Grain.

LONDON, June 26.— Holiday. California prompt. English country markets quiet.

LIVERPOOL, June 26.—Holiday. French country markets not quoted.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Wheat—July, closed, 79c; September, 77⅞c.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Wheat—July, 73¼c; September, 72¼@72⅜c. Corn—July, 68⅜c; September, 60⅞@61. Oats—July, 39⅝; new, 44⅝.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Wheat—December, $1.14⅝; May, $1.17¼. Barley—December, 88½c.

THE MARKETS.

Nothing unusual occurred in the local wholesale markets today. No changes appear in any of the quotations. The grain market appears about the same as usual. The outlook for a fair crop of wheat this year is promising.

The market is still overstocked with bananas of all grades. Quotations have not been changed for the first class variety, but a large amount of the fruit is being sold under those figures. A small shipment of California grapes are in the market but as yet have not been priced. The supply is too small to set any definite quotation. The supply of strawberries is decreasing very rapidly, the quality being rather poor. They are selling at 5 cents and 6 cents a pound. In the retail markets a small stock of raspberries and currents are on hand, the wholesale houses not yet receiving any of the fruit as yet.

The supply of fresh meats is still very small, and a general stiffening of quotations is noted.

WEDDING TOUR INCIDENT.

The Bride's Embarrassing Meeting With Her Former Fiance.

She is very pretty and no one wonders that her husband is much in love with her to this day, but she tells this story of a bad half hour on her wedding journey:

"I was 18," she said, "when I was married, and had been engaged to my husband a year, but preceding both engagement and marriage I was sort of engaged, schoolgirl fashion, to another young fellow. It was one of those tangible engagements that melt into thin air when the real prince comes, but fervid enough while they last. In this case my interest in the affair cooled with the rapidity of a collapsing balloon, and as the youth lived in a distant city, no embarrassing explanations were necessary.

"So I was married, and the wedding journey included a stop of several days in a town on the Ohio River, where we had a cosy table all to ourselves at the hotel. It was at dinner one day that the patriarchal waiter approached and asked if we would object to another gentleman and lady being placed at our table.

"Bride like yourself, Missy," he added, confidentially as he passed my chair. In a moment he ushered to their places the other couple, and I looked up to encounter my former fiancee, consternation and amazement written on every line of his face. Lacking the wit or wisdom of experienced years, I dropped my eyes without further recogniton than rapid paling and flushing of countenance and he, following my lead, began discussing the menu with his wfe.

"The dinner proceeded in such appalling silence, so far as I was concerned, as to fairly paralyze my husband, and explanations were in order as soon as we returned to our apartments. Then how we laughed and went in search of the rival couple, only to find they had left the hotel immedately after the meal, and we have never heard of either of them since."—Baltimore Sun.

Assassin-Proof Palace.

The Sultan's palace at Constantinople is a monument to fear. It is assassin-proof, bomb-proof, earthquake-proof, fire-proof, microbe-proof. Architects and engineers are building and rebuilding incessantly. Some new secret retreat is always under way. The entire domain is surrounded by an immense wall, 30 feet high, and the choicest troops of the empire stand guard around it. An inner wall, 12 feet thick, with gates of iron, incloses the private residence itself. The walls of the Sultan's dwellings are filled with armor plate to resist projectiles. It is said that a mysterious passage connects with 10 secret bed chambers forming an intricate labyrinth. No one but his body attendant knows where the Sultan may sleep during any particular night.

He has electric lights and telephones in his own apartments, but forbids them in Constantinople. Telephones might prove handy for conspirators, and he believes that a dynamite cartridge could be sent over a wire into the palace. He fears electric explosions, so Constantinople still gets along with gas light. He hates the word dynamo, because it sounds like dynamite.

Balloons are tabooed, lest one should pause over him long enough to drop a chunk of explosive. As to the real luxury of the Yildiz, that is a matter of course. The domain is a small world in itself. Five thousand people live within the outer wall, not counting the small army of workmen and the 7,000 imperial guardsmen. There are shops, factories, arsenals, stables, a library, museums, picture gallery, theater, and even a menagerie. The monarch loves trees, but he keeps their branches well lopped off, so that he can see the furthest corner of his palace grounds.

LIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS.

Loafer—Any chance of a job o' work 'ere, mister?

Foreman—No; we're not wanting any more hands now.

Loafer—Well, the little bit o' work I'd do wouldn't make any difference!—Punch.

"Can you twist him around your finger?"

"Yes; but he gets 'broke' so easily it isn't worth while."—Judge.

Violet—Did you know they had a crew at Wellsley?

Jim Jam—They have? Case of "pretty maids all in a row."—Harvard Lampoon.

