

HOLD UP

Clarence Atterbury a Victim of Colored Couple.

A very daring holdup occurred on Salmon street, near Sixth, last night, when Clarence Atterbury, a steamboat man, was relieved of $2 by a colored man and woman.

Atterbury was walking down Salmon street when the woman, who was in the rear, called to him. Wondering what was wanted, he went back. A colored man suddenly jumped out from a shadow and, brandishing a knife, threw his arm around the astonished Atterbury's neck. The woman, with hands of an expert, then stepped up and quickly rifled the victim's pockets.

During the melee an elderly gentleman came up and was asked by Atterbury to watch the man while he chased the woman, who was fast disappearing in the darkness with the coin. After a short chase the fugitive escaped. In the meantime the man also took to his heels and disappeared.

The case was reported to the police, and armed with an accurate description, Detectives Day, Weiner and Candano had George Tyler and Estelle Williams under arrest within an hour.

When shown the prisoners, Atterbury, without hesitation, positively identified both as the ones who held him up, and they were locked up.

"We have had this woman in here several times for North End 'touchies,'" said Chief McLaughlin this morning, "but have never been able to convict her. It is very discouraging, to say the least, to bring colored people in here time and again and then have them beat us out in the courts. With positive identification, I would not be surprised in the least to see these people guilty as they are; escape punishment. How they do this I don't know, but it makes me very tired."

WOMEN MAY VOTE MONDAY

Hundreds of the women of the city do not know that they may vote at the school election next Monday if they own property and are assessed for a total of $100 worth.

The matter has been agitated somewhat in past elections, but it has been found during the present discussion of the free kindergarten movement that there are large numbers of women who are not aware that they have the right of suffrage in elections that concern the school district under the provisions here in cited.

Some of the ladies who are strong supporters of the universal suffrage idea are anxious that this fact shall be made generally known to the public, and one of them said to The Journal that she believed the free kindergarten would without doubt carry on Monday next if only the women all knew that they have a voice in the election. The W. C. T. U. at their meeting at the Taylor-street M. E. Church on Wednesday decided that they would make special effort to inform the women that they may assist in settling the matter if their names appear on the tax rolls. The members of that organization are now engaged in quite a general attempt to get out the women to take part in the election.

CLERKS ELECT OFFICERS.

At a meeting of the Clerks' Union last night at Almy's hall the following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: President, T. H. Peary; first vice president, Miss M. Reed; second vice president, E. S. Adams; guide, W. E. Carlson; financial secretary, Louis Wies; corresponding secretary, J. E. Weber; treasurer, Fred Peterson; trustees, Alfred and E. Gunther; statistical secretary, Miss Goldman.

New bylaws were adopted and 22 candidates were initiated, besides 15 applications were brought in at this meeting. This union is now the strongest in the city, having a membership of over 600.

OCEANO ARRIVES.

The steamship Oceano arrived in port this morning at 6 o'clock and anchored at Montgomery dock No. 2. She came from Morocco, and was 19 days in making the passage. Captain McIntyre said that the vessel encountered particularly strong easterly gales, and for this reason the trip was somewhat prolonged. With fair weather and under ordinary circumstances the voyage can be made in 15 days. The Oceano is under charter to Kerr, Gifford & Co., and will load out for South Africa. She will probably not begin taking on cargo before Saturday.

Policeman's Murder Recalled.

Hanging on the wall of the detectives' quarters at the city prison is a large picture of Charles F. Schoppa, who was murdered while in the performance of his duty, 25 years ago tomorrow. Schoppa was one of the first members of the police force and was on his way to headquarters to resign and accept the position of county jailer. Hearing a saloon brawl, Schoppa investigated, and in attempting to arrest a carpenter named Gibson, was shot to death.

WHALEBONES FOR MUSEUM

L. L. Hawkins' ambition to secure for the City Museum the finest specimen jaw bones of a whale has been realized. Two monster lower jaw bones of the Wright species of whale, measuring 20 feet and four inches, and weighing over 2000 pounds, were received this morning from Newport, where they had been originally found on the beach near the Newport lighthouse. The mammal drifted ashore there about 12 years ago. It then measured 120 feet 4 inches. The remains attracted widespread attention. An excursion party went from Albany to view the carcass. Much of the blubber had been cut away, and it was evident that the prize had broken away from some whaling vessel. For the past year or two Mr. Hawkins has been negotiating for the bones, but before he could secure them the owner had bargained them to John Grills, formerly of Newport, who intended to tour the country with the curiosities. Mr. Hawkins, however, finally induced Mr. Grills to part with the property, in consideration of liberal payment. The head has not been secured yet, although Mr. Haykins states that he has an option on it and will close the deal in a few days.

The new specimens outmeasure those already on hand over five feet. The old ones were considered the largest of their kind on the Pacific Coast.

Accompanying the jaw bones is what is designated by Mr. Grills as the tail of a sea serpent. The tail-like structure is about four feet in length. The bones are almost round; they taper from nearly a foot in diameter down to several inches and are joined by cartilage.

INJURY MAY BE SERIOUS

E. L. (Jerry) Caldwell, a well known newspaper man, is confined to his home at 267 Grant street, perhaps seriously injured by a fall upon the asphalt pavement at the corner of Third and Washington streets shortly before noon today. Mr. Caldwell was picked up unconscious from the severe blow received on the back of the head. He was carried into the drug store at Second and Washington. Dr. Littlefield and the railroad company's physician were called and ordered the injured man taken to his home. He regained consciousness later, and at 1:30 o'clock seemed to suffer but little pain. Those who witnessed the fall differ as to how it occurred. Sam Lotan says the handle at the rear end of the car struck Mr. Caldwell in the breast, knocking him violently backward. Others state that Mr. Caldwell was not struck by the car at all, but fell just after alighting from the side rail, presumably from an attack of vertigo.

