Court Costs On Traffic Charges Take $1/2 Million

What does it cost to go to traffic court?

Most offenses listed on the Portland traffic division's bail schedule run from $2 for improper hand signals or jaywalking to $50 for reckless driving or drinking while driving, according to the Portland Traffic and Transportation Commission.

Most serious offense, in terms of bail required, is driving while intoxicated. Bail for this violation is $400.

While these are minimum bails and may be doubled where circumstances indicate the necessity, the bail schedule also provides for doubling the bail in the case of repeat violations, the commission said.

The commission advised the motorist not to forfeit bail when he is cited, but to appear in court. This will give him an opportunity to learn something of the problem of traffic law enforcement that may diminish resentments, and it may save the motorist some money.

Judge J. J. Quillin, municipal court magistrate, said that although the courts can revoke a driver's license or impose a jail sentence, money fines seem to be the only penalty the court can resort to in the majority of traffic cases.

Pointing out that all traffic accidents are preventable, the Commission declared that if all motorists driving in Portland last year had driven safely, they would have saved over half a million dollars in traffic fines and an estimated eight million in costs of property damage and injuries. They would also have prevented 33 deaths and 3478 injuries.

Now Or Never On Game Regulation Dated July 14th

The annual public hearing on hunting regulations will be held by the Oregon State Game Commission at 10:00 a. m., July 14, the time prescribed by statute. The Commission's Portland headquarters are located at 1634 S. W. Alder Street.

All persons and organizations interested in regulations pertaining to seasons, bag limits, and methods of taking game animals, game birds, and furbearing animals are invited to attend. Recommendations from all parties will be heard, but for accuracy in the record, Charles Lockwood, State Game Director, requests that all important facts and statements be submitted in writing.

Tentative regulations will be announced after the hearing. The Commission will reconvene within two weeks, make any changes deemed necessary, and set the final hunting regulations for 1950.

Democrats Gird For Fall; Elect Central Comm.

Girding for action in the fall general election, Democrats officially elected a Washington County central committee at a meeting held June 26, 8:30 p. m., in the county courtroom, Hillsboro. Chairman is Mrs. Ruth Varner of Beaverton. Serving with her is the following slate:

Harold Johnston, West Slope, vice-chairman; Joseph E. Mills, Jr., Hillsboro, secretary; Mrs. Inez Cook, Beaverton, treasurer; Congressional committeeman, Albert T. Kemmer, Beaverton; Congressional committeewoman, Mrs. Alice Taylor, Sherwood; Alternate for chairman, Mrs. Margaret Dornbach, Beaverton; Alternate for vice-chairman, J. A. McGee, Oreno.

District nominating committee was named: Marvin L. Lain, Beaverton; Mrs. Ethel E. Rutz, Forest Grove; C. W. Jenkins, Cornelius; Dr. D. D. Darland, Forest Grove, and Paul Schaefer.

The county Democratic organization is faced with the task of rallying support to two candidates for the state legislature, in addition to those candidates who regularly entered in the primary election.

Al Bobbit, Aloha, and James Schick, Forest Grove, both attorneys, won a place on the November ballot on the strength of write-in votes in May.

Co. Weed Control Committee Asks U.S. To Cooperate

Members of the Washington County Weed Control Committee elected Arthur Ireland of Forest Grove as chairman to replace the late, R. Glen Ritchey, who had served as chairman since the County-wide organization of the Weed Control District was started. Mr. Ireland, who was one of the original members of the committee, stressed the importance of getting the full cooperation between farmers and government agencies in this program of weed control.

One of the matters discussed by the committee was the procedure to be taken in order to attempt to get the federal government to cooperate in the controlling of weeds on their land.

The committee unanimously decided to contact the Oregon congressional delegates in Congress, urging them to do everything in their power to see that a bill which is pending to care for such lands includes the permitting of expenditure of money for the eradication of weeds on said government lands.

The County weed supervisors reported on their progress in inspecting weeds in the County and indicated that they were getting very good cooperation from everyone. The committee expressed some concern over the fact that tansy ragwort, which was practically unheard of eight or ten years ago is now scattered in small patches throughout the County.

The committee backed up the supervisors in their program and stated that they hoped that farmers, in planning their crop program for next fall would keep in mind the weedy areas on their farms and plant them to crops that could be sprayed for the control of weeds.

Farm Occupation Rates 3rd Most Dangerous Line

Farming moved up from fourth to third place in 1948 as the most dangerous way of making a living according to the latest National Safety Council statistics. The time lost as the result of accidents to farm residents in any typical year amounts to the time needed to plant, cultivate and harvest nearly one-half the annual average wheat crop in the U. S.

To help reduce the needless deaths and crippling injuries to farm residents, the President has declared the week of July 23-29 as National Farm Safety Week.

Noted In file Of County Sheriff

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

As usual the gun wasn't loaded and the safety catch was on—they thought.

But an 11 year old boy ended up in the Newberg hospital after showing his 8 year old sister how to fire a .22 caliber rifle.

The two children were playing with the lethal toy when the sister pointed it at her brother and pulled the trigger.

At the Newberg hospital, x-rays showed the bullet pierced the left arm above the wrist, entered left breast striking rib and glancing off to lodge near the spine.

Dr. L. H. Peck, physician, thereupon transferred the boy to Dornbecker hospital in Portland.

SWEET TOOTH TROUBLES

Three juveniles must reckon with the county probation officer and Gene Waters, 25, Route 2, Box 360 Beaverton, must face the stern meim of the Law as an aftermath of sweet tooth yearnings that brought about the theft of from $20 to $25 in candy, June 20, from the car in the garage of Joe E. Varner, Route 2, Box 122, Beaverton.

Waters is charged with driving a 1946 Hudson for the young trio and he awaits further trial on the charge of aiding youngsters to commit a delinquency.

Deputy sheriff contacted the three boys just as they had called Mrs. Varner, admitted the theft and asked to be able to return it. The offer was refused and the boys must reckon with full circumstance of their deed.

NO-SEE-UM-CRASH!

A case of neither driver seeing the other until it was too late to avoid a crash is the story behind a sidesweep at Wheeler avenue and Walker road, 5 p. m., June 21.

Norma Jean Emerick, Route 2, Box 687, Beaverton, driving a 1941 Buick sedanette, saw a damaged left side and front end when her car, with three juvenile passengers, crashed into the 1933 Dodge pickup driven by Ruth Dibbons, Route 1, Box 321, Tigard. The pickup was damaged on the right side and fender.

MISSING HUB CAPS

Norene Pizer, Route 1, Box 277, Aloha, finds the matter of missing hubcaps becoming an unpleasant habit with her.

Latest episode occurred June 17, between 10:30 p. m. and 11 p. m., in front of King's Lumber company, when two of the shiny discs were apparently pried from the wheels of her 1942 Chevrolet.

Suspected are three local boys, 14 or 15 years old.

HOLE IN DRIVEWAY

A Sunset Fuel truck, backing into his driveway to turn around about noon, June 13, mired down and before leaving managed to tear a big hole in his driveway, reports James W. Cooper, P. O. Box 31, Huber.

The driver said his company would fix it up but later calls to fuel company proved fruitless, according to Mrs. Cooper. The company first denied the responsibility and then became somewhat sarcastic, said they wouldn't fill the hole and hung up, she said.
