

PERSONAL NEWS NOTES

Both from Jacksonville and Over the Hill

Henry Van Poyen and Leonard Andrews of Ashland were combining fishing and business on Applegate Wednesday. The Lithia citizens said that they are slated to sing over KMED Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard of Grants Pass were supper guests at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Leon Offenbacher, Friday, upon their return from a business trip to Medford.

Mrs. Sarah "Ma" Wilcox, who had spent some time with Applegate friends, is visiting at the W. E. Phinney home in this city.

With two of a group of seven graduate students of the Ashland normal school to assist her in giving the achievement tests in the Applegate schools, Mrs. Una B. Inch, supervisor, completed the tests in two days. Her assistants here were Mrs. Catherine Denzer and Miss Elmore Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Offenbacher were among recent business visitors in Medford.

Many fishermen are reported to have had good luck at Squaw Lake Sunday. Ten cars were counted at the lake.

Volney Dixon of Medford was interviewing possible fence customers on the Applegate Sunday. He had spent part of the day in Grants Pass.

Plans for his day's work on his mining claim were ruined for Joe Polley of Big Applegate Tuesday morning, when fire destroyed his little log cabin home. Unable to save any household equipment, Mr. Polley had the misfortune of seeing the results of long hours of effort go up in smoke. The cabin was built last fall on a claim south of the Straube ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. George Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Wilson of Medford were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crump Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Le Fever of Medford were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kubli Sunday. The couple enjoyed picnicking and horseback riding.

A suitable location for a new Boy Scout camp for younger boys under 12 years of age was marked on Elliott creek Friday by Mr. Phaleyn and Mr. Jones, Medford scout officials. Characteristics sought in the new site are accessibility in summer and winter, yet a type of camp which is of the back-to-nature sort. Final steps for obtaining the site for the scout camp awaited the approval of Larry Schade and other members of the scout committee, who expected to visit the grounds within a few days.

Morris Wagner, who spent a few days with his brother, James Wagner, at Squaw Lake, has returned to his home in Hollywood. Mr. Wagner's mother, who resides in Salem, accompanied him to his home, where she will remain for some time.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hodges in Ruch Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bryant and family of this city.

Miss Helen Tjosdal of Ashland and her mother, Mrs. Thora Tjosdal of Seattle, who is visiting her, were week-end guests of Mrs. L. C. Port.

When a coupe driven by "Salty" Stephenson collided with a truck in which R. R. Burelson and Baldy Young were riding only a slight shaking up was the result. The accident occurred Sunday on a grade near the Barr ranch when the two cars met on a turn.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Timmons and little son of Central Point were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Throckmorton Sunday.

Miss Eleanor Orth and Harvey Robinson of Medford spent Sunday on the Little Applegate. Mr. Robinson chose to fish during the day and Miss Orth enjoyed horseback riding.

An improvement which Mrs. Anna Ruch has made at her service station which motorists will welcome is an arrangement for running water. The Sunnyside service station is undergoing the same renovation the housewives give their homes, and is getting an interior coat of paint this week.

Compliments on the delicious supper, the music, and even the old-time dance itself were heard on all sides from those attending the apron and overall dance given by the Applegate Extension unit Saturday night. Dancers attending numbered close to 150, and unit members were pleased with the financial outcome of the party.

There may be a deluge of weddings on the Applegate very soon if the Beaver creek boys are to learn to play baseball in a way that will pile up a score for them. At Sunday's game the married men again beat the boys. Nevertheless, the youngsters will make another attempt for victory next Sunday.

The local Rebekah lodge journeyed to Ashland Thursday evening of this week for a joint meeting with the Lithia unit, which was observing a birthday of the order with a dinner and program. Mrs. Ray Wilson, Vivian DeHaas, Mrs. Jake Schaeffer, Mrs. Zetta Lontz, Mrs. John Norris, Mrs. Ulrich and Mrs. Shorty Smith were among those making the trip from here. Wesley Hartman took a car full of Rebekahs and Odd fellows also.

Young Master Schaeffer who was stricken with bronchitis while visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Marsh, has been improving steadily the latter part of this week. Dr. H. B. Gillis attended the youngster.

Mrs. Zetta Lontz and son Homer spent Wednesday of this week in Ashland visiting at the home of Mrs. George Bishop, daughter of the former.

Mrs. Glen Young and young son returned to their home in this city from the Sacred Heart hospital early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Shores and two children, Bobby and Jean, were Wednesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Dunnington here. The Shores formerly operated a store in this city, but now are residents of Central Point.

Grandma Fancet, well-known here and a former resident, is visiting the L. J. Combest family. The elderly lady, 94 years of age, appears to be chipper as ever, say her friends, and retains her sunny and good-natured disposition in its entirety. She delighted listeners early this week with an account of the good old days when the fairer sex adorned themselves with hoop skirts, and told how an unruly horse once separated her from her many hoops, all in one buck.

Mrs. Holmes, mother of Rollie Holmes of this city, left for California Sunday, where she will be at the bedside of a daughter for some time.

Grace Kirk Bromley, former instructor in Jacksonville schools, was awarded contract recently to teach at Sterling for the next year.

