MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S PHILIPPINE VIEWS.

Much has been said regarding the views of George E. Chamberlain on the subject of the Philippines and expansion. He has explained his position upon 50 platforms of Oregon, and has made them explicit. He is an expansionist. He believes in the retention of the Philippines. He recognizes the validity of the title of the United States to the archipelago. He holds that the American nation cannot shift the responsibility of assuring the Filipinos a happy and fortunate future. He believes that those people should be educated so rapidly as possible to the highest possible level of intelligence and civilization. And that if they shall at some time in the future demonstrate their capability so to do, they should be permitted to have such self-government as will be consistent with circumstances existing at the time.

LESSONS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

There are admonitions to both parties in this election. The first is to the Republican party. The defeat of Mr. Furnish is less a rebuke to him personally than it is to the bosses who misapplied the power of ring politics. This state is normally strongly Republican, and it is no slight cause that could convert a Republican majority of 15,000 into a minority on the head of the ticket. Mr. Furnish was not sacrificed to any spirit of revenge. The majority of the people cannot be moved to such volcanic action by such ignoble sentiments. The nomination of Mr. Furnish was not the result of any spontaneous regard for him. It was forced on the party by the strong hand. Otherwise, not even his own exceptional weakness or the exceptional strength of his opponent would have sufficed to beat him. The ring, and no one else, is responsible for a Democratic Governor.

OUR AMERICAN SOLDIER.

Whatever may be the opinions regarding the manner of warfare in the Philippines, one thing must be set down as determined, and that is that no sane person questions the valor, the humanity, the good qualities of the American soldier. If there were mistakes, they were not soldiers. There were exceptions, among the mistakes of the rank and file of the common soldier, and they were exceptions among the officers. The American people know that the ranks of the army are filled with men and boys who come from their own families, who are brother, sweetheart, son or husband in the American homes. They know that those boys were not brutal when they were at home, and they believe that a few months' residence in the antipodes has not operated to altar their natures. Hence, notwithstanding the evidence that may come to hand relating to cases of abuse in the Philippines, the great heart of this nation repudiates them as spurious indictments against the common soldier as a class.

THE BOER SURRENDER.

Regardless of opinions upon the merits otherwise of the Boer contentions, the people of the world will learn gladly that peace comes at last in South Africa. It has been a bitter struggle, costly in human life and treasure. It has been a disturbing element in the civilized world. In countries not directly interested, it has been forcibly brought to the attention of statesmen, diplomats, administrators and rulers. There has been sympathy for the gallant fight of the Boers, and admiration for the loyal response of the young men of England who sprang to the defense of the nation's honor.

AN UNRULY TONGUE.

Hard words are more fatal things than bad deeds. That has illustration in Monday's result. Combined with other things, Judge McGinn's lawless tongue contributed to his small vote. A man of parts, of courage and generosity, mere political misconduct does not explain his slump. In his active career, in law and politics, he has wounded with his bitter speech many men who would have forgotten or forgiven merely injurious acts.

men and the solidity of the empire could insure. The ultimate status of the Boer people is a problem over which Americans will speculate with considerable earnestness. This nation faces a situation in the Philippines that is not entirely unlike that in which the British people were placed when they found the Boer war on their hands. There was a power in South Africa less than the British, who desired absolute independence. Circumstances wrought to cause England to dispute their right to have it. Auxiliary questions were left for the time unsettled, while battle was waged over the main proposition. The theory of England was that, first, her power must be demonstrated, then later questions of other import were to be taken up. She thought that it was a matter of self-preservation that was at stake. She must fight the Boers.

In a degree, the United States is similarly situated with reference to the Eastern archipelago. Largely the same considerations are involved. While probably a majority of the Americans are sympathetic with the Boers, for the reason that in that case our people have to deal with the abstract proposition of justice to a people, and have no self-interests concerned; yet, in the case of the Philippines, it cannot be truthfully denied that a majority of this nation demand that first the flag shall be firmly established, its authority made unquestioned, and then the auxiliary questions worked out as time may suggest. The attitude of the English in the future toward the Boers will influence that of this country toward the Filipinos. The Boer surrender ends the first stage in the later discussion of the Boer problem. Now will follow the contentions of peace, which will not be less strenuous than those of war, albeit they be not of the musket and cannon.

