But a Striker Picket Went Back to Work.

Was Sent to do Guard Duty and Got a Job Instead.

The Amalgamated Woodworkers, who have been locked out since May 1, suffered a desertion from their ranks this morning, and the union is greatly amused at the way it happened.

The men have been following the time honored custom for some time of sending pickets to the different mills to watch edings and make daily reports as to the way things are going. The men have been taking turn about in perform-

Testerday one of their number, who had not been about the milis for some time, strongly urged the officers to send him, as he believed that he would be able to do them more good than any one else. His arguments were persuasive and he was sent to the Hand mill as a picket. No sooner had he arrived there than he seked Mr. Hand if he needed a good man. The proprietor replied that he did, and the picket man was immediately put to work. Then he sent word back to the union that he had struck the best job in the mill and that the strike had proved a great thing to him. He also sent word that he would continue to act in the capacity of a picket by telling the other en that they could quit if they wanted to, but as far as he is personally conperned he intended to stay with his job. diling: "It is the softest snap I ever ed in my life."

THAT $500 FINE

Pronounce Unconstitional and It May Be Withdrawn.

At a special meeting held recently by the Building Trades Council it was decided by a small majority of those present to impose a fine of $500 upon the Carpenters' Union because some of its members insisted upon working with material from the boycotted planing mills. Many of the building trades people are of the opinion that such action is unwithdrawn. The proposition did not meet with general favor or support, and many of the most informed members fought against its adoption.

The Carpenters' Union, as a body, believes in boycotting the material from the mills, but some of its members entertain different opinion, and are working with it. The matter is causing coniderable contention in the council, and may lead to some serious developments. The master builders have won some of the cerpenters over to their side, and this seems to be the origin of

MONTAVILLA SCHOOL TROUBLE

A great row has been stirred up in the Montavilla school district over the last school election. It is afleged that instead of a secret ballot being taken for the offices of Director and Clerk, that those present at the time called for the ayes and noes on the single candidate for the two offices, and they were elected by acclamation. It is alleged by prominent taxpayers of the district that they had no notice of any such method being taken for the election of the school, if-ficers and consequently they were unable

The proposition of the directors giving ach teacher a present of $100 at the close of the term is also causing dissention residents of the district. They claim that the Directors had no legal right to throw away the district's money in any such manner, and they propose to see whether the $500 given away cannot be collected from the directors by

of the residents of the district and they say that the matter will be pushed to the finish. A prominent resident of the district, in speaking of the matter, said that he thought the action of the directors was all wrong, as the district could not very well spare the money. He claimed that just because property is high now and taxes are coming in at a lively rate there is no reason to believe that it will always remain so. He argued that perhape in the near future the district may need that $800.

As the Train Passed Along. He had been a brakeman on the G-Railroad, but owing to injuries received in the service he had been given a less hazardous position as station agent at a small place on the line of the road. The fast mail and express, which was dut at midnight, was reported four hours late, so he thought he could get in a pretty fair night's rest by setting his alarm clock about an hour ahead of the time when the train was likely to come as he needed little time to perform the only duty required of him, vis., to see that the sack of mail was properly hook-ed on the crane, so that the extending arm of the fast mail car would securely catch it as the train went by.

The alarm' clock, of course, upon this occasion failed to work, and he was wakened by the shricking of the whistle of the locomotive as it warned the station of the coming of the train. He jumped for the sack and his trousers. grabbed both, rushed out on the platform, made an accurate throw, and whiz! away sped the train. He turned to pick up his trousers, when he found that he had thrown them on the crane, and they whether or not be dressed in the mail sack-but enough said.

TUSKS OF A MAMMOTH.

Found in Texas and Now in New York -They Settle a Scientific Doubt.

A pair of tusks from a mammoth that lived at least 50,000 and possibly 100,000 years ago has just been received at the American Museum of Natural History from Victoria, Tex., where they were found in an old river-bed deposit; The particularly interesting thing about them is that they are the largest ever found. Professor Lucas, curator of the National Museum at Washington, as authority for that statement.

The larger of the two tusks measured on the outside curve is 13 feet and some inches in length. The estimated height of the mammoth to which they belonged is thirteen feet. Jumbo was 11 feet high. Another comparison which gives some notion of the size of the mammoth is with the skeleton of the mastoden that was found in a peat bog near Newburgh, and is the largest complete fossil skeleton in the American Museum, in this city. The tusks of that skeleton, which curve out over the aisle and are about the first thing noticed by the visitor to that part of the museum, are only nine

The mammoth tusks just received were found in a deposit contemporary with the ice age. Although once ivory, they are now completely petrified, and one of them is badly weathered. A portion of the skull was found with them, and this is being built up with a plaster skull to show, when exhibited, the size and shape of the origin.-New York Sun.
