Vacation Period Brings Benefits To School-Agers

Children all over the county have put away their school books, or are preparing to do so, to enjoy the summer vacation.

To the children, the time has arrived for fun and relaxation, of freedom from school routine, discipline, homework and examinations. They take readily and eagerly to this change to all-day play and outdoor life.

We adults see school days as necessary to the mental and educational growth of the child. Similarly, we can look on his vacation days as essential to his healthy physical growth. Immediate benefits can be seen the first few days a child is home from school. In some cases, lagging appetites perk up and some children begin to sleep better because increased fresh air and exercise bring on a healthy fatigue at the end of the day.

Although school days mean a certain amount of confinement and deprivation of outdoor exercise, they do tend to foster regular habits of eating, sleeping, and cleanliness among children. For example, most parents get their children to bed on time because they have to get up early for school.

Children generally eat a better breakfast during the school year and many schools provide pupils with a nourishing, well-balanced lunch. There is less opportunity, too, during school days for children to nibble at snacks and spoil their appetites for good food at the main meals.

As a general rule, children are "scrubbed for school", with special attention to clean fingernails and teeth. (Dentists report that the appearance of dental cavities among children is greatest during the summer vacation.) Pupils are reminded almost daily in class of the importance of health and hygiene.

Moreover, many school have doctors and nurses, at least on a part-time basis, to help keep a check on the health of the children.

Just enough of the attention given to the child's health during school weeks should carry over into the summer vacation to assure that he returns to school happy and healthy in September. This certainly does not mean that a child should be nagged about health rules after an "earned" vacation following nine months of study and school routine. Nor does it mean that a few "late nights" or extra snacks during the day will do harm.

But it does mean that parents should realize the understandable tendency to allow things to "slide" during the summer months and help make the child's summer vacation the relaxing, refreshing and healthful experience it is meant to be.

WAR—HOW FAR OFF?

Launch a bomb from a sub miles out and you make a New York uninhabitable. And the Reds now have 500 subs and the bombs also. So says Kenneth Courcy, British naval authority, who sees war in two years. This is in line with the Bible that gives wars and rumors of war until God has completed his roll-call of the saved. Then Christ is to return and take over as World Ruler with wars out and peace in. Also to judge the lost dead.—Bible.

God's Roll-Call Geo. N. Taylor
—God is now calling out a people on whom to spend his eternal love. All have sinned and by that God lost all. But he yearns to have us back and he gives eternal life to all who turn and accept Christ as having died for them. Not only thieves and the down and outers but the up and respectables—for all have sinned and are lost. Turn, believe God that Christ died for all your sins and God gives you eternal life. Else you live under the wrath of God and go out to judgement.—BIBLE.
