WOODWORKERS OUT

Two Hundred Planing Mill Men Demand Nine Hours.

The Amalgamated Woodworkers held a meeting last night and unanimously decided to go on a strike this morning, and as a result every member of the union is out today.

They ask for a nine-hour day at the same wages which they have been receiving for 10 hours work, and are confident that their terms will be granted.

The morning, at the headquarters established on Second and Yamhill streets, the union is receiving much encouragement from other labor organizations in the city, as well as from sympathizers of the cause. The following communication was received from the Fred Swartz mill:

"Gentlemen: Although having received no official notice of the demands made by the union, but being notified by the men working for me, and they being members of said union, I grant them their demands, which are, as I understand the matter, nine hours per day, with the present rate of pay. Hoping you will succeed in getting the other mills to grant your demands. I am, yours truly, 'FRED SWARTZ'."

William Turner, architect at the North Pacific Planing Mill, also sent a communication encouraging the union in its stand, stating that he expected soon to assume the responsibilities of superintendent of the company, and that he is in full sympathy with the union.

The mills affected by the strike are the North Pacific, the Hand Manufacturing Company, the George Ainslie Company, J. Martin & Co., Nicolai Bros. and the Universal Sash & Door Company.

Gay & Co. and the Fred Swartz mill are unionized, having adopted the nine-hour system, and are working full-handed today. Both are small mills, but it is the intention to enlarge them soon. These, with the new union mill now being erected on the East Side by Frank Smith & Co., will in a month from now be prepared to give employment to as many men as all the other mills combined, and for this reason union men are not worrying much over the situation. They firmly believe, however, that all the mills will grant them what they ask in a very short time.

The union has a membership of 302, several new members being initiated last night. About 250 men were employed in the mills, therefore all but 45 of the men are out.

At the meeting last night it was decided to extend moral support to the laundry workers, and also to assist them as far as a possible financially if necessary. A motion prevailed also to impose a fine of $2 upon any member patronizing the laundries until the strike now on is settled. The laundry drivers were censured for the course they have pursued during the difficulties.

Some of the mills are running with green hands, and one of the proprietors said that all of them are in operation, but this is emphatically denied by the leaders of the strike.

A few men are at work at Nicolai Bros' mill. One of the firm said this morning: "There are about 125 men at work in all the mills today. Of course we are inconvenienced some by the strike, but we will never grant the nine-hour day. We could not do this and compete with the sawmills working 10 hours a day and doing practically the same kind of work that we are doing. There are plenty of good men we can get in the country, and all the mills will be running full-handed again in a few days."

The union, however, entertains a different opinion on the subject.

The proprietors. The matter will come up before the union today and a vote taken on the subject as to what course will be pursued concerning the conference.

It is probable that a meeting will be held this afternoon by the union and a conference between the opposing factions may result tomorrow, at which some final understanding is likely to be had.

The proprietors have shown a disposition to meet the union as a body, but the leaders of the strike wish their executive board to attend to all matters of this nature.

The union is leaving nothing undone to win out in the struggle now on, the girls working as industriously as the men.

Mr. Warner, of the Opera laundry, stated this morning that the proprietors have acted fair with employees all along; that the differences were left to be adjusted by a committee, and the employees placed the matter in the hands of the Federated Trades. He said that they had not held weekly conferences with the employees, prior to the strike, as reported. "We are filling our laundries with new help, and expect to get along all right. Some of the restaurants using paper napkins and oil cloths are doing so to favor us until we get our feet, as it were."

THE SAWMILL SITUATION

The Portland Lumbering & Manufacturing Company's mill, whose employees to the number of 160 went out on a strike yesterday, started up this morning with a force of 18 men, the most of whom are the company's proprietors and clerks.

The union employees say that the company offered them all sorts of inducements to go to work this morning, but still refusing to recognize organized labor.

The steamer Aberdeen was unable to complete loading lumber at the mill and left this morning with a half cargo, longshoremen refusing to work at the company's dock until the men's terms are granted.

The proprietors are standing firm and say that they will never recognize the union. Employees are confident of winning, however, and believe that steps will be taken in a very short time to effect a settlement.

Groups of union men have been near the mill all day watching operations, and comparing notes.