C. C. Chitwood, Jacksonville's druggist who had a short tussle with bronchial trouble a few days ago, emerged victorious Thursday morning. He was back yesterday to his usual stand at the pharmacy greeting customers and friends in his usual cordial manner. Dorothy Chitwood had taken charge of things during the illness of the city treasurer.

Emil Britt, when asked this week what was news, replied that "I've been working all week—you can consider that as real news." To prove his claim, Mr. Britt has been seen downtown with overalls, sunburn and a ruddy glow of late.

Henry Wendt, of the Jacksonville Wendts, and for 22 years postmaster at Pine Creek in Klamath county, arrived in this city a few days ago to spend some time visiting brothers, sisters, cousins and relatives ad infinitum. He makes an annual pilgrimage to the scenes of his younger days, etc., and takes a keen interest in the doings of his old home town, it is said by friends.

Mrs. Alice Applegate Sargent, one of the pioneer bulwarks of Jacksonville and southern Oregon, spent Wednesday in Medford. Mrs. Sargent, who waved a cordial greeting to her many friends as she rode through town, appeared to be enjoying good health and "looked just fine." Mrs. Sargent has come to be loved by even the smaller schoolchildren of Jackson county, and is the author of a book, "Following the Flag—Diary of a Soldier's Wife."

Charles Smith, who has been working at the old Tog Town mine for some time, has left for Wolf Creek where he has accepted a job as foreman in a mine.

Mr. and Mrs. George Demmer, with a party of friends from Jacksonville, enjoyed a picnic party among the hills of Applegate Sunday. They report a very pleasant day.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Driver and family, newcomers in Jackson county, have recently purchased 40 acres near the Laurel Grove cemetery near Ruch and will make their home there.

T. J. Reese, of Ashland, was in the Applegate district this week looking for good mining prospects. Mr. Reese sold a mine near Yreka, Calif., for $30,000 less than a year ago, he said.

Mrs. H. D. McVay, who passed away quite suddenly early Monday morning, was buried Tuesday in the Laurel Grove cemetery near Ruch. Besides her husband, she leaves four small children and her parents and one brother. Her mother, Mrs. W. I. Coffman, will care for the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Fisher and niece, Miss Genevieve Fitzsimmons, arrived in Medford Saturday from Long Beach, Calif., to visit here with relatives. They were in the southern city during the quake and give an interesting account of the disaster. Mrs. Fisher is a sister of Mrs. E. B. Bell of Jacksonville, and H. J. Burrows of Medford. They have rented apartments on South Central avenue, and expect to visit in this vicinity for about six weeks before returning to their home in Sparta, Wisconsin. They were dinner guests at the Bell home in Jacksonville Sunday.

No anxiety has been noted in local circles because of the approaching deadline for turning in hoarded gold. Mother Nature has been about the only gold hoarder in this section, miners generally running at breakneck speed to the local gold dealer to deposit their findings when same reach any appreciable amount, for instance, enough to buy a loaf of bread and a pinch of salt. None of the local miners, unlike city fellows who are worried about going off the gold standard, have offered to throw their yellow treasures back into mine holes, indicating a pretty sane attitude here toward the "new deal" which is unfolding. The fact that there is a $100 exemption seems to have eased practically every mind in this side of the valley, if any of them had been worrying.

The "Eye" in Fashion

The left eye plays an important part in the newest millinery modes, as witness in these two engaging modes of the new season. Note the sweep of the hat brim which completely covers the right eye, leaving only the left one exposed to view. The hat at the bottom is of beige peau de d'ange shantung with brown stitching and a garniture of velvet flowers around the crown. The chapeau at the top is of navy blue moire taffeta, with melon crown and flaring brim. The three-tone cluster of velvet flowers placed directly forward is its only decoration.

Dick Coffman, after pondering long and meditatively, asked an authority last week which was going to give in first, the image of the robins that have been fighting themselves at various points in the state. Local talent seemed unable to answer the momentous question and admitted Dick had them stumped this time.

Jacksonville welcomed the silver and paper standard Tuesday evening when the local national guard contingent returned from drill with bulging pockets and happy faces, as well as minds full of ways and means. The militarists had had a quarterly payday. No one bought the county courthouse with their treasure, however, having known beforehand that it wouldn't be worth the price, no matter how cheap.

It may be that paydirt is a bit leaner, and then again the spring weather might be responsible, but downtown miners report that production of the standard which the country just went off of has decreased a bit of late. The Mero-Taylor combination has sunk another shaft in their search for bread on sluice box waters, and find plenty of work, if nothing else. "Who's that knocking at my door?" an old tunnel was heard to remark a few days ago when miners were picking away on the few inches remaining between them and an old working full of water.

"It aint opportunity," replied one of the excavators as he ran before a four-foot wall of water.

Baseball has not entirely devalued the enthusiasm of Jacksonville sportsmen. Lee Smith and Jim Littell junior folded up their equipment and stole quietly away early Sunday morning for the mighty Rogue, where they sought the famous fish. The pair returned with not even a good fish story.
