Nate Russell of Central Point visited his brother, Harvey Russell, at the old Sturgis mine on Forest creek Monday.

Mrs. Orval Glick and daughter Beth, recently of Ashland, spent the weekend with Mrs. Glick's sister, Mrs. Bert Harr, on Applegate.

Tom Mee is recovering from unpleasant difficulties encountered with a wisdom tooth. Mr. Mee had the tooth extracted a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Walgamot of Eagle Point vicinity have moved to Thompson creek, having rented the Harold Nelson ranch there.

Mrs. John Cantrall and daughter Norma, accompanied by Mrs. Trullitt Cantrall, visited at the home of Mrs. Dora Saltmarsh recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hudson, who had spent several months at their mine on Star gulch, have returned to Los Angeles to remain until next summer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Beardsley have returned to their temporary mining headquarters on Big Applegate after spending several days in Gold Hill.

Mrs. W. P. Tucker, who resides on the old stage road, was expected to return Wednesday evening from a week's sojourn to Eugene, where she visited relatives.

Mrs. Arch Nichols of lower Applegate is able to be out again after an attack of influenza. Mr. and Mrs. Nichols came here from Ontario nearly a year ago.

Mrs. Alice Ulrich and Mrs. Herbert Hanna of this city, accompanied by Mrs. Reece Chapman of Medford, were guests of Mrs. James Buckley Sunday.

Emmett Phillips, employed for several months in an ice plant in Roseville, Calif., returned to the Applegate a few days ago and will remain here during the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith have returned to their ranch at Ruch, having resided at Medford for a few months, where Mr. Smith was employed as chef at the Rex cafe.

Joe Slotte returned to his home in the interior reaches of the Applegate Sunday, having been confined at the Sacred Heart hospital for three days with a severe cold.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bignow of Medford will be Applegate residents for the remainder of the winter, having moved to the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. C. M. Ruch, last week.

Hollis Parks of Medford has been occupied for several days in plowing his ranch on Little Applegate. The ground is too wet at present to permit completion of the tilling and sowing.

Receiving a telegram telling of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Foward, at Eugene, Mrs. A. N. Krouse left for that city a few days ago. She expected to be gone about two weeks.

Mrs. Orval Thomas of Ruch was a guest for a short time last week at the Henry Stively home in Medford. While there Mrs. Thomas also had the pleasure of visiting with friends from eastern Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hartley returned Tuesday from a brief trip to Eugene. They were accompanied home by Mr. Hartley's mother from Rivaldo, Idaho, who will remain here for an indefinite visit.

Mrs. William Harlow of upper Applegate was called to Ashland the first of the week as a result of the serious illness of her brother, Charles Swartzfager. He has been afflicted with tuberculosis for many years.

Mrs. Victor Anderson returned to her home on Applegate Saturday, having spent several days with relatives at Talent, during which time she attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Lester Taylor. Mrs. Taylor's death occurred at Yreka January 2.

Members of the Applegate Home Extension unit expected to meet at the home of Mrs. Jack O'Brien Wednesday evening to discuss plans for a three-act play to be presented in the near future. January 17 will be the regular club meeting day.

who accompanied the visitors to the Applegate, was a guest of Mrs. R. A. Gildea of Ruch.

Miss Marjory Fitzgerald and brother, Jack, eighth grade pupils of the Uniontown school, left this week for Medford, where they expected to enroll in the junior high school. They will remain with their mother, Mrs. White, who has moved to Medford recently from Lakeview.

Mr. and Mrs. George Prowl, who had spent several months at Roseburg, returned to Squaw lake a short time ago. They were accompanied by their son, Keith, who spent the Christmas vacation with his parents. Keith remains at the Harry Barr home and attends the Watkins school.

A new enterprise is reported underway at Steamboat at the Big 4 mine. A five-stamp mill and concentrator have been installed by a new company operating the mine, and activities are said to be flourishing at the mine location. A foot of snow is reported at the guard station in that vicinity.

