It's Like Having the Measles!

Governor Charles H. Martin seeks to enforce rigid economy in Oregon administrative affairs and he thereby is making himself as welcome as a bad case of measles at the Dionne nursery. Everyone wants the governor to save the taxpayers money, but not on him.

The picture in Oregon is indicative of the national trend. Taxpayers, straining under an impossible load, want the budget balanced on one hand, and federal help on the other. And what their right hands keep a secret from their lefts may be the seat of so much dissatisfaction with local, state and national administrations. We all admit dentists are a necessity, but how we can hate that guy when he applies forceps on our most prominent canine and lies, "Now this won't hurt a bit!"

Governor Martin was elected by an overwhelming ballot on a platform of rigid economy, consolidation of commissions which overlap, and elimination of administrative wastes. It sounded good at the time, and we all realized Mr. Martin certainly understood the plight of the property owner, business man and the worker, and what had to be done about it. But when it comes time for him to do the actual paring, Salem is overrun with cliques, lobbies and protests. "Yeah, we want YOU to lower state operating expenses, but not on US," is the chorus.

However, the Miner supported General Martin as a candidate because this paper thought he was the better man for the job. We liked his principles, his tendencies. It is reasonable to assume most other voters who cast their ballot for the present governor felt about the same way. But ah! Ye Fickle Voters! One day ye weigh mightily heavy questions of state and vote accordingly, and then, when it comes time to back up your de-isions, ye heap criticism, suggestions and demands upon your choice. In any other social sense, that is called renigging, or running out on a fellow.

This human trait, of which we speak, is one of the penalties of assuming public office. Americans are wont to elect a man to play the game, and then play the game for him over his shoulder.

But at that it looks as though Governor Martin will go a long way toward helping Oregon make some very necessary improvements.

Misunderstood Brush Marines!

Frequently one hears the assertion, "If the government would quit throwing money away on the CCC there would be a lot more available to the needy and aged."

The 3-C idea was one of President Roosevelt's pets, and the Miner finds it difficult to understand why some people are opposed to the "Brush Marines." And as for the idea being a waste of money, listen to these facts:

Over $40,000,000 has been paid to CCC enrollees, who in turn have used the bulk of this sum for the benefit of parents, families and dependents. (A 3-C worker draws but $5 in cash each month, remaining $25 of his salary going direct to some designated relative.) A revolving, timely charity if ever there was one.

One million acres of timberland have been fireproofed by the Brush Marines, 68,000 dams have been constructed and a million acres have been covered in insect control. We of southern Oregon can appreciate these benefits to one of the nation's greatest natural resources—timber.

Merchants and manufacturers have benefited from the CCC to the extent of $50,000,000 spent for food, machines and equipment.

Of even greater importance, from a humanitarian standpoint if no other, has been the effect of the civilian conservation corps on the health and mental attitude of the veterans and young men who have enrolled, and the improvement in many's environment. The average enrollee, taken from ranks of the total 300,000, has gained seven pounds and has grown a quarter of an inch in height.

So, next time you see a CCC truck rolling by laden with young men, don't regard them as a necessary evil, but as a national experiment in health, education and environment which is working to the benefit of both the CCC members and the country as a whole.

GUEST RIDER CAN NOT PENALIZE GOOD DRIVER

The moot question of whether a guest rider in an automobile can sue the driver in the event of injury during an accident was settled this week by the state supreme court in an opinion by Justice J. O. Bailey. The law provides that a guest in an automobile cannot recover from the host for injuries "unless such accident shall have been intentional on the part of said owner or operator, or caused by his gross negligence or intoxication or his reckless disregard of the rights of others."

The WORLD and YOU

By D. E. NOURSE

While protests are being voiced against old age pensions and relief programs, it might be well to glance at the recommendation for military expansion, $792,484,265! This figure may not mean anything, but a little arithmetic says that it is over TWO MILLION dollars a day. It is $180,000,000 more than for last year.

If, as President Roosevelt said, "there is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful," just why should it be necessary to increase our military expenditures 65 per cent in two years? Nor is this all, in addition to the above increase, they expect to get a good share of PWA money, as they did last year, which would run it up around a billion dollars. Just why should this be, and who is going to pay the bill?

Apropos of the above might be quoted this line from A. B. Houghton, "The cannon fodder is becoming articulate."

A system capable of producing as much as we can, and yet, unable to provide for the comfort of the aged is a silly affair.

What a strange world we live in: Fields raising more wheat than we can use, pastures producing so many cattle and hogs that we have to kill a surplus, mines full of coal, factories equipped to turn out more clothes than we can wear, mills able to cut lumber enough to house everybody, and yet—!

"Angels are still singing. It's our wave length that's at fault."—H. B. Lewis.

Government does not create wealth, and that which it distributes to some it must take from others.—Weston Leader.

ELKS SEEK BAN ON COMMUNISM

Calling for "the flaming spirit of a crusade," Michael F. Shannon, grand exalted ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, has launched a memorial to congress for legislation deemed necessary to eradicate communist and other subversive influences in the country.

This determination came with full knowledge that subversion interests are being allowed to grow and spread unchecked by official action of our federal government and that corrective bills of two sessions of congress have been permitted to die in committee. A challenge to all units of the order came in the form of a resolution from the Elks of Concord, Mass., whose home stands almost on the spot where "the embattled farmers stood" on that memorable day in April, 1775.

The petitions now in the hands of the 1400 Elk lodges throughout the country cover eight points of legislation:

Investigation of all subversive activities by the department of justice with ample funds provided to furnish personnel and cover expenses, with discretionary authority to publish facts concerning individuals or organizations seeking to overthrow the government by force or violence.

Outlawing organizations having for their purpose the overthrow by force or violence of the American constitutional government.

Making it a felony to advocate, promote or encourage such overthrow.

Denying use of the mails to publications which seek to overthrow or affiliated with outlawed organizations.

Prohibit interstate transportation of such publications.

Making certain deportation of aliens seeking the overthrow of the United States government.

Providing for revocation of naturalization of naturalized citizens advocating overthrow or change of government through force or violence.

Petitions asking such legislation from all communities will be assembled at the Elks national memorial building in Chicago February 22, Washington's birthday.

H. G. Enders, exalted ruler of Ashland Elks lodge No. 944, has received an allotment of petitions with instructions for local handling; a copy may be found at any time at the club or chamber of commerce.
