STRIKE SERIOUS

Planing Mill Employes Will Ask for a Boycott.

The strike is still on in the planing mills, and no end to the struggle is yet in sight. When the Federated Trades Council meets tonight that body will be asked to declare all the mills unfair, and a general boycott will be placed upon them at once.

This will mean a complete tie-up of their business, as teamsters will refuse to handle their material, carpenters will not use it for building purposes, and no union man of any organization will have anything to do with their product. Teamsters are now impatiently waiting for such instructions. Ever since the strike they have shown a dislike to having anything to do in the way of handling any material which has accumulated at the mills.

Pickets on duty yesterday have brought favorable reports to headquarters. The mills closed were the Hand Manufacturing Company and the North Pacific Planing Mill, although steam is being kept up in the latter. Nicolai Bros. are running with a light crew, while at the Northwest there are 12 men at work, nearly all of whom are stockholders. The Alstie mill is running today with a much lighter crew than yesterday.

The J. A. Martin Company is more of a sawmill than planing mill and is running about full handed. The firm is busy filling a large order for the Western Lumber Company and does not really come under the jurisdiction of the Amalgamated Woodworkers, and thus far they have not taken any action in the matter.

The pickets are actively engaged in discharging their arduous duties, and report many exciting incidents. Yesterday they prevented about 10 nonunion men from going to work; one of them being forcibly ejected after he had gone to work. They intend to adopt peaceable means in conducting the strike and expect to run along these lines.

The Universal mill has informed the managers of the strike that neither union nor nonunion men will be employed by the mill until the trouble is settled.

After tonight, when the Federated Trades Council is expected to give permission for the various mills to be boycotted, the union expects plain sailing, and believes that differences will soon be adjusted.

Several of the men have gone to work in the two union mills, and as soon as the plants are increased in size positions will be made for many more men. These are the Gay & Co. and Fred Swartz mills.

The proprietors are exerting every effort, with one or two exceptions, to transact business and keep their mills running. They still seem confident of being able to get along without the aid of the union employes.

on Union avenue and Weidler street, East side, has signed the agreement, and others are expected to follow this lead in rapid succession.

At the meeting this morning between the proprietors and the union the following representatives of the laundries were present: Massa, Warner, of the Opera; Tate, of the Troy; Gilliland, of the Union; Hoff, of the City; Cora, of the Pacific; McClung, of the American, and Waindany, of the Star.

Several speeches were made by the proprietors who waxed eloquent in explaining to the striking employes why they should return to work without compelling them to recognize the union. Their situations, they explained, were open to them at any time they wished to return.

Mr. Gilliland, of the Union laundry, made a few remarks in which he stated that he held no member of the union responsible for the disturbances which occurred near his place of business last night.

Organizer Duke, of the Federated Trades Council, then took the floor and explained that no union employes should return to work until the union is recognized, and the employes cheered and shouted that they would not.

After the adjournment of the meeting the union went into executive session and unanimously decided not to consider any further concessions other than those presented in the last scale and agreement, and the Secretary was instructed to notify the association.

The union believes that the fight is practically won, and is now waiting for the various proprietors to call at the strikers' headquarters and sign up. It is predicted by many that everything will be settled before tomorrow night.

CADETS' GREAT DAY

President Addresses Graduating Class at Annapolis.

(Scripps-McRae News Association.) ANNAPOLIS, May 2.—President Roosevelt and daughter Alice and a number of naval officials arrived here today to attend the graduating exercises at the Naval Academy.

The Presidential party was received by Superintendent Wainwright and immediately repaired to his residence. After the diplomas were awarded President Roosevelt addressed the cadets.

He said that with them, above almost any others of the entire Union, rested our place among the great nations of the world; that on some tremendous day it may depend upon their preparedness, knowledge and courage whether or not the nation is again to write her name on the world's roll of honor or to know the shame of defeat.

If the navy fails us in time of war, which he hoped would never come, then we are doomed to defeat.

TWO LAUNDRYMEN ATTACKED

A Mob Assaults Manager Gilliland And John Burnett.

