The Editor Speaking

It should speak forth even though horsewhips might be wielded on the country editor.

"There is no obligation upon an honest metropolitan newspaper to give anyone the best of it. Indeed, there is distinctly an obligation not to do so," continues The Oregonian. A fine journalistic motto, one which should be drilled into the minds of all embryonic editors. But how can that apply, and where does it lead (or FAIL to lead) in such a one-sided situation as we have in Jackson county? One side distinctly doesn't have the best of it here in southern Oregon. The other side, as far as we have ever been able to learn (and we've staked what little we have on our knowledge) has truth and real law observance on its side, as well as justice not only for its friends but also for its enemies.

The Oregonian advises us to handle such a matter "impartially and without bias." And when we present the true picture, we suppose we are "prejudiced and motivated by hatred."

Well, The Oregonian is one of Oregon's largest and most powerful dailies. We suppose we should be overwhelmed, but we're not. Perhaps our type of journalism (or lack of it, according to the upstate scribe) will never get us anywhere. But we know we can never edit a newspaper any other way in similar circumstances, and wouldn't it we could.

Enough of that. We already accused The Oregonian of blowing, and our cheeks are none too idle.

By the way, has anyone noticed how quickly Banks turned to that "illegal legal trust" he professed to despise and distrust so much when he got caught in the web of law?

But, it would appear now, only his own lawyers were of the type he had accused the bar association of being made up of generally. For months we claimed that Banks was as crooked as he accused others of being, that he judged them by himself. Another belief verified.

"Am I burned up?" asked the man out on $7500 bond. "Yes, and so were too many ballots; ten years," echoed the judge. (Or so it may come to pass.)

And it looks for sure as though Roosevelt were going to hew relief to the line and let the chips fall where they are needed — at the feet of the laborer. Who ever heard of a dollar a day, free board and clothing "filtering down" from the banks and railroads to thousands of men right in our midst?

It looks as though the new deal is going to make the big boys take those tax exempt trumps out of their sleeves.

Although Hoover insisted prosperity was just around the corner, he discovered—when that corner was turned—that it was an abundance of executive leadership of the contemporary variety.

Bicycles are now equipped with balloon tires. We suppose the next wrinkle will be soft-pedals.

A "brain trust" to the Democrats is a brain storm to the Republicans. —Weston (Ore.) Leader.

Dance Committee Will Offer Variation in New Musical Features Here

The dance committee of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce has been scratching their brains, pondering long and hard and staring into space for two weeks past, and not entirely without fruition.

V. J. Beach and Punk Dunnington, aforementioned committee, have diagnosed what is wrong with the local Saturday night affairs and have reached an agreement. They feel that lighter, more familiar tunes should be offered local hoofs and those who invade the old city from other parts, and that ultramodern music is just fine, when you are accustomed to it. Accordion music, violin, the ever-present sax, drums, piano and whatnot have been arranged by the pair through special arrangements which were completed early this week.

Henceforth Jacksonville will boast the heart and cream of two popular dance orchestras, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dickey of their own well-known organization, and Glen Hamilton and several of his players. Hamilton had played here up till the first of the year for many months. Hamilton furnished the music last Saturday evening and, although the crowd was not great, provided the type of harmony which kept all present on their feet and on the floor.

"We want the kind of music that eliminates wallflowers and keeps all customers tripping the light fantastic," said Dunnington with one of his thoughtful scowls. "We have packed 'em in here, and if the cream of southern Oregon music will do it, we'll pack 'em in again." Business hasn't been what it should be for the past few weeks, and the chamber officials have been making every effort to get at the seat of the trouble. They believe they have overcome one of the handicaps and Saturday night will present their first dance under the new plan. Both Dickey and Hamilton are well known throughout Jackson and Josephine counties and should draw an increased crowd, as well as furnish more adaptable music.

Nobody will kick about the dollar going down when it is into his pocket.—Weston (Ore.) Leader.

It has been found that the jigsaw puzzle was a craze fifty years ago, the difference being that it's crazier now.—Weston (Ore.) Leader.
