

SUAREZ MADE A GOOD HAUL

Reggy Vanderbilt's Silk Socks Were His Favorites.

(Journal Special Service.)
NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 17.—Dorsey C. Suarez, a young negro or Cuban, who says he is a student at the Hampton Institute in Virginia, and who for the past term at Yale has been an assistant janitor in Vanderbilt Hall, earning money to continue his studies at Hampton, has just been arrested by the New Haven police, charged with the theft of several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry and other articles belonging to students. In his pocket was found a solid gold cigarette case belonging to Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who was a senior this year. In his trunk at his home in Waterbury, where he was arrested, were found many pairs of Mr. Vanderbilt's silk socks with the initials "R. V." embroidered on each one. Altogether, the detectives found three trunks nearly filled with what they say was stolen from Vanderbilt Hall.

When he was searched in the Detective Bureau here today these articles were found on Suarez: Gold watch and chain, solid silver match safe and monogram scratched out, diamond-and-ruby-studded scarfpin, gold scarfholder with monogram "M. C.," scarfpin of turquoise held by a gold snake with ruby eyes, gold lion's head, two meerschaum pipes, gold mounted, amber cigarette holder, and several solid gold studs. He was wearing a $75 rain coat belonging to John Garvin, the Yale pitcher.

AN ODD BATH

(Journal Special Service.)
NEW YORK, July 17.—During the heavy rainstorm on Saturday afternoon of last week, residents of Washington Heights, near One Hundred and Forty-fifth street, were treated to a novel spectacle.

A portly man emerged from the front door of his house while the downpour was at its height, clad in a bathing suit. Walking to the curb he stood there, grinning in sheer delight as the rain trickled through his hair and down his back and legs.

Every once and a while he slapped himself vigorously on the arms and legs after the fashion of men at the seashore who are chilled and want to get their blood in circulation. Finally, when the water was flowing in a flood in the gutter, he calmly sat down in it, and the stream, dividing at his back, curled around him.

For almost an hour the man enjoyed the sport. Then he got up, shook himself like a wet dog, and still grinning went into the house again. The neighbors who watched the performance, first with amusement and then with amazement, are wondering yet what fun or benefit the man got out of his rainwater bath. That he got fun out of it, though, no one who watched him doubted for an instant.

TEDDY DIDN'T BLUFF ROOT

(Journal Special Service.)
OYSTER BAY, L. I., July 17.—Dr. W. C. Root, the village dentist, has refused to turn his office in the bank building over to President Roosevelt. The President's clerks will therefore continue to sweat in the two small rooms they have at present. Dr. Root, who lives elsewhere, comes to town on Wednesdays to fill and extract teeth. His office occupies two-thirds and the President's office one-third of the second-story front of the bank building. It was thought that Dr. Root would jump at the chance of relinquishing his office this summer, just as soon as he learned that the President would like to have it. But those who thought on that line reckoned without the dentist.

Dr. Root said that he would let the President have the room six days in the week, if he wanted it, and would pay

MIXED OIL WITH CANDY

(Journal Special Service.)
CINCINNATI, O., July 17.—The Confectioners' Review today says: "A report comes from the East that a movement was started for the purpose of combining all the Eastern candy companies under one management. The movement, it is said, was backed by the Standard Oil Company. According to current report, the Standard Oil Company has been engaged in securing a proprietorship of the most extensive sugar plants in the West, which naturally lends a glowing color to the report of the Eastern candy combine. Then it was to combine all the candy companies with the independent glucose company in New York. The proposition was rejected, owing to the fear that the Corn Products Company would acquire candy

A FEUD COSTS TWO LIVES

(Journal Special Service.)
FLAT RIVER, Mo., July 17.—Young Dooley shot and instantly killed Frank Harris on a M. R. & B. T. passenger train, near Doe Run, Mo. Harris was on the train when Dooley came on and waited until the train was slowing up for Rock Springs, when he shot Harris three times in the head and ran into the woods. The shooting is the result of an old feud between the families, which has already resulted in five deaths.

FRED RICE, DESPERADO AND OUTLAW, TO HANG

Story of One of the Most Dangerous Criminals of the United States.

(Journal Special Service.)
TORONTO, Ont., July 17.—The Cabinet having declined to interfere, Fred Rice, one of the most desperate criminals with which the Canadian authorities have had to deal in many years, will pay the penalty of his misdeeds on the gallows tomorrow. The condemned criminal is an Illinois man, a former resident of Champaign and a student of the University of Illinois.

