THE MARKET

An advance of 1 cent a pound in the price of all chewing tobaccos manufactured by the Continental Tobacco Company was listed today. Dealers have been notified.

SOLDIER BOYS COMING HOME

(Journal Special Service.)

CAMP WILLIAMS, Albany, July 22.—This, the last day of the state encampment here, is full of the bustle of preparation for the departure of the soldier boys. Colonel Yoran, of the Fourth, and Colonel Everett, of the Third Regiment, both express themselves as much pleased with the work of their commands, and incidentally lose no chance of complimenting the regulars from Vancouver barracks for their remarkably fine drill and excellent discipline.

Throughout the whole camp the behavior of the men has been of the very best. But few instances of bad behavior have been reported, and the population of the guard house has been small throughout. The boys and the people of Albany have been excellent friends throughout, and many a one will see the last of their kahki-clad friends with genuine regret.

LIGHTNING BUGS.

They Thrive in Tropics and Ladies Wear Them in Hats.

(Journal Special Service.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—"Cocoyos," the large lightning-bugs of Brazil, Cuba, and tropical South America, that emit a continuous double light of sufficient strength and intensity for one to read the time on a watch 18 inches distant, and which the Botocudo Indians of Brazil use for illuminating purposes by confining a number of them in small wicker cages, are soon to be a novelty in the pet line in Washington. Some 58 of these bugs are now on their way from Cuba to this city, and on their arrival will be the first ever seen in the capital.

This is one of the results of a demand for something new that is constant on the part of the public and competition among bird and pet animal dealers. The cocoyos are very large, though perfectly harmless, and in many of the South American cities and in Havana the young girls and married ladies wear them in their hair at night, the effect of which is singularly striking and beautiful, especially when the lady wearing them happens to be blessed with more than the usual share of feminine pulchritude. The cocoyos thus worn illuminate the wearer's countenance and hair in a perfect halo of light. Whether they will be used in this way by local belles remains to be seen. The cocoyos are very hardy, and will live for months with very little or no attention. Local pet dealers are of the opinion that if kept indoors and in warm places during the winter in the same manner that parrots and canaries are kept, the coyocos can be domesticated and made to increase and multiply in this country. This has proved successful in the case of the little green chameleon lizards of Florida that lay eggs and hatch out breeds as long as they are properly attended to.