At least two Medford young people were paying a good price Monday for their adventures on skis the previous day. Miss Venita Anderson was unable to walk as a result of a wrenched knee, and her brother Kenneth of the Medford weather bureau possessed a nose slightly out of condition.

Lee Port Jr., post-graduate student of Ashland high school, was forced to withdraw from all usual activities for a few days last week as a result of flu. Lee was at his grandmother's home, where he spends all of his leisure hours, and where he likes to pass several of his vacation days during the summer.

The first knowledge of the tribulations which fill a lifetime has come to little Miss Diana Worthington of San Francisco, according to an airmail letter received by her grandmother, Mrs. A. S. Kleinhammer. Diane, who is about three months old, has been critically ill with whooping cough for the last three weeks, and although she remained at her home, she has been under the care of a specialist and nurse. Diane is on the road to recovery now, and is able to laugh in spite of the coughing ordeal.

So many years have passed since that period known as early days, that only a few pioneers of southern Oregon will remember Mary Saltmarsh, whose death, which occurred in Portland January 5, was announced in an Associated Press story a few days ago. Mrs. Saltmarsh, who had reached the remarkable age of 90 years, lived at the Sterling mine during its first years of activity, where her husband, Rube Saltmarsh, was a joint owner in the holdings with Cap and Joe Saltmarsh. A few years later the family moved to Albany, where Mr. Saltmarsh owned a drug store until his death. Mrs. Saltmarsh died at her home in Portland and was buried in Albany.

"Man Against Woman" with Jack Holt in the leading role, comes to the Rialto theater Sunday and Monday. It tells the story of the eternal conflict of the sexes and skillfully combines action and suspense with unusual romance. Laid against the background of the thrill-charged, gay, bright-lighted night life of a big city, "Man Against Woman" promises to be one of the most entertaining pictures of the season.

Courting Days
A One-Act Picture of A County Court

TIME—Recently.
PLACE—Jackson County Courthouse.

CHARACTERS—Judge, recently elected and feeling his political oats. Attorney Wern O. Ilkins, special prosecutor and "friend of the court." Defendants Lamkin and Bursell, who are charged with a pair of pants they bought at the Teggery. Rest of stage filled with on-lookers who moved up from the Medford National bank corner to see a free show. Attorneys for defendants, Briggs and Skyrman, also on stage but unable to do much defending.

Curtain raised, which is the only thing besides the devil that has been raised in the courthouse for a year. Huge hand, with name "L. A. Banks" partially concealed in the background, making up back curtain.

Judge: "The court will come to order, please, and we'll see who's running this county. Defendants, stand up."

Defendants stand up, as crowd boos. Judge calls for order, as someone in the back of the crowd shouts "hurrah for the judge." The judge stands up and takes a bow.

Judge: "How about it, Vic? Did you two guys get those pants from Teggery and charge them? If so, which one has the pants?"
Bursell: "I aint had a pair of pants since I took this job eight years ago. I've just put a new seat in the old ones."

Lamkin: "I've still got my wedding pants on, and I'm not going to take them off here, either."

Attorney Ilkins: "I object. Irrelevant, immaterial and immodest, and move that Lamkin's smart crack be removed from the records."

Judge: "Objection sustained." Attorney Briggs: "Your honor, I represent one of these defendants, and I move the case be dismissed because the complaint and arrest warrant are illegal."

Judge: "Objection overruled; they're legal because I made them out myself." Crowd cheers again, and some yodel falls off a chair in the back of the room. Judge calls for order.

Attorney Skyrman, rising: "Your Honor, I represent Bursell, the other defendant, and this reminds me of a story—"

Attorney Ilkins: "I object to any story that guy tells. I had to listen to them all night at a bar association meeting. He recited poetry, too."

Judge: "If he recites poetry, the objection is sustained."

Attorney Ilkins: "Your Honor, there's nothing to this case. These guys are guilty because Llewellyn Bunks told me they were. Besides, what's the idea of stalling around anyway. He told you the same thing."

Attorneys Briggs and Skyrman, in unison: "Your Honor, we object. What Llewellyn Bunks says has nothing to do with the case at bar."