The crime for which he is to be executed was the outgrowth of a less heinous offense, the robbery of a bank, for which Rice and three confederates had received sentences of 21 years' imprisonment. Rice and his companions formed a gang of the most notorious and daring porch-climbers on the continent. Their field of operations was coextensive with the continent. Wherever there was opportunity for plunder they went. They did not confine their operations to porch-climbing. Highway robbery, burglary and forgery were among their accomplishments, and for many years they baffled the efforts of the police to effect their capture. Originally the gang was composed of Rice, Frank Rutledge, a Canadian, and Frank Stewart. All were desperate characters, shrewd in their methods, skilled in the arts of the confidence man and utterly without fear. They made their headquarters in Chicago, but conducted their operations principally in other cities, returning to Chicago to dispose of and divide their plunder at stated intervals.

Rice was reared on a farm in the vicinity of Champaign, and when he entered the college of literature and arts of the University of Illinois in 1888 he was a quiet, retired country boy, whose refined manners and handsome face made him popular among the co-eds. Like many country boys, freedom from parental restraint, which he enjoyed at the university for the first time, had a serious effect on his morals, and in his second year he was known as one of the wildest men in the university. His evident large-heartedness and kindly disposition made him friends among both faculty and students, and it was a long time before formal notice was taken of his actions by the board of administration. Finally, however, it was found necessary to expel him.

Soon after he left the university he became associated with the gang of which he is now the only survivor. He was called the forger, the scholar, the "poet" of the nefarious aggregation. He looked like a clergyman and had a gift of eloquence that astonished many a pleader. It was characteristic of him that he was the only one of the gang that ever attempted diplomacy. Cornered, he never offered to kill, but preferring soft words, secured for himself the best of treatment in an extremity.

Frank Stewart, well known as a Chicago thief, was the first of the gang to die. He was killed in an attempt to escape after a Chicago hold-up. Jones was the next to pay the price. Rutledge committed suicide by dashing himself from the gallery of the Toronto jail to the stone-paved court, 30 feet below. The crime for which the gang were arrested and convicted was the robbery of a bank at Aurora, Ont., from which they secured about $50,000. On information received from the Toronto police, the entire gang were arrested in Chicago. Extradition proceedings were stubbornly fought in the courts, but the culprits eventually were brought to Canada, where, after trial, they were sentenced to 21 years' imprisonment. After their preliminary hearing they were committed to jail. While being taken back to jail in a carriage in charge of Constables Stewart and Boyd a well-dressed man sprang from the sidewalk near the jail and ran alongside the carriage. He gained the open window and tossed in a soft felt hat. This fell in the lap of Rutledge. Jones grabbed it and shook out three loaded revolvers. He grabbed one and Harris and Rutledge took the other two. All three were handcuffed together, but this did not prevent quick action on their part. Jones shot Constable Boyd dead. Constable Stewart was fired on a dozen times, but not hit. The prisoners got out of the carriage, gained the street and jumped aboard a passing trolley car. Jones thrust his revolver at the head of the motorman and ordered him to send the car ahead fast. The motorman refused, shut off the current, detached his controller and beat Jones on the head with it. Constable Stewart by this time had gained the rear end of the car, and he shot Jones through the arm. Other officers arrived on the scene and the three men were recaptured. Jones was taken to a hospital and his arm amputated. He died from shock and loss of blood and without an expressed regret for his career. Rice and Rutledge were returned to jail, and shortly afterward, while exercising in the gallery, Rutledge took the leap over the railing which ended his life almost instantly. Rice was then tried for his part in the killing of Constable Boyd. His family and friends came to his rescue with funds for his defense, but despite all efforts on the part of his counsel he was found guilty, after a short trial and given the extreme penalty. Every means known to the law has been exhausted in his behalf without avail, and tomorrow morning, at an hour not yet made public, he will mount the scaffold.

In the alleged smuggling operations of Yang-y-Ting, the Chinese Consul at Honolulu, are becoming very interesting. Collector of Customs Stackable has reported to Secretary Hay that the home and offices of Yang-y-Ting were used as a clearing-house for Chinese and American smugglers.

It was also discovered that the Consul was engaged in extorting from the Chinese exorbitant fees for his services in visiting their papers from time to time and that a great conspiracy existed under his protection to smuggle Chinamen into the United States.

TURNED OUT BY A CHURCH

Sad Fate of Descendant of Noble French Refugee.

(Journal Special Service.)
NEW YORK, July 17.—Miss Mary E. Crocheron, a descendant of a Huguenot of noble birth, who shipped out of France in a barrel to save him from the headsman's ax, has been deprived of a home and followed to her by the associations of more than two centuries. She is waiting in the house at New Springville, Staten Island, where her forefathers lived in luxury, for the summons to gather up her belongings and, at the age of 63, to begin life anew.

a big hound, the other a powerful mastiff, both suffering with hydrophobia, met on Fourth of July Hill yesterday evening and clinched. Women and children shrieked and ran into houses and barricaded the doors and men attempted to separate the animals, who were fighting to kill. The hound pulled the tongue bodily out of the head of the mastiff, but the fight continued, and so deeply were the teeth of each animal fastened into the flesh of the other and so firmly were the jaws on the teeth that strong men could not pry them apart. Both animals were killed.

