FITZ SAYS HE NEVER FELT BETTER IN HIS LIFE

Some Clipped Gossip of the Big Bruisers—Sporting Notes.

In answer to a note Fitzsimmons has this to say regarding his condition:

"I never felt better in my life. I eat more than I have ever done before while training, and am working very hard to get myself into perfect condition. I want to say that I am also enjoying myself at the same time. To show that I am not at all worried I am at present rehearsing a play, written by myself and entitled 'The Little Scheme That Didn't Work,' which I expect to figure in tomorrow night in an entertainment we have planned. All in the camp are happy, and feel thoroughly confident that I will come off winner on the 26th."

That dope story of Fitzsimmons is something that will not do. The Cornishman is able to discuss the ordinary affairs of the ring in a cool and logical manner, and he looks back to desperate battles he has engaged in without displaying a sign of excitement or agitation. The slightest reference to his former defeat by Jeffries, however, is like clipping the wire that fastens a champagne cork. He explodes and becomes intensely effervescent and he bubbles over with indignation at the wrongs he says were inflicted upon him by unknown persons during the contest in question.

"It is no use talking," said Fitzsimmons, "I made a miserable fight against Jeffries, and it wasn't my fault. The idea of a man who has fought successfully 37 times putting up a rana exhibition like that shows there was something wrong."

Fitzsimmons then became reminiscent. "I was all right until the third round started. I fought Jeffries two or three times in the second round and he caught me on the mouth with his left once when I was drawing my head back. I was slightly out of balance at the time, and he sent me to the floor in a sitting position. It was said afterwards that the fall hurt my spine, but the truth is I was not hurt at all. I think I showed this by the way I went after him when I got up. I was full of confidence right then. Kid McCoy, who was sitting near the ring, made some kind of a signal to me, and I motioned twice to him with my hand, meaning that I would defeat Jeffries in two rounds more."

"I was dazed when I left my corner for the third round, and I was at Jeffries' mercy ever afterwards. Of course, people will say that I fought back at Jeffries occasionally when struck, but I can only account for this by saying that it was the fighting instinct in me. I hung my arms out blindly. I guess. Why, when I went back to my corner at the end of the third round, I asked my seconds who it was I was fighting. I did not know it was Jeffries that was standing before me."

Fitzsimmons insists further that it is unjust to accuse him of being mercenary in connection with the contest in question. He says that it was made to appear that he had driven a hard bargain in insisting that he receive 60 per cent of the money, win or lose. He declares that he did not know how the money was to be divided until after the fight was over, and that he left the financial end of the affair entirely to his manager. "As I said before, it is very little use talking about it now," continued Fitzsimmons. "The whole thing will come out some day. I will show the public that I was not myself last time by defeating Jeffries on the 26th."

JEFFRIES' SPEED.

One who watched Jeffries at his work in Oakland Wednesday wrote this about the champion:

Massive as compared to both his sparring partners, Jeffries, in quickness and boxing adroitness, proved immeasurably their superior. In fact, seldom has the champion shown more speed and genuine boxing ability than he did yesterday. Skipping the rope and punching the bag wound up his exercises.

Previous to commencing his afternoon work Jeffries was the unwilling subject for a regiment of photographers that shadowed his every move. In jolly good spirit, however, he would postpone short talks with friends to accommodate striking one pose after another. The same photographers furnished the champion with the point for one of his jokes. It was when asked as to the truth of a rumor to the effect that he had strained himself at Harbin Springs that he replied by saying:

"Well, the only straining I saw up there was by these camera fellows trying to get pictures."

Billy Delaney, though critically watching his big ward in his training exercises, seldom interferes with a protest as to his inclination to overwork.

"Jim likes to work," said Delaney. "It is a hobby with him, and I would rather see him do plenty of it than take matters too easily."

While seated in the gas kitchen eating his supper last evening Jeffries was agreeably surprised to see his father, the Rev. James Jeffries, walk into the apartment.

"Well, I'm glad to see nothing stronger than ice water on the table," was the father's first greeting to his husky son. "Jim, you look like a man who has been working too hard."

"Well, father," was the reply, "it isn't as hard as making bellers."

At the table, besides Jeffries, were his brother Jack, Manager Eagan and Billy Delaney, and a place was made for the reverend gentleman. They chatted during the meal, and then all, with the exception of the elder Mr. Jeffries, went to the theatre.

It was in the cards for Spokane to take another game from Portland yesterday. Both pitchers were very wild, between them sending seven men to first as a result of being hit by a ball.

Kelly's batting was what gave Spokane the game. He was up four times and made a safe one each time. These included a three-bagger and a two-base hit, each scoring a man and in one instance two. His fielding was also excellent, he retiring Portland's last man by a stop of a wild throw which he got to first in the nick of time.

Hawley's wildness cost the champions the game. They out-batted the Spokanes, Wood lining out two to the fence, but with the bags full they were shut off at the plate. Hawley's wildness was in the main responsible for the loss of the game. The score:

SPORTS IN GENERAL.

The Astoria regatta committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon and perfected permanent organization by the selection of Dr. H. L. Henderson as chairman, Otto Mikkleson secretary and Chas. R. Higgins treasurer. Robert McLean was selected to fill the vacancy on the committee caused by the resignation of Edward Mann.

Below will be found a summary of yesterday's tennis games played in the M. A. C. C. handicap tournament: Goss (owe 40) beat Cheal (owe 15 and 5-0), 6-4, 6-9; Bethel (owe 40) beat Nunn (receiv 3-6 of 15), 6-3, 6-1; Ewing (owe 3-6 of 15) beat Prince, (scratch), 6-4, 6-3; Wickerham (owe 15 and 3-0) beat Green; Greenham (owe 15 and 3-0) beat Archer (receiv 15 and 3-0), 6-3, 6-3.

Jesse Stovall, Seattle's star pitcher, was announced Wednesday that he was going to quit Dugdale as the latter made him work in the field when not pitching. He had transportation and was going to join Pendleton. Seattle's manager thought the matter over and concluded that he was rubbing it into Stovall a little and promised him a seat on the bench when he was not in the box. Pendleton thereby lost a good pitcher.

Seattle is liable to lose another good man unless his salary is raised. Hurlbert was under suspension and when reinstated asked for a big raise in salary. This Dugdale refused, whereupon the player offered $100 for his release. The Seattle manager said that $100 would not buy it. So there is the way the two stand. In the meantime Dugdale has signed another good out-fielder who is expected to arrive in a few days.

We Are Unloading a Carload of

IRON BEDS

... TO-DAY ...

And they've got to go into the basement, for there's no room on the floor. What then? We must make room and our way of making room is to make prices that always have the effect of carrying goods out in a wave. You never heard of such low prices for this kind of goods as we are making. If you've got an "Iron Bed thought" come in and look, not at the rag end of a run down stock, but at a big, complete stylish stock that is complete in assortment and variety, and we'll take it on ourselves to quote you prices that are several notches below what you've figured on paying for similar grade of bed.

Many a Cook

finds her best efforts to make "something good" spoiled by a cranky cook-stove or an unworthy range that should have gone direct from the foundry to the junk pile, instead of into a safe-room. It makes her mad, no wonder; cooking's hard enough work when the cook has good luck. ROYAL RIVAL cooks do not complain of failures. Ask your neighbor what kind of a range she has—if it's a ROYAL RIVAL she'll advise you to get one also.

You can get them from $25 up.
