More Than 3,000 Job Seekers In Co. Since June 1

Since the June 1, 1949 establishment of a state unemployment compensation commission office at Hillsboro, there has been a total of 31,625 interviews made, of which were 3,135 applications for work, according to Alvin Elkins, manager, in a summary of the first six months service. Five hundred and twenty five non-agriculture placements were also recorded in this county, where agriculture is the main industry.

Elkins says that the office now has a complete record of workers available through its files and employers need not go to the time and trouble of interviewing and screening out unsuited applicants for the particular job offered. Neither is it necessary to build up extensive application files for future reference in recruiting workers. The Hillsboro employment service office can provide up to date information of workers at no additional expense to the employer who makes use of it.

During the last week in December, estimated unemployment in Washington county and Vernonia, which the office serves, was set at 2,600, compared to the December 1948 figure of 2,000. This 30% increase is explained as a result of the continued influx of workers from other states and the heavy snows and cold weather that hampered lumber and timber, basic products operations and construction work.

Definition of Unemployment: Total unemployment is the number of persons who are without work, are not attached to a payroll, and are actively seeking employment for pay or profit, and who are able to perform some type of labor during a given time.

Logging: Operations in this industry have temporarily stopped. The heavy snows cause the logging roads to become impassable. Operations will continue as soon as the weather permits.

Construction: Building and home construction permits totalled $101,100 in Beaverton, Hillsboro and Forest Grove. Due to the large number of skilled and unskilled workers available at this time building construction, new and repair, should be encouraged.

Retail and Wholesale Trade: General business conditions in this classification has been good, and compares favorably with the corresponding month a year ago.

New and additional claims for unemployment benefits in December totalled 1,327 including interstate. Compensable claims averaged 1,000 per week almost doubling the November load.

Under present regulations all employers are notified at once when a claim is filed or renewed. In case there is any question as to reason for separation it is important that this notice be answered promptly.

Court Decision Predicates New Warrant Policy

A recent decision by the Oregon supreme court will probably change the entire policy of the way school district boards do business, according to an announcement coming from the state office of Rex Putnam, superintendent of public instruction.

On last November 15, the court held the United States National Bank liable in a suit brought by the Vernonia school district for recovery of some $34,953 embezzled by 116 warrants which the school board clerk issued. The court ruled that the bank should have become suspicious at the number of warrants issued and investigated.

The state office supposes that banks in the state will now require clerks of school districts to deposit all funds in a personal account as official clerk of the district. Furthermore, all warrants whose issuance has been authorized must be paid by check rather than sending the warrant through in lieu of check, under the new plan.

Attorneys for the bank, bankers' association and the attorney general's office agree that such a system would meet legal requirements. New warrant forms which will be furnished to school districts in the future will therefore include a bank check attached for use in paying the warrant.

The new system, however, will not go into effect until the local banker requests a change over to the new system.

The additional work of writing a check to pay a cash warrant is noted by the state as a more cumbersome method than the old system. But it seems to be the only way to meet the legal requirements and not expose the bank to loss as taken under decision of the supreme court.

YOU...an Interior Decorator
By BILL SIEBERTS

BRIGHT AND GAY

Ah! The kitchen. It might be, as the saying goes, "the woman's place", but don't for a minute forget dad or the youngsters, because the kitchen to them means "home".

Make your kitchen the gay spot it should be. Use bright, cheery colors and plenty of attractive details.

For the sake of illustration we've taken a kitchen and what was originally a breakfast nook. With a little thought and care these "two" rooms were changed into the cozy, warm kitchen you see. The table and chairs are maple and the floor covering is Linoleum with attractive rag rugs.

The "working" part of the kitchen should be planned in advance, if possible, to eliminate unnecessary steps and reaching. The refrigerator and range, for instance, should be near to the space where food is prepared.

No matter what your present kitchen is like, you CAN make it into something to be proud of. After all, you do spend a lot of time in this room, so why not make it attractive and efficient?

If you're stumped for ideas, stop in and discuss your plans with us. You might be able to use a few of our ideas.

Our Home Counseling Service specializes in new ideas for you.
