing order would regulate the handling of Filberts grown in Oregon and Washington—when prices paid to growers were below parity—by regulating the percentage sold as unshelled Filberts. Minimum standards of quality may also be established by the Filbert industry in the States of Oregon and Washington under the provisions of the proposal.