A howling, surging, turbulent mob of three hundred angry men, women and children attacked L. T. Gilliland, manager of the Union laundry, and John Burnett, a linen worker in the laundry late yesterday afternoon, chased them for several blocks, and despite police protection badly injured Burnett and finally kept the two men imprisoned in a feed store for half an hour until the police arrived with a patrol wagon and accompanied them home.

In the melee, Mrs. Stinnett, a new employe of the laundry, was hit and knocked down by Frankie Jenks, one of the girls who walked out.

Burnett was struck in the head with a piece of 2x4 scantling and was knocked senseless.

The women in the laundry say they were grossly insulted and several minor hair-pullings and little fights were engaged in as side issues.

The row occurred in front of the laundry in Lower Albina yesterday shortly after 8 o'clock. Gilliland had anticipated trouble and early in the day asked the chief of police to send an officer to the laundry at the hour of closing.

Policeman Gibson who is on that beat was sent to the laundry. A mob of about 300 people had congregated in front of the building. Officer Gibson made a gangway through the crowd and the women employes of the laundry started home.

While the policeman was endeavoring to keep the way clear the Jenks woman struck Mrs. Stinnett. Mrs. Stinnett is not a regular employe of the laundry but is the wife of a driver and was assisting in the laundry to help it out of the difficulty during the strike.

In the meantime Gilliland and Burnett came out of the laundry and started through the crowd. The mob rushed on them and they practically fought their way to Russell street, the crowd following all the time.

Somewhere near the Albina bank an unknown man hit Burnett with his fist and knocked him down, the ruffian running back in the crowd of women and thus eluding the policeman who was forced to stay with Burnett and Gilliland.

As soon as Burnett caught his breath and could walk the beseeched laundry manager and his helper accompanied by the policeman started up Russell street. Just then "Black Jack," a longshoreman, hit Burnett another stunning blow, and he was again knocked down.

In a few moments Burnett was raised to the ground and the trio started for home again. Burnett was then struck in the back of the head with a large piece of timber and for a few moments was rendered unconscious. He was then helped to his feet and with the assistance of the policeman he and Gilliland retreated to Boden's feed store.

From this place Mr. Gilliland telephoned to police headquarters and the patrol wagon was sent to carry them home. While waiting for the patrol wagon the door of the feed store was broken in and it was with the greatest difficulty that the two laundrymen and the policeman could keep off the angry mob.

The name of the man who struck Burnett with the scantling is not known as he hid in a crowd of women as soon as he struck the blow. However the police believe it to have been a man named Schaffer but Mr. Gilliland did not see him strike the blow and is unwilling to swear out the warrant.

Mr. Gilliland says that so far as he knows none of the striking laundrymen employed at his place had anything to do with the attack. However many of them were in the mob. The women strikers were not so circumspect and were loud in their denunciations of those who remained at work.

Yesterday morning at the request of Mr. Gilliland warrants were issued for the arrest of Mike Kinney, and two young men named Gurkie and Voight for attacking some of the employes of the laundry Wednesday night.

These warrants have not been served and Mr. Gilliland will probably ask to have them withdrawn, as he does not believe any good can come from the prosecution of the offenders in these labor troubles.

Promptly at 2 o'clock today the Union Laundry Company closed its doors, probably indefinitely. Mr. Gilliland said he would not resume operation until the differences were settled with the employes.

He said he could easily get help to operate, but he was unwilling to further jeopardize the lives of his people.

Mr. Gilliland offered the union to bind himself not to engage any non-union help in the future provided union help was available and not to lower the wages or discharge any one owing to this agreement. He refused to discharge any of his present non-union help and steadily declines to do so.

At noon today Mr. Gilliland told a party of strikers in front of the laundry that no one connected with the business would be discharged and that he would resume work as soon as the trouble was settled.

For the last few days the laundry has been running merely to accommodate the public.

Government Still Investigating Its Cuban Deals.

(Scripps-McRae News Association.) WASHINGTON, May 2.—Arthur D. Donner, Treasurer of the sugar trust, was the first witness this morning before the Senate committee when it resumed its investigation of the amount of Cuban sugar handled by the trust.

He said the testimony of President Havemeyer yesterday was correct. He denied that the trust had made any advances to Cuban planters on their crops, nor had it made any advances to Cuban banks for subsequent loaning to planters.

The trust had no holdings in lands in Cuba, but what individual stockholders might own he could not say.