THE DAY AT CHAUTAUQUA

Today is "recognition day" at Chautauqua. The hours between 8 and 11 o'clock were devoted to classes, after which some fine lectures were delivered by Rev. L. E. Rockwell, D.D., presiding elder, Portland district; Rev. L. E. Boardman, D.D., president Minnville College; Dean W. N. Perrin, Ph. D., Pacific University, and other able educators on "Trend of Matters Educational."

This afternoon there was the usual band concert at 1:30 o'clock, followed by a grand march through the golden gate and a reading by Miss Minnie Hamlin. Rev. Dr. Edgar P. Hill, of the First Presbyterian Church, delivered a lecture. A game of baseball between Mount Angel and Vancouver concluded the afternoon's program.

The feature of this evening will be the first appearance of the brilliant orator, Col. John Sobieski, who will deliver an address on "The Rise and Fall of Poland." Previous to Col. Sobieski's lecture there will be a reading by Prof. S. S. Hamill.

Women's Day was opened yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Bushong with a solo entitled "When You Are Here, Love." "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," was sung by Mrs. Bushong and Mrs. Schwab. Both selections were heartily applauded. A feature of the afternoon was the singing of "America" by the entire audience, under the able direction of Prof. W. W. Boyer, after which Prof. Hawley introduced Mrs. Edyth Tozier-Weathered as the chairman of the afternoon.

Those who spoke of women's work were: W. C. T. U., Mrs. H. D. Harford, state president; "Our Federation," Mrs. C. B. Wade; "Women's Work in the Public Schools," Mrs. Trumbull; "Trained Nurses for the Poor," Mrs. S. S. Wise; "Young Women's Christian Association," Miss Haseltine; "Domestic Science in the Home," Dr. Mae Cardwell; "Madame President and Her Constituency," Mrs. Bethel; "The Dependent Child," Mrs. C. R. Templeton; "The Women's Relief Corps as a National Organization," Mrs. Julia A. Lawton; "The Women's Relief Corps," Mrs. Jennie C. Pritchard.

A baseball game between Multnomah and Chemawa followed, in which the latter won by a score of 9 to 8. In the evening all were delighted with the oratorical "Elijah," given by a chorus of 70 voices under the direction of Professor W. W. Boyer. Mrs. Schwab, Miss Hurley, Mr. Hogue and Professor Glen sang the solos.

DROWNS UNDER MOTHER'S EYES

A Monster Breaker Causes Two Deaths at Long Beach.

(Journal Special Service.)
LONG BEACH, Cal., July 17.—Hjalmer Sundburg's mother saw her son drown in the breakers without power to help. She is affected with heart disease and nearly succumbed to the shock.

Elmer Blume and Hjalmer Sundburg, two youths about 17 years old, were bathing in the ocean opposite what is known as Tent City about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Both boys could swim but a breaker of unusual altitude overwhelmed them and it was seen by those on shore that the boys were in difficulties. William Blume, the father of Elmer, who was bathing with the boys, went to their assistance. They were clinging to each other and Mr. Blume came near losing his own life, as the boys both clutched him and he would have been drowned with them if he had not succeeded in breaking away.

SHARK TOWED THEM

Queer Things Happening in the Gulf Since It Got So Salty.

(Journal Special Service.)
NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—From all parts of Mississippi Sound and the bays and bayous off the Louisiana and Mississippi Coast come wonderful stories of the unprecedented saltiness of the Gulf waters and of the appearance of deep-water fish hitherto unknown here. At Horn Island, Harrison County, Miss., a number of devil fish, one of them measuring 20 feet from tip to tip, have been harpooned by fishermen. There has also been an invasion of man-eating sharks. A party of gentlemen from New Orleans while fishing today at Ship Island fastened their three boats together and staided them with a heavy anchor. A shark became entangled in the anchor, carried all three boats out to sea and finally broke them on the shore. The fishermen narrowly escaped with their lives. They are all prominent socially and in club life in New Orleans.

SNOW BLIND AND INSANE

(Journal Special Service.)
TELLURIDE, Colo., July 17.—E. Erickson has been brought down from the Liberty Bell mine, insane from acute snow blindness. This is the first case of snow blindness in July. The snow covered the ground to a depth of 18 inches. During the forenoon the sun was bright. Erickson's face was burned to a blister.

TOBACCO CROP

(Journal Special Service.)
HARTFORD, Conn., July 17.—The prospects for a good crop of tobacco in Connecticut this year are very poor owing to the excessive moisture of the last month. It is admitted by all growers that the crop will not reach the average. The plants grown under canvas are said to be in even worse condition than those grown in the open.