STRIKERS ARRESTED

Since the Laundry Workers' Association declared a strike, Manager Gilliland of the Union Laundry, which is one of the largest establishments in Portland, has had his share of troubles.

All of his union employees walked out, and he tried to supplant them with persons who were willing to work at the old scale. It was not hard to secure this class of labor, but in many instances persons who agreed to take strikers' places were persuaded to quit their jobs and join the ranks of those who were out.

Many could not be convinced that they were doing labor a wrong, and now the strikers are becoming disorderly.

Last night Martin Tullison was arrested for throwing a beer bottle at a non-union man as he was leaving work, and this morning Mr. Gilliland swore out three more warrants for the arrest of strikers on charges of assault and battery.

The police will be on hand at the laundry tonight to see that no further disturbances occur.

BALLERAY

Wrote the Oration of Mr. Furnish.

(Journal Special Service.) PENDLETON, Or., May 1.—The people of this place are interested in the launching of the oratorical venture of W. J. Furnish, as he goes upon the public platform to make his initial appearance as a spellbinder. It is bruited about the streets that he at first refused even to consider the proposition that he go upon the stump and attempt to convey his views to the people through the medium of oratory. It is known here that the Republican State Central Committee insisted that it was essential that he appear at various points, especially in Western Oregon, and it was arranged that Judge John J. Balleray, a distinguished jurist of this city, write his speech, and that Mr. Furnish go along with State Senator Charles W. Fulton of Astoria and give it to the people.

This program was forced upon the shrinking banker, who is much more familiar with clipping coupons and studying mortgage files than he is with the art that made Demosthenes and Cicero famous. Judge Balleray wrote the speech, which, let it be said, is not long and will consume only a few minutes, and now it is understood that Mr. Furnish is giving it to the voters of Western Oregon as the product of his own brain.

In connection with this, the comment is going the rounds of the streets here that, if Judge Balleray writes his speeches, perhaps the same gentleman will write his messages and other state papers. If this be true as a prediction, then those state papers will probably be much better written than they otherwise would be.

MAKING FINAL SURVEY.

President Lytle, of the Columbia Southern, stated today that the preliminary survey of the extension from Shaniko to Bend, a distance of 100 miles, having been completed, the work of making the final survey was begun Monday. President Lytle says that the hardest part of the work will lie for the first 30 miles, where the line will leave the plateau and go into the Hay Creek district. Here some tunnel and a considerable quantity of rock work will need to be done. After this is accomplished, the remainder of the work will prove comparatively easy. "I think our extension will be ready for the complete operation of trains about April 1, next year," said President Lytle.

(Scripps-McRae News Association.) COPENHAGEN, May 1.—Reports of a revolt of the entire labor population in the district between Moscow and Vladimir, Central Russia, has been received here.

LABORS' PROTEST

Savage Asked Not to Attend Celebration.

(Scripps-McRae News Association.) SEATTLE, May 1.—Seattle will attempt a monster celebration on the Fourth of July in connection with the ceremony of laying the keel of the big battleship Nebraska to be built by the Moran Bros. shipbuilders of this city.

Among those of the distinguished guests who have accepted invitations to be present is Governor Savage of Nebraska, who will deliver an address at the laying of the keel of the ship named in honor of his state.

But the arrangements for the celebration are not to be concluded without some friction.

The Western Central Labor Union of America and the Federation of Labor last night passed resolutions bitterly denouncing Moran Bros. and advised Governor Savage not to come, as his visit would be considered an insult to organized labor.

The Morans are characterized as the enemies of organized labor.

A WATER CURE COURTMARTIAL

(Scripps-McRae News Association.) WASHINGTON, May 1.—The War Department has detailed a court-martial, of which General Fred Grant, will be president, to try the case of Edward Glenn, who was accused by recent witnesses before the Senate Philippines court, of having administered the water cure to the President of Igbatan.

STEAMER LINE.

At a special meeting of the steamship committee of the Board of Trade this afternoon, it was finally decided to incorporate a company to run a steamship line to Alaska. The secretary was instructed to communicate with various steamship companies as to whether they have any available boats to charter.

It was also decided that Judge Seneca Smith should form the general plans of the proposed company and draw up incorporation papers for the Portland & Alaska Trading Company.

It is highly probable that the Board of Trade will empower Alexander Kuntz to go to Alaska and boom up trade there for Portland merchants.
