PORTLAND, ORE., JUNE 11, 1902

TO COUNT HIM OUT.

Canvass of the vote by the county board means little or nothing. It does not go deep enough to detect original errors.

This is the most significant thing that has been written since the election. Canvass by the county board means enough to be the basis of the certificates of election of every officer in the state except Governor.

Another thing is to be noticed, which may be accidental. The official count has reduced Mr. Chamberlain's majority in several counties below that reported to the press and both headquarters after the election.

HOW TO DRAW IT.

To obviate any necessity for prolonged labor over flat salaries, we have concluded at our own expense to frame a bill that we are assured will accomplish the purpose, leaving the blanks only to be filled in by the Legislature.

The Governor shall receive an annual salary of $—
The Secretary of State shall receive an annual salary of $—

And the clause in relation to State Printer may be made to read as follows: The State Printer shall receive an annual salary of $— and such expenses as he may actually incur at no more than the usual and ordinary rates and prices.

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE.

The right to strike and to boycott has long been recognized. It results from freedom. In like manner the right to resist strikes and boycotts must also be recognized.

Aggravated abuse. Trifling disagreements do not justify either party in contumaciously injuring general business interests. After all, the justice of the cause on either side is the only test of its righteousness and public opinion the only effective court.

Whether the difference between nine or 10 hours for a day's work in the planing mills is ground for drastic measures is now before the court of public opinion.

BLOODHOUNDS.

The bringing of bloodhounds from Walla Walla to track the Salem murderers probably raises the idea in most minds of fierce dogs that trail men to find them in pieces. On the contrary, the genuine bloodhound is an affectionate animal that follows the trail because that is his inbred instinct.

They hunted down a murderer in Nebraska, through a town where hundreds of feet had crossed and re-crossed his trail, but the dogs were unerring in their course.

A mule thief in Nebraska gave them a difficult task. There was no article from which to give them the scent, but they followed the mule. To throw them off, the thief juddered the mule's feet, but forgot that in stopping to do so, he gave the dogs his own scent.

A negro at St. Joseph was tracked through a passenger depot where several thousand people had passed after the negro had gone through, several hours before, and was caught in the outskirts of the city.

A popular notion exists that bloodhounds were plentiful before the Civil War in the South, and were used to track runaway negroes. But that is an error. The dogs used for that purpose were usually ordinary deerhounds, sometimes crossed with the Dane, and were absolutely harmless.

The article in question asserts that the few genuine bloodhounds in the South at the close of the war were killed by the soldiers, and became extinct.

While the bloodhound is not blood-thirsty, he is vengeful and never forgives an intentional insult or injury. And he is quite capable of knowing whether his hurt is accidental or intentional.

The marvelous sense of smell of this hound, which can pick up the odor of a human foot days after it has passed, makes him invaluable in tracking fugitives.

It would be a good investment for the state to keep a kennel at the penitentiary. Their very presence there would deter attempts to escape by the knowledge of its hopelessness.

About $5,000 is needed to conduct kindergartens by the school board. This would require only a levy of a fraction over a mill on the assessed valuation.

The other day the sidewalk inspector ordered the agent of some property to repair a wooden sidewalk in front of the property.

bid the repair, which was done. Then the great editor, dipped his pen in gall and scribbled the agent for putting down the wooden sidewalk. Between these conflicting commands, Mr. Ross is in despair, of obeying the editors and at the same time pleasing the editor.

The managers of the 1905 Fair are doubtless giving indefatigable attention to the arrangements. The public, however, are likely to get impatient without report of progress is made from time to time.

Senator Hanna is having some trouble with "malignant, treacherous" Republicans in Ohio, and Mr. Quay is purging the Pennsylvania Republican party of a number of "whipper-snappers."

The President and Mr. Hanna have had an interview about the violation of the civil service rules by Ohio Federal officeholders. The report says that the President will take no further notice of the matter.

Some of the primary grade teachers oppose the kindergarten because they say that these grades are overcrowded and the money ought to go toward paying more teachers.

While the Republicans all voted for Governor Geer and the Democrats all voted for Mr. C. E. S. Wood—these comprising substantially all the voters in Oregon—under that law which Mr. Mays kindly provided for their amusement, the real play is going on behind the scenes.

The compliments of the "mean, malignant, treacherous, revengeful Republicans" and "local whipper-snappers," to Mr. Harvey Scott beg to acknowledge the honor of his distinguished disapprobation, and to assure him that his sentiments are entirely reciprocated.

The linotypes erroneously used imply that Judge Henry McGinn—once more Senator McGinn—is not usually "frank." But that is not our opinion of him.

Governor Whitaker, the first Governor of Oregon, is still living at Eugene. He and Governor Moody are the only living ex-Governors of the state.

A number of those "malignant, treacherous" Republicans are in the city from Eastern Oregon. They are curious to see what a Multnomah Republican is like when he gets through a six years' bolt.

Even in the matter of gaining votes on the official count, Mr. Chamberlain is giving Mr. Furbush a run for his money.

The union planing mill claims that it can get plenty of lumber to run with. It is not a complaining mill.

The beef trusts would like to know what we are all "beefing" about.

Notwithstanding the merger suits, the railroads still merge.

Farmer Bryan.
A farmer's life is the life for me;
To see the shining spray
Go rustling through the grass I feed
My thousand-dollar heifer.

Success.
He sighed for literary fame,
He burned and yearned to see his name
In all the leading magazines.

SOCIAL PORTLAND.

The Council of Jewish Women held its annual reception at Parsons hall yesterday afternoon, when a pleasant afternoon was spent in a social way after the regular business was attended to.

For once in the history of the Portland Woman's Club, no president has been selected before the election.

The new cars for the road are being constructed at the Sawyer street barn, the old frames of the motor trailers being used in their construction.

ANOTHER OUTRAGE.

With the advent of large numbers of strangers to Portland due to conventions and other gatherings of like nature, the necessity of a reform in the matter of indicating the proper names of the streets has become once more apparent.

One of the visitors to the city went out to look up a friend. He had to inquire his way every few blocks, lest he become lost, for there were not even scrap tin signs left to guide him on his way.

Columbia University Notes.

James Murphy, ex-vice president of Columbia University, started today for a trip to San Francisco. He will be absent during vacation.

Work will soon be started on the grading for the new campus. A fine new baseball diamond will be laid out.

Plans have been drawn for the new gymnasium for the University. It will have all the latest equipments.

POLITE TO THE DEATH

(Journal Special Service.)
NEW YORK, June 11.—Excusing himself for a moment from the dinner table, at which were seated his wife, his two sons and two guests who had been invited to spend the evening, Frederick E. Leland, a prominent politician of the Bronx, went to his room, and with no apparent motive, shot himself in the head, dying almost instantly.

NEW CODE.

Oregon lawyers are looking forward with some anxiety to the time when the new code prepared by Judge Bellinger and W. W. Cotton shall be ready for use. The work will comprise 500 pages. All the copy is in the hands of a local printing firm. The new code will consist of two volumes. Already several hundred pages of the work have been set up and part of these are printed.

Talk of New Steamer.

There is some talk of steps being taken to put on a small steamer between Eureka, Cal., and Portland. It is said that the increasing trade at the coastwise points will justify this move. President Beach, of the Board of Trade, is taking an interest in the matter, and D. C. McDonald, a large jobber at Eureka, is also lending his assistance to the project.
