

Personal News Notes

Both from JACKSONVILLE and OVER the HILL

● Kenneth Anderson of Medford was a recent guest at the home of his aunt, Mrs. A. S. Kleinhammer. He was accompanied by Miss Florenz Yost of Utah, who is visiting friends in Medford. Additional guests at the Kleinhammer home during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mathes of Ashland.

● Mrs. Lester Layton of Grants Pass, accompanied by her son Carl, of that city, motored to Applegate a few days ago, where she was a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Lance Offenbacher.

● Whether green peas in November are a sign of spring or not, it is more probable that the vegetable signifies the ambition of the gardener. Abe Kromling, well known Applegate resident, is raising a late variety of peas which have reached a height of four feet, and are bearing, even against the chilling winds from snow-capped foothills. Mrs. W. H. McDaniel and other residents report sumg little prim roses venturing forth in a challenge to the approach of winter.

● Courteous service at the Nugget

● Among those from Medford and vicinity who spent Sunday visiting Applegate relatives were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lay, Mrs. Everett Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Throckmorton and family, and Mrs. Isie Taylor.

● Mrs. Hester Pence has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Amos McKee after spending several months with relatives at Elk creek and Ruch.

● Wait Zeidler, employed by the Aurora Mining company on Little Applegate, is recovering from a minor but unusual accident which prohibited him from working for a few days. After stepping on a nail which caused a painful wound in his foot, Mr. Zeidler warned his fellow workmen of similar danger, and within a few hours he contacted a nail with the other foot. Neither injury resulted seriously.

● Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fish of Phoenix spent Tuesday with Mrs. Fish's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brown, of Applegate.

● Western Union at the Nugget

● Good progress is reported by members of the community basketball team at Applegate, who began practice early this fall. Two practice games have been waged with Williams creek, each five winning a game. The local team has joined the Grants Pass City league, and when not engaged in scheduled games in that connection, will be glad to meet any team wishing to play. Anybody desiring to confer with the team is asked to contact Ed Warford, who is acting as manager at present.

● With the tower at the Mt. Isabel lookout on Forest creek practically completed, the CCC carpenters working under Ross Dickey, construction foreman, have abandoned the project for the present, and are establishing a spike camp at Talent, headquarters for the road crew which will build a road from Anderson creek to Little Applegate. Later the force will return to Mt. Isabel to complete the glass house atop the tower.

● The Nugget for cold drinks.

● Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Kleinhammer expect to go to Ashland this week-end to attend "The Living Corpse," play presented by the normal school students. Miss Marilyn Young of Ashland, eight-year old granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kleinhammer, will appear in the presentation, taking the part of the only child character in the production.

● Wm. Dorn has returned to Applegate after spending a month at Chehalis as a guest of his uncle, Ernest Dorn.

● A representation of Applegate people attended the recreation school conducted at the court house auditorium Monday and Tuesday evenings by Mrs. Mabel Mack and Miss Gertrude Skow of Corvallis. Grange members included Mrs. Ethel Ludwig and Mrs. Tom Mee, while the Home Extension unit was represented by Mesdames Fred Offenbacher, Lee Port, A. N. Krouse, and Lance Offenbacher.

● The Nugget for magazines.

● Mr. and Mrs. Lester Finley of Klamath Falls were recent Applegate visitors, being guests of Mr. Finley's brother and sister, Ed Finley and Mrs. Victor Andersen.

● To plan the landscaping of the grounds at the Star ranger station is the aim of Mr. Sunderman, landscape artist of the University of California, who arrived on the Applegate a few days ago. Mr. Sunderman has expressed his approval of the landscaping already completed, which includes the construction of stone steps leading to the station buildings and the planting of ferns, barberry, and other wild plants on the premises. The general plan will include the transplanting of other wild shrubs on the slopes adjacent to the buildings.

● Stop at the Nugget.

● Mrs. Barbara Olinghouse, employed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Cantrall for the last four months, returned a few days ago to her home at Azalea, Ore.

● Mrs. Meyer has returned to her home at Klamath Falls, after spending several days as a guest of her cousin, Mrs. Chas. Hamilton. Mrs. Myer also visited Mrs. Wm. Jordan on Thompson creek while in this vicinity.

● Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Cantrall had as guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith of Jacksonville.

● Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ravenor of Jacksonville, accompanied by their grandson, Jimmie Ravenor, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Miles Cantrall recently.

● Mrs. Etta Kasad and Ada Hartley of Ashland spent the past week end with their sister, Mrs. H. C. Mechem, at Jacksonville.

● Amy Dow, Jacksonville's well-known restaurant operator, said she would serve Thanksgiving dinners from noon till evening next Thursday at her popular cafe.

● About twenty members of the Applegate Grange attended the regular meeting of the Central Point organization Friday evening, at which time Wm. Clute and Miss Maxine Hill, members of the local juvenile grange, were graduated to the local subordinate grange.

● The Saturday night dance at Applegate, sponsored by the Grange, was a success, 64 numbers having been sold. The Grange expects to give two more fortnightly dances, the next to be December 1. Members assisted the Community League Saturday in completing the ceiling of the hall.

● Mr. and Mrs. Frances Krouse are among several local people who were unable to be about as a result of severe colds.

● Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gillis, who recently took over the local drug store, will be open for business on Monday.

● Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Howard and son Billy, and Mrs. Frances Lane, Mr. Howard's mother, all of Medford, called on friends here Friday evening.

TO YOU, WE OFFER OUR MOST SINCERE

THANKS!

There's a word! A word, THANKS. But what does it mean? The bell-hop mutters "thanks" when we slip him a dime; the telephone operator echoes "thanks" when we give her a number; the politician guffaws "thanks" when we pledge a vote. A national holiday is based on the word. We use it a thousand times a day in our speech. Yet—what does it mean?

To the merchants who have signed this page it means this: They have tried to bring you the finest merchandise and at the lowest prices to you. You have appreciated their efforts. By buying in Jacksonville you have shown your appreciation of their work. You have said "thanks" to them. They, in turn, go further. They have appreciated your patronage but they are trying to make their thanks mean even more . . . they all join in wishing you a most happy and enjoyable Thanksgiving.

These Merchants Wish to Express Their Thanks to Jacksonville!
