BERNADINE ARNOLD NAMES HI SCHOOL COOPERATION DAY

By HELEN LAMB

"Down the line came number nine," but into the little blue box went ninety-nine. This ninety-nine was the number of ballots on which the names for the coming school work day were written. The announcement of a naming contest was made in a student body meeting Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The contest began immediately after the announcement and continued until 1 o'clock the next afternoon.

A small blue box in the assembly became very popular during this time and long before the contest ended was quite full of ballots. Some of the names suggested proved almost as entertaining as the "brand new" basketball which the ballot box had previously contained. A few students even wanted the day to be called NRA day, meaning "no rubbish allowed." However, "high school cooperation day" submitted by Bernadine Arnold was finally awarded the prize by the executive committee of the student body.

WHAT WILL I GET OUT OF IT? (AN EDITORIAL)

By ELIZABETH WHITE
"What will I get out of it?" was the question that circulated among the students after the student body approved the plan of having a high school cooperation day.

Many students seem to think that they owe nothing to the school if they do not take part in school activities.

But don't we all have a great deal of pride in our school, and doesn't it really make our consciences easy to know that we have always been shoulder-to-shoulder in every battle?

Even though these lean years have been difficult ones for us, let's not let them curtail all our student activities, nor impress themselves on our mind to the extent of making us selfish.

EARLY MORNING EXPLOSIONS ARE UNCONDUCTIVE TO STUDY

Several students studying diligently before school last Thursday morning were startled by a loud "pop," followed by a deafening clatter. The radiator valve had blown off.

Maxine Boone was so thoroughly frightened that she temporarily forgot her nearly-completed English lesson and with no loss of time left the immediate vicinity of the radiator. May Mankins dropped her Latin book and tried unsuccessfully to replace the valve. She tried again, with the same result. When water started gushing forth from the radiator, she asked Paul Hess to help her. Paul had some history to think about, and couldn't be bothered with misplaced radiator valves, but when he was summoned by May, he came promptly to her rescue.

The valve was restored, Maxine and May returned to their studying, and everything was quiet once more.

TENIKOIT, VOLLEYBALL TEAMS FORMED BY UNDER, UPPER-CLASS GIRLS THIS WEEK

Two underclass teams captained by Lucile Flitcroft and Madeleine Metzger, with Mary Fisk and Eleanor Clark as alternate leaders, and one upper-class team, which has chosen Virginia Garvin and Alberta Hart as captain and alternate, were organized by the high school girls this week for tenikoit and volleyball.

Tenikoit, a new game to Jacksonville, was introduced as a good preliminary to volleyball but, according to Miss Fenwick, girls' coach, it has become so popular that the girls want to play volleyball only one day a week and have tenikoit games on two days.

With 36 girls coming out every day for gym, some fine competition will probably be developed before basketball season opens at the end of the month and the girls who intend to go out for the harder sport will be in good shape for it.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB SINGING 'AMARYLLIS,' BOYS' CHORUS HAS POPULAR NEW SONG

Miss Ruth Currin reports the arrival of two new songs for the JHS Glee clubs. These songs, both of two-part arrangement, are "Amaryllis," for the girls' glee club, and a new popular song, "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More," for the boys' chorus.

Members of the girls' glee club are practicing voice control and are learning the song "Amaryllis" for another musical presentation.

The boys' chorus has been meeting regularly for the last month, and its members are making rapid progress. The song, of two-part arrangement, presented at the meeting of the P.T. A. Friday, November 3, was one of the popular pieces of the season, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf." The soloists, Vyrion Bostwick, Paul Hess, Calvin Lusk and Gage Sanden, were especially appreciated.

P.T. A. MONTHLY DOLLAR TO FIRST AND SECOND GRADES

One whole dollar, to spend on their own room or their playground equipment, constituted the prize awarded the first and second grades by the P.T. A. for putting forth more effective efforts than the other rooms could in persuading their mothers to attend the last meeting of the association.

Mrs. Mary Norvell, first and second grade teacher, says that the money it has won will be used to purchase a bird book for her room.

STRUTTING BRONZE TURKEYS IN 3RD, 4TH GRADES REMIND PUPILS OF COMING HOLIDAYS

By GRACE WINNINGHAM
Although their eyes occasionally stray, gold and brown heads still bend diligently over their readers and spelling papers despite the pompous band of 30 Thanksgiving turkeys that go strutting around their third and fourth grade room.

These proud and haughty members of the fowl family seem completely unaware that they are making their last march.

For the past week children of the third and fourth grade room have been happily busy adorning their walls with decorations that remind us that Thanksgiving day will soon be here.

ASK COMMUNITY TO GIVE JOBS TO STUDENTS SATURDAY, 25TH

A plan to set a certain day on which students could solicit and do various odd jobs in the community, turning over their earnings later to the student body fund, was voted upon by the student body at a special session held last Wednesday, November 8, and met with unanimous favor.

The day chosen was Saturday, November 25, when people will be putting their homes and yards into "spick and span" shape before Thanksgiving guests arrive. There will be plenty of leaves to be raked up, gardens to be spaded under, wood to be piled, sheds and storehouses to be tidied, houses to be cleaned and babies to be tended on that day, think students.

All student body members have handed to the committee in charge of "cooperation day" slips of paper on which they have written the numbers of hours they can contribute and the kind of work they can do best. Jacksonville people will be asked to give whatever work they may have for that day to the committee, which will then assign students to the jobs. No money will be paid students; employers will be asked to send payment, after setting their own prices, directly to the school. They will also be asked not to pay for any work that is not satisfactorily done, and to report such work to the committee in charge, whose members are Valera Wittingham, Paul Hess, Elizabeth White, Lucile Flitcroft, George Van Galder and Lewis Norman.

ALICE WALTON, YELL QUEEN, NAMES FRESHMAN ASSISTANT

Alice Walton, who was elected yell queen for this year at a student body meeting last week, has selected as her assistant Freshman Bill Lorton.

Smiling Billie, who has the happy faculty of keeping everybody's attention as long as he wants it, is being coached in Jacksonville high's colorful assortment of blood-warming rah-rahs, and, with his fair colleague, will be "rarin' to go" when the day set for the first big pep meeting rolls around.

DO-NUT GAMES IN 2ND WEEK; REGULARS START IN 2 WEEKS

By PAUL HESS
Two quintets, Ray Hunsaker's eighth grade, and the Hess Ironmen, are now out of the running in the elimination tournament being played among the five high school and two grade school teams in the Donut league. Five teams, the Stellers, coached by Cal Lusk; the Stellers' Beavers; the grade Midgets, Bud Reinking's Cubs, and Don Forbes' Yellow Jackets are still unbeaten.

Playoffs so far have shown that Jacksonville has the material it needs for a real hoop squad this year, and plenty of candidates for the places of "Chuck" Ward and Leonard Gilbert, the only two of (Continued on page three)

OREGON'S DIAMOND JUBILEE MEDFORD-J'VILLE JUNE 3, 1934

FOR BEAUTY... CONVENIENCE... SAFETY and HEALTH. As one pauses upon the threshold of a properly lighted living-room he should see several tempting vistas. Several persons should be able to find a comfortable place for reading or sewing. Many a woman economizing on light is sacrificing youthful looks to wrinkled weariness. Good light relieves eye-strain, often prevents headaches and nervousness and may prevent permanent eye injury. A new type of portable lamp makes good lighting possible with but little additional expense. It floods the entire room with shadowless light or serves as the conventional reading light... or both. Made by several manufacturers, it is for sale at your dealer's. Why not try one in YOUR living room tonight?
