TRUE DREAMS

Superstitions That Are Popular Among Sporting Men.

The gambler, waiting on the corner to get a car home, yawned, for it was so early that the morning was still pink, and the gambler had been sitting up all night.

"There are many well known superstitions connected with poker," he said. "I am acquainted with half a dozen cases where, in the game, dreams have come true. Jesse James, the outlaw, dreamed one night that he held on the deal a pair of trays, discarded, three and won heavily on an ace full. He was playing a few weeks later, and on his first hand the pair of trays coming, he recalled his dream and whispered it to the man next him. Then he began to whoop things up, and on that hand he came out $1,800 to the good, for his dream, you see, came true in every detail.

"E. Berry Wall, the New Yorker, was told by a palmist that he ought to play the races, betting on horses whose names were those of colors. He looked the papers over that night, and Scarlet was the only colored nag entered for the next day. Scarlet was a 20-1 shot, and Berry Wall laid $50 on him. Wall drove away from the track that night with $800 tucked in his clothes.

"Policy goes by dreams and superstitions altogether. My servant girl dreamed she had a gold tooth last month, and next morning she put a week's wages on the gold row flat and won $300.

"These are all authenticated cases," said the gambler, "and I can vouch for them."—Philadelphia Record.

A. O. U. W. SESSION

Committees of the Degree of Honor Appointed.

At the afternoon session yesterday of the Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., the Supreme Master Workman, Webb McCall, of Gayland, Kan., was received. He made a short address in which he spoke of the general condition of the order and the work to be taken up by it.

A committee from the Degree of Honor was admitted in the afternoon. Mrs. Mamie Briggs was spokesman of the committee and extended the greeting of the Degree of Honor to the Grand Lodge, The Upchurch Lodge, No. 126, invited the Supreme Lodge to pay a visit at the meeting tonight, which was accepted.

The Grand Lodge met this morning at 9 o'clock and consumed the greater portion of the forenoon in discussing the best method to adopt to prevent suspensions. Various members entered into the debate, and able arguments were presented.

The Supreme Master Workman, Webb McCall, presented to Grand Master Hogue a complete set of Grand Lodge officers' jewels as a token of esteem for the hospitality which has been extended him during his visit here. In behalf of the officers, Grand Master Hogue accepted the gifts, expressing his thanks in a brief but neat speech.

The special order of business this afternoon will be the election of officers. William E. Smith, of Baker City, will probably be the next Grand Master. It is the intention to install the new officers tomorrow, after which the session will likely be concluded.

The members reported that the river excursion was thoroughly enjoyed last evening. Everett's orchestra provided elegant music. After going down the river 25 miles the party returned, reaching here at 11:45.

FROG FARMING

The Industry Officially Reported to Be Profitable.

Frog farming as an industry is assuming large proportions in many parts of Canada. Not only are large shipments of frogs' legs made to the United States, but there is a growing demand for the luxury in many of the large centers of the Dominion.

One of the most successful frog farms is in Ontario. Last year it produced 500 pounds of dressed frogs' legs and 7000 living frogs for scientific purposes and for stocking other waters.

The deputy commissioner of fisheries for Ontario reports that in the past year a number of applications were made to the government for leases of land suitable for this industry. No licenses were, however, granted, as it was found that the territory concerned was already being farmed by a number of people.

It is safe to assume that in the very near future much land now idle will be stocked with frogs. All that is necessary for this purpose is to place a few paired breeders in the water. Natural food is almost always present in sufficient amount for successful growth.

The species considered here to be most profitable, on account of its size, is the Eastern bullfrog, which reaches a length of more than eight inches. It begins to breed at the end of three years, is very productive and reaches a marketable size in four or five years.—Quebec Correspondence Chicago News.

About Titled People.

Some reigning houses are severer than others in the treatment of unequal marriages which have been contracted without the consent of the head of the family. The Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch is practically banished from Russia because the present Czar has not seen fit to reverse the late Czar's decision respecting imperial highnesses who wed morganatically. Yet the Grand Duke and the Countess Torby are in high favor at certain European courts. She certainly deserves a degree of recognition, since she was royally connected before her marriage, and the equal by birth of the late Duke of Teck and the Battenberg brothers.

WAIFS OF THE LAST CENSUS

Washington is Overrun With Young Men and Women Looking For Positions.

The completion of the body of the census work, and the consequent discharge of 2500 employes, has caused an era of seeming hard times at the National Capital. Washington is overrun with young men and women looking for positions. They are about the departments, in the public offices, at the doors of commercial establishments; they hang about the corridors of Congress, and dog the steps of Senators and Representatives night and day.

They came to Washington two years ago, most of them, and secured positions in the census office, paying from $20 a year up. They have settled into Washington ways, and acquired a taste for the Government service. The young men, in many cases, have started evening courses in law and medicine. The young women have experienced "independences," possibly for the first time. Many of these clerks have worked hard, but the hours are easy—from 9 to 4—and holidays are eloquent; the work is clean and not too strenuous, and there are 34 days allowed for vacations every year, which can be taken at any time. Finally the spell—the hypnotic charm which overcomes Federal employes—the habit of office, the lack of initiative, the dependence on the Government, has enveloped these 2500 young men and women, so that they decline to give up or to go away. Generally they have lived up to the limit of their incomes. The young men, in all human probability they would be dropped at this time; they hoped against hope that their "pull" might be sufficient to keep them going a while longer. When their discharges came, many were without money for a week's board, and could not muster railroad fare to take them home.

The habit of "taking care of" their constituents becomes second nature to old politicians, and Senators and Representatives have endeavored to look after these strays. Each individual case is apt to have its merits and the same reasons which induced the member to get place for a certain young person make him wish to keep him there. It may be the son of an old friend, or of a valued political lieutenant; or the case may be meritorious from the humane standpoint. The Congressman bears down on Director Merriam first, and is warned that it is impossible to put a bushel into a pind measure—the force must be reduced, the majority must go. Then this member tries the departments. He goes for Treasury to War Department, and from War to State, and from State to Agriculture, and then to the Government printing office, and so on down the line. He is told that everything is dull, and that all the temporary places are filled. He asks his colleagues if they happen to know of any places where a clerk can be taken care of, and is greeted with a smile. Every Senator and Representative is having just the same trouble himself. Finally, if he is wise, he will knock over all rosette structures of hope, and get his constituent down to the rock bottom of fact. Home is the best place for the young person, and of the patron can get off with supplying a ticket or procuring a pass he will be doing well.

There is no nuisance like the place seeker. The patience and persistence he will manifest in getting a Government job, if expended intelligently in some individual enterprise, would insure dazzling rewards. A number of young women discharged from the census have been driven by necessity to take positions at printers' assistants in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Here they stand all day and help feed the handpresses for eight hours at $1.50. So, this summer, any one looking for work will do well to keep away from Washington.—New York Evening Post.