Jasper—Dear! dear! I thought we had enough college graduates already, and now comes the Rhodes endowment. What shall we do with this new crop?

Jumpuppe—Well, I think a good way to get rid of them would be to appoint them librarians of Carnegie libraries.—Town Topics.

The Host—I'm more than sorry, Colonel, but you know I never have wine on my table when my children are present.

The Colonel—No offense, sir. I'd just as soon have whisky and water.—Brooklyn Life.

Nature, Science and Industry.

It is generally believed that the mushroom is an especially nutritious food; hence it is sometimes called "vegetable beefsteak." Recent analyses, however, indicate that its nutritive value has been much overestimated. These results show that it would require about 10 pounds of mushrooms to furnish the equivalent of one pound of beefsteak, and there is little reason to believe that this vegetable possesses any more food value than other fresh vegetables. It is, however, rich in potassium salts, and has, perhaps, some special value on this account.

Sixty years ago Lord Durham modestly expressed his belief that railway trains really could be run in Canada during the winter. Now a line is being pushed through far north of the Canadian Pacific. The managers of the latter railway have their eye on this new country, and there is talk of their building a new line into the Saskatchewan region.

England has sent $1,757,500 gold to Germany thus far in 1902, against only $46,500 in 1901. In fact, it imported $1,224,500 gold from there up to May, 1901, and has got practically nothing this year.

Two periodic comets are expected to return during the present year. The first was originally discovered by Temple at Marseilles in 1869 and revolves about the sun every five and a half years. It was independently discovered by Swift in California in 1880 and was again found by Barnard at the Lick Observatory in 1891. It was not seen in 1886 and in 1897, nor between 1869 and 1880. It is expected to return early in December, 1902. The second comet was discovered by Swift in California in 1895, and its period is about seven years. It is not improbably identical with the comet discovered by Messier at Marseilles in 1770. It was expected to return in 1775, but in passing close to Jupiter its orbit was greatly altered. It will return toward the end of November, 1902.

Not long ago M. Camille Flammarion proposed a new calendar with a new division of the year and new names for the months. His proposal has evidently borne fruit, for a little almanac has just been issued at Madrid in which the year is divided into four periods of three months each, all equal and all of 91 days. The new style of year begins March 21 and has an extra holiday to make up the 365 days which nature invented. The months are named in order: Truth, Science, Wisdom; Justice, Honor, Goodness; Love, Beauty, Humanity; Happiness, Progress, Immortality. It gives a vivid idea of the liesure at the command of certain of our fellow beings to read solemn pseudo-scientific fooling of the sort. The Western continent is too busy to be much affected by it.

OBSERVATION CAR.

In Washington is Bunka Uyeda of Tokyo, Japan, vice-inspector of the government monopoly bureau.

"The Government of Japan," said Mr. Uyeda, "controls all the imports of leaf tobacco, and no private parties can buy in foreign countries. I have been living in Richmond, Va., for the past year in order to learn the methods of classification employed in this country. I think that in course of time Japan will be able to produce a great part of the tobacco consumed by our people, but at present olny a small percentage of the supply is raised at home."

"I was in Russia ast month," said R. C. Milwood of San Francisco, "and I hope it will be many a day before I travel again in the Czar's dominions.

"I have no complaint against the people. The important men in that country are very hospitable and courteous, and show every attention to an American who comes well recommended. What annoyed me was the miserable system of police inspection. As soon as you arrive in a town your passport must be given up for examination, and if found all right it is endorsed on the back in their puzzling chirography that looks a good bit like our own, yet is totally different.

"This process is repeated everywhere. You are generally free from personal bother, for the landlord of your hotel will be your middle man with the police, for which you have to pay a small fee. The most important inspection of all is when you get to the frontier on going out of the country. Here the Government official must certify that your conduct while a sejourner in the land has been exemplary. I saw a young Englishman that overlooked this formality detained until he complied with the regulations. He was in a hurry to get home to be married, and the volley of good Saxon cusswords that he used didn't expedite his departure a particle."

What does it mean that the St. Paul Globe isn't to be the official Democratic organ any more? Mushroom Quarries of Paris.

South of the city of Paris the country is honeycombed with abandoned quarries, some of which are of enormous extent, resembling the shafts of great mines, from 300 yards to 120 feet beneath the surface of the ground. In these old quarries are grown nearly all the mushrooms consumed in the French capital. The mushrooms flourish in these caverns at all seasons, and they have in Paris the reputation of being superior in flavor to those grown elsewhere. The worst enemy of the mushroom growers is a species of fly which swarms through the dark passages in such numbers as sometimes to extinguish the candles of the workmen. The larvae of this fly destroy the beds before the shoots have emerged above the ground.—Youth's Companion.
