Twirl Students Cop Top Prizes N.W. Baton Meet

New honors came to Miss Eleanor Boysen of Beaverton when her baton twirling students carried off top prizes at the Northwest Baton twirling contest held last week in Washougal, Washington. Six of Miss Boysen's pupils entered and three of the juniors, competing with seniors, won second place while her youngest pupil, a seven year old girl, won the highest rating of the juniors in the entire Northwest.

Use Of Water For Christmas Tree Cuts Fire Hazard

Treat your Christmas tree as you would a bouquet of flowers—stand its base in a pan of water—and avoid the presence of a serious fire hazard in your home during the holiday season.

This reminder from Charles R. Ross, OSC extension farm forestry specialist, points out that a Christmas tree, like flowers, loses water rapidly when exposed to normal temperatures. This normal water loss, however, can be lessened in the Christmas tree just as it is in a bouquet.

The natural resins in an evergreen tree become more and more inflammable as the tree dries.

In order to lessen the fire hazard, Ross suggests buying or placing a tree in the home which has been "fresh" cut. Then, before placing it in the stand, saw a new diagonal cut at least an inch above the old cut in order to expose a fresh, moist surface which will absorb water. Then by using a home-made or commercial stand that holds the trunk a few inches above the bottom, the cut end may be kept in a container of water throughout the holiday period.

This method will reduce the Christmas tree fire hazard to a minimum and will prevent needles from discoloring or falling.

In the past chemical solutions such as ammonium sulphate, calcium chloride and ammonium sulphamate have been recommended for use in reducing the Christmas tree fire hazard. None of these, however, is superior to water, Ross states. In fact, recent tests by Underwriters Laboratories show that use of ammonium sulphate makes a tree more combustible than when set in water.

Fabrics such as curtains, clothing, decorating cotton and other materials may be fireproofed with a solution containing 7 ounces of borax and 3 ounces of boric acid in 2 quarts of water. Sprinkling the solution on fluffly materials will increase their resistance to fire; dipping will give materials almost complete resistance. The treated materials may be ironed.

CIRCULATION BOOSTERS

The Buzzette, published by the eighth grade Merle Davies school students, reports that the magazine drive which ended Nov. 14 netted $1,687.55 in subscriptions. Highest seller among the pupils was Ruth Rogers who took in $204.80. Sandra Wilcox was next with $154.15.

VIA NEW DAYLIGHT

Mrs. Louise Torndt and her daughter, Sheila, of Campbell, Calif., arrived Tuesday evening via the new Daylight to spend the Christmas holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Martin Allen of Hyland Road.

PLEASURE-BUSINESS

Dr. E. L. Simms of Kamloops, B. C., Canada, left Beaverton Tuesday for his home after a stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gower. He combined his visit with attendance at the Northwest Optometrists' convention held at the Multnomah Hotel in Portland from Dec. 10 to Dec. 13.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Beaverton Grange held their annual pot-luck supper and Christmas party at the Aloha Grange hall on Monday, Dec. 19.

RETURNS TO HAZELDALE

Mrs. B. Deland has returned to her home near Hazeldale after spending several weeks at a Portland hospital.

SNOW IN VERNONIA

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester and daughter, Eunice, ran into snow Sunday and had to turn back on their way to visit friends in Vernonia.

Eva Kolkenbeck

Mrs. Eva L. Kolkenbeck, late of 1914 Bertha - Beaverton Highway, passed away suddenly at home Tuesday morning. She was born in Groton, South Dakota, November 4, 1895.

She was a member of the Valley Community Presbyterian church and the VFW Beaverton Post Auxiliary. She had resided in Beaverton one year and eight months.

Surviving are her husband, Arthur J. Kolkenbeck; three sisters: Mrs. Edith Lyon, Portland; Mrs. H. S. Harkness, North Hollywood; Mrs. C. M. Wescott, Kirkland, Wn. One brother, S. H. Pirnie, Aberdeen, South Dakota, also nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held Friday, Dec. 23, at 11 a.m. from Pegg's Chapel. Private commitment at Riverview Cemetery.
