BARNES SCHOOL—"Keep an eye on Oregon's legislature and be informed about bills under consideration during this session, particularly those affecting education," was advice given by A. R. Ringe, president of Cedar Mill Farmer's Union, at the local's January meeting held in Barnes school, Tuesday, January 16.

"There are 11 school districts in Washington county alone which desperately need financial aid if they are to keep up with the influx of children, and a public building fund for all such districts is urgently needed. However, many bills are being introduced at Salem under guise of the Holy Plan, but have nothing to do with it," Mr. Ringe said.

Gottfried Krautscheid, member of Farmers Union Juniors and son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Krautscheid of Hillsboro, spoke on the Junior study book, "The Farmer Harvests His Vote" by Stanley Vogt.

Among national legislation desirable for farmers which had the active support of the Farmers Union and discussed by the speaker were: rural electrification, Farmers Home Administration, rural telephones, the Soil Conservation Act, the TVA, the Housing Act, the school lunch program and the Commodity Exchange act.

The latter, passed in 1936, has been described by farm leaders as one of the most important laws ever passed for the benefit of farmers.

Harold Shaper, director of organization for Cedar Mill local, urged all members to pay 1951 dues soon. A. L. Whitaker, legislative director, spoke on the merit of numerous bills soon to come before Oregon's legislature. A general discussion of farm problems was participated in by the members.