HINTS TO WOMEN

TO CLEAN IVORY. To clean ivory handles of knives mix ammonia and olive oil in equal parts and add enough powdered chalk to make a paste. Rub the ivory with this and let it dry before brushing off. Several applications may be necessary.

WITH COLONIAL.

No wonder women are spending such an unusual amount on hosiery. The Colonial, or, as some call them, "the Eccles," shoes are too modish to be passed by, and to be worn at their best, must be topped by embroidered or lacework hose.

FOR RESTAURANT WEAR.

"Restaurant gowns" for hotel dinner on Sunday evenings are fashion's latest wrinkle. They must be elegantly simple and are fashioned from chiffon, net, lace, crepe de chine, and satin liberties, lavishly trimmed and medallions, insertions or edges of lace.

THE BLOUSE BELT.

The very newest is the blouse belt. This consists of a wide girde of black satin. It is fastened with a brilliant buckle, which is hooked at one side. Upon the other side there is another buckle to match. The idea is that with a blouse waist, all baggy in front, the buckle is hidden and the proper place for it, therefore, is upon the side.

A DELICIOUS SALAD.

The most delightful salad at present is the fruit salad, served in a scooped-out pineapple. In its making all the seasonable fruits are cut finely, covered rather generously with marshmallow, and then left to remain some time in the husk of the pineapple. The strong, delicious odor of this fruit permeates the whole contents, and when served very cold the salad forms one of the truly pleasing novelties of the spring.

THE LATEST EXTRAVAGANCE.

What new extravagance will be chronicled next, none can predict. The latest is the parasol trunk, which is a long, narrow box built for the holding of summer parasols. A stiff pasteboard affair would do as well, with layers of tissue paper to separate the sunshades. Into such a box fully equipped for summer there must be one all white parasol, one all black one, trimmed with black lace; one of white, trimmed with white chiffon flounces, each one edged with black.

TIMELY TIPS.

Tinware can be cleaned readily by rubbing it with a damp cloth dipped in soda; rub briskly and wipe dry. According to a housewife who has made the experiment, a thin coating of varnish applied to ordinary straw matting will keep it looking fresh and new and to its durability. A vegetable strainer of enamel that may easily be clamped to the side of the sink is one of the genuine conveniences for the housewife now on the market.

TO CLEAN VARNISHED PAINT.

To clean varnished paint, like the tea leaves which are left in the teapot, pour some hot water over them, and let them stand 10 minutes. Then pour the tea into a basin. Wash the paint with a clean flannel, and dry with a clean cloth.

TO TAKE OUT FRUIT STAINS FROM COTTON MULLIN OR LIGHT ARTICLES.

To take out fruit stains from cotton mullin or light articles, take the stained article and dampen it. Then burn a little sulphur, holding it under the damp portion of the cloth, and the stain will vanish.

PENSION MONEY

Pensioned soldiers of the Civil, Mexican and Spanish-American wars were largely in evidence at the County Clerk's office all day, receiving their vouchers, etc., from the County Clerk entitling them to receive their money from the United States government. The most of the papers will be sent to the agent at San Francisco, Cal. The pensions range from $5 to $12 per month, paid each quarter.

Unique Advertising.

The Pacific Coast General Advertising Company, Hull & Logan, proprietors, closed its engagement last night with the politicians and business men of Portland. Every night for the past week large crowds have gathered at the corner of Sixth and Washington streets to enjoy the entertainment in the way of moving pictures and stereopticon scenes from all over the world. A great many of the business men have availed themselves of this unique and effective mode of advertising. From Mrs. Hull & Logan proceed on their circuit, taking in all the larger Pacific Coast cities and then

NEW ONES

Are Entered in the Vacation Contest.

There are some surprises in the vacation contest today. It seems that a number of friends of the present contestants are holding back their ballots and the result will be that they become confused as to their own strength. Votes should be sent in at once.

Another new contestant entered today by her friends is Miss Bessie Zimmerman. Hereafter all votes received after 8 a. m. will be included in the count for the following day. Here is the vote for today:

Table listing names and vote counts for the vacation contest, including Miss Etta Windham, Miss Margaret Benedict, Miss Margaret Chapman, etc.