Bound for Ft. Snelling.

Early this morning a train in two sections arrived here from San Francisco on the Southern Pacific with 500 soldiers on board. They were in command of Adjutant Morrow, a son of General Morrow. Another train will arrive tonight with 500 men and officers. At 10:30 this morning the first detachment went East over the Northern Pacific. Both detachments are going to Fort Snelling, Minn.

PRIZES FOR FLOWERS

The work of the Civic Improvement Association is going along finely. The members are busy now preparing for their mass meeting for children.

More than 300 plants have been donated to the association for distribution. The plan they have under consideration is to distribute plants to the children, and in the fall to call another mass meeting and give prizes to the children getting the best results from their plants. Prizes for this purpose have already been donated by leading business houses of this city.

Looked Like Escapes.

Some excitement was caused on the East Side yesterday morning by the appearance on the streets of two men who resembled the escaped murderers, Tracy and Morrill.

The men were seen to get off one of the Southern Pacific's incoming freight trains and were followed uptown by a couple of East Side young men. One of the men wore striped overalls and the other wore the clothes which tallied exactly with the description of those stolen from a man in Salem.

The suspects made their way up East Washington street, after smoothing out their ruffled clothes, and continued up that street for several blocks, when they turned toward the Burnside bridge, which was open.

One of the young men doing the trailing, who was ever seeing the $2000 reward and was figuring what he was going to do with so large a sum, went to the fire engine house on East Third and East Pine streets, whence he telephoned the police to the west end of the bridge to intercept the suspected men. When the police arrived they found that the two men were only a couple of typical hoboes and they were not molested. Then the young man's $2000 disappeared.

The memorial is in behalf of Andrew Carnegie, Charles Francis Adams, Carl Schurz and Edwin Burritt Smith.

Team Runs Away.

The farm team of F. Brode, a Mt. Tabor fruitgrower, became frightened and ran away yesterday morning about two miles from town. The breaking of one of the straps on the neck yoke was the cause. The team was loaded with strawberries and gooseberries, which were scattered for several miles. The horses were captured near Richmond.

CARPENTERS ACT

Will Now Do All Building Offered.

C. Bomberger, treasurer of the local Carpenters' Union, received a letter yesterday from W. D. Huber, president of the International Union, and the communication was read last night at the regular weekly meeting. The letter refers to the strike situation, and is in part as follows: "You are too well organized in your city and have too many men of experience and good judgment to ever allow yourself to get whipped in a fight of this kind. There are other localities where the contractors can get all the material they desire."

"If the Master Builders do not desire to resume work, what is the matter with the journeymen carpenters taking the work themselves? If you are forced to do so, operations can go on just the same, as the journeymen carpenters have to do it, anyhow, and the bosses only hang around and look at them. You know that as well as I do. By adopting such methods you will gain the sympathy of the outside public, and so long as a majority of the contractors are outside of the Builders' Association, I believe you have the best end of it. It is very apparent that you have the same to contend with in Portland that we do everywhere else."

"He approved of the strike in every particular and urged the carpenters to a man to assist in carrying the matter to a successful issue."

This idea was acted upon and the carpenters will take all building contracts that they can secure. It is believed that no trouble will be experienced in getting fair material.

Academy Commencement.

Bishop Scott Military Academy held its annual commencement exercises today. At 8:30 a competitive drill took place which was a fine example of the training the cadets have received. Immediately after this the commencement exercises were held in the chapel.

After the opening services the annual report of the principal, A. C. Newhall, was read, showing the condition of the academy and its membership. An essay was read by Marion W. Fish, this year's graduate, it being a study suggested by Shakespeare's lines: "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings." The composition was excellent and the theme ably treated. Rev. Mr. Hammond of Oregon City then addressed the students, and the exercises closed with the award of prizes. Robert L. Campbell won the prize given by the bishop for best deportment and scholarship. George Lewis, son of John G. Lewis, president of the Aberdeen State Bank, Aberdeen, Wash., received the prize for greatest proficiency in manual training, and Marion Fisk the prize for greatest proficiency in English. Bishop Morris awarded the prizes and medals.

TO OPEN LONG LOCKED VAULT

John Barbey, a local lock smith, has been employed by the board of school directors to force an entrance into the combination vault in the office of the Board at the City Hall. The door has not been opened for about six years. There are some records and plats in the vault besides a lot of election ballot boxes. It was the need of the latter in the school elections Monday that caused the directors to have the combination worked by an expert. In former years the job had been deferred, and as a store-room down stairs was being used in place of the extra vault, the Board was content to let the safe remain closed up. No one around here has the combination. Miss C. C. Richardson, a stenographer in the school clerk's office, some six years ago knew it, but the Board discontinued the use of the vault owing to the extra work entailed running up and down the stairs. A part of the contents were never removed, however. Finally Miss Richardson went away and eventually married and settled in Denver, Colorado. Since what was supposed to be the key to the combination was procured from the factory in Cincinnati, but it would not work. The old factory had burned down and as safes made now are of different pattern, the proper key was not to be had.

Lock smith Barbey, who has opened many safes in this manner by the drilling process, says he will have to go through about three inches of steel and one burglar-proof plate to reach the inner combination. He is using a hand drill and the work must be done slowly and with great caution lest the drill breaks off inside.

Salmon Scarce.

Salmon are becoming scarce in the upper Willamette, and very light shipments are arriving from there now. Fishing has been altogether abandoned along the Clackamas, but some fishermen are still at work near the falls at Oregon City. Only four or five boxes are being sent here daily, as against 50 to 75 boxes which came when the season first opened. Those caught now are nearly all of the Chinook variety.