Judge: "The h— it doesn't. Who do you think we're taking orders from, Santa Claus? Objection overruled." (Crowd breaks into cheers again, with someone shouting "Good goin', Judge, you know how to run a court!")

Attorney Briggs: "Your Honor, I understood the object of this trial was—"

Judge: "Objection overruled."

Attorney Briggs: "But the object—"

Judge: "Objection still overruled. Proceed with the case."

Attorney Ilkins: "Your Honor, I

omy like that. I have found a few good fellows, though, who are willing to make the sacrifice. I am submitting their names for your approval:

Secretary of state—U. N. Patriotic.

Secretary of treasury—I. L. Grab.

Secretary of war—General Apathy.

Secretary of the interior—I. M. Possible.

Secretary of navy—D. E. Feat.

Secretary of agriculture—I. N. Efficient.

Secretary of commerce—C. U. Doolittle.

Attorney general—Will B. Lawless.

Postmaster General—Smalley Blunder.

Secretary of labor—E. X. Hausted.

I note that The Jacksonville Miner supported me in the campaign and I am aware that its support contributed in a large measure to my victory last fall. Now, Forgotten, I want my writing to you kept a secret but if you can handle the matter without smiling the beans I wish you would thank Mr. Hall and Miss Pool for me and tell them if there is anything they want as a reward for this great service for them to write me what it is. Trusting I may receive a reply from you soon, will close now as I haven't milked yet.
Your humble servant,
FRANKLIN D. BOOZEVELT.

Mrs. W. H. Jordan and son Fremont of lower Applegate were guests of Mrs. E. H. Taylor Sunday.

CHESTER MORRIS AND BILLIE DOVE IN "COCK OF THE AIR"

"Cock of the Air", the new air comedy, comes to the Roxy Theatre Sunday and Monday. This is Howard Hughes' latest production, and once again the producer of "Hell's Angels," "The Front Page," and other film sensations crashes thru with a hit-picture.

"Cock of the Air", a United Artists picture, is a brilliant picture of a daring story. It is the usual hokum and vulgarity associated with sophisticated pictures. Extravagantly produced, and brilliantly directed, "Cock of the Air" is sheer entertainment from start to finish.

move we dispense with these two defense attorneys. Their object—"
Judge: "Objection sustained."
Attorney Ilkins: "But I didn't object, I moved something."
Judge: "All right, motion granted. Go ahead and move it."
Attorney Briggs (with a shrug of resignation, and aside to Attorney Skyrman): "Got a match, Harry? We might as well smoke and draw our own fire."
Attorney Ilkins: "I object. I've smelled that pipe before."
Judge: "Objection sustained. I have too."
Attorney Ilkins: "Your Honor, I've got an appointment in 15 minutes, and I'd like to get this case over. How about finding them guilty?"
Attorneys Briggs and Skyrman: "We obj—"
Judge: "Objection overruled. We'll adjourn court now, and I'll hand down my sentence. I mean findings, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. I've got to have a talk with Bunks first, and see what he says."
Attorney Briggs: "We object, Your Honor—"
Attorney Ilkins: "I object to his objecting all the time. This guy thinks we don't know how to run a court, Judge, but we'll show him, won't we?"
Judge: "You betcha. And furthermore, I object to your kicking me on the knee under the table, Bursell."
Lamkin: "Objection overruled. The defendant was justified."
Attorney Ilkins: "I move the county buy the edge a pair of knee pads so people can't kick him under the table."
Attorney Skyrman: "I object. He won't need them very long."
Judge: "Motion granted and objection denied. I've needed them ever since I sided in with Bunks."
Attorney Briggs: "I move this be written into the records. It will sound swell to the supreme court."
Attorney Ilkins: "I object. We don't want to break any records at our first trial."
Judge: "Objection sustained, and that goes for any other objections you might make, Ilkins. I'm tired of affirming them."
Ilkins: "Oke, Judge. I object to these two guys being present at the trial any longer. Take them out, sheriff."
Judge: "Court adjourned until 10 tomorrow." (Aside to crowd: "Good night, everyone, and be here