CITY COUNCIL

Mayor Rowe stated today that, notwithstanding the absorbing interest centering in the election, the regular meeting of the City Council would be held today. Owing to the fact that the committee have not met this week, they have no reports to make. The following new petitions have been filed with the City Auditor, and will be presented to the Council today:

Sylvester Pennoyer, deceased, et al., for the improvement of Alder street, from Sixth to Lowndes, with wooden blocks. Rafferty Bros., et al., East Oak, from East Twelfth to East Third.

E. F. Brown et al., East Madison, from East Sixteenth to East Twenty-fourth. Johanna Berg et al., Gantenbein avenue and Ivy street, Riverview Addition. C. R. Donnell et al., Falling street, from Mississippi avenue to Maryland avenue.

Geoy Lung Kee Co., for refunding $50 liquor license money. It is stated that the petitioners were ousted from quarters leased at No. 55 Second street. A license had been taken out for three months, and but half of the time had expired when they were dispossessed of the premises.

The following remonstrances were filed: A. Dilley et al., against improvement of First street, from Curry to Pennoyer, unless the street is also improved from Curry to Whittaker, and from Pennoyer to Gaines.

F. Gurdorff et al., against improvement of Water street.

KNIFE IN HIS HEART

NEW YORK, June 4.—How William Barrett got a knife blade thrust into his breast and broken off so that the point of it pressed his heart and eventually killed him, and all without he or any of his family seeming to know anything of it, is a puzzle which the police and Coroner's offices had presented to them.

SLOW WORK

How Election Officers Earn Their Money.

To those whose interest in the election kept them out until midnight Monday night, or whose labors in connection therewith required them to be out until that hour, an interesting sight was to be observed. That a great many did not observe it is not the fault of the parties most concerned. They did their best to neglect the very duties they had sworn to perform.

A couple of newspaper men who had led the strenuous life incidental to the election started for their homes at about 12:15 in order to get acquainted with their families. At the corner of West Park and Yamhill streets there was a booth, a very pretty booth, all striped and fair. Through force of habit the scribes toddled wearily up the gang plank leading to the little tent to ask the stereotyped question of "What's the figures?" It wasn't that they cared to know—they were too tired for that. It was just a case of their journalistic conscience getting in its way—that was all.

The pencil-pusher was saved the trouble of making any inquiry for there wasn't anyone in the tent to answer questions. The lamps had the whole business to themselves. No, not exactly, for they had the two ballot boxes to keep them company. Right across the street there is a dining-room at which vacant stomachs are filled for a consideration. Seated at the table therein were the judges and clerks of election, eating their pie and other things.

It was nice and pleasant to see them there engaged—reaping the virtuous reward their earnest labors so much deserved. No one could begrudge them their midnight meal, but the thought would present itself as to the splendid opportunity the occasion offered for anyone who might desire to monkey with the returns or run away with the lamps as souvenirs of the bloodless battle wherein Mr. Furnish didn't do up Mr. Chamberlain.

This instance is no rare one, either, for this sort of thing was quite the proper caper, don't you know, all over town. Of course the laborer must be fed. Steam must be kept up, even if it has to be fed with steam beer and things. Of course the officer of election would be so bad and wicked as to drink beer on election day. No one does that, of course, and the wise and beneficent framers of the laws fixed up a Legislative arrangement which says that bars shall not be kept open on the day of election. So they are not.

At the particular booth in question the officers of election must have been unusually thirsty. In spite of the fact that they were banqueting across the street at a time when they should have been tabulating returns and counting ballots, they left behind them their teapots and every one of them was empty.

Regardless of the fact that loyal citizens were yelling themselves hoarse and awaiting the returns that never came, the officers sat and ate, with surprising slowness. It was nothing to them that hundreds of persons were impatiently standing in the rain awaiting reports or that business was being done with bad headaches caused by anxiety. It was nothing to them that the money they should have been willing to work for was not being earned. It was the people's money, so no one cared. The only redeeming feature about the remarkably rapid manner in which Oregon election officials fail to count up the votes and turn in their returns in one day as is done everywhere else, is that it gives them just one more day to pull on the public treasury. This helps deserving families and is a touching evidence of loyalty and devotion to the public service.
