

50 HOMEMAKERS FROM COUNTY IN CORVALLIS MEET

By MAUDE POOL

CORVALLIS—Fifty of Jackson county's homemakers from home extension units, Granges, city and county P-TA councils, and other organizations are among the 600 delegates at Corvallis this week for Home Interests conference, but it is Mrs. Mabel Thornton of Fish Lake in southern Oregon who truly possesses the courage of her convictions and tramped through six miles of snow in a drenching rain in order to be here on the campus for the week's program.

For nearly a year Mrs. Thornton, who is an active extension service worker, being a member of the Jackson county executive committee, had planned to attend conference—she knew she was coming and only two things could stop her, she said last night—deep snow and sickness. But eight feet of snow last month, with more than a foot remaining in drifts at the present, failed to stop her. With her car stuck somewhere in the Fish Lake vicinity since December, Mrs. Thornton donned her rubber boots and snow shoes, took her son along to carry her suitcase, and began the journey to Corvallis. More than two miles were traversed on snow shoes, the rest of the journey being made through slush, mud and torrents of rushing water cutting gullies in the road. But Mrs. Thornton says just one lecture was worth the trip, and yesterday she spoke briefly of her experience over KOAC during the extension service program. A number of others from Jackson county also were on the air yesterday morning.

Jackson county is playing a prominent part in the conference program. Monday Mrs. Effie Birdseye of Rogue River was elected state president of the Oregon state home economics extension council. Mrs. Birdseye, however, was unable to attend conference on account of illness. Five members of the Jackson county executive committee were present for the annual meeting of the council held here Monday.

Jackson county's winning play, "The Valiant," presented by Phoenix Grange, was presented last night at the play festival with other winners from Multnomah, Lane and Josephine, and ranked well with the other entries, according to Herbert Rahe, professor of speech at Willamette university, who offered constructive criticism on the presentations. Tonight Clackamas, Columbia and Deschutes counties were to present their plays.

Applegate delegates from the extension unit include Mrs. A. N. Krause, Mrs. Lee Port, Mrs. Fred Offenbacher and the writer. From Ashland are Mrs. P. C. Forsythe, Mrs. A. C. Joy, and Mrs. Ray Burns of Bellview. An event of special interest to many is the mother, son and daughter tea tomorrow afternoon, given by Omicron Nu and the home economics club at Withycombe house. Lee Port Jr., student in the school of forestry; Beth Joy, junior student, and Adena Joy, faculty member, are expected to join their mothers at the tea.

Delegates find their programs scheduled with a swift tempo, lectures throughout the day on varied subjects of interest to the homemaker given by prominent speakers, many of whom are nationally known; complete programs every evening, with opportunity between times for swimming, inspection of numerous exhibits, and trips to libraries, green houses, nursery schools, home management houses and other places of interest.

Jackson county guests are housed together at Hawley hall, and meals are served at the Memorial union.

The Willamette valley weather is great. It's been raining and raining.

Barnhouse Market Opens 279 E. Main Monday This Week

Frank Barnhouse has opened a new market at 279 East Main street, definitely taking over the business from his father, J. L. Barnhouse. Formerly located in the Ashland Groceteria, Barnhouse moved to his present location the first of the week.

J. L. Barnhouse had been in business in Ashland for the past 25 years, and had always maintained a high standard of service and enterprise. Many of his old friends and customers will regret his retirement, but all wish his son most successful business in its new location.

Barnhouse and his assistant, Foss Cramer, have been in meat markets for quite some time, and are fully equipped to give the best of service and quality meats to all former and new customers.

HELEN BIEDE MILLIGAN PASSES HERE MONDAY

Mrs. Helen Biede Milligan passed away at her home on Laurel street Monday, February 11.

Mrs. Milligan was born in Phoenix, Oregon, and was married to Victor O. Milligan October 7, 1929, who survives her. Mrs. Milligan also is survived by her mother, Mrs. H. C. Stock, and one sister, Miss Gertrude Biede; a step-brother, Al C. Stock of Sacramento. Mrs. Milligan was a valued member of Christian Science church and the local Rebekah lodge.

Her family moved to Ashland in 1902, where they since have resided and a host of friends in southern Oregon mourn her passing.

Memorial services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Stock funeral home, conducted by the Christian Science church. The remains were shipped to Portland for cremation.

About People You Know!

EDITED BY EDWINA JAMES

● Miss Frances Hess of Ashland, recently was pledged to Alpha Gamma Delta, a social sorority. Miss Hess is a student of Home Economics at the University of Oregon.

● Miss Madge Mitchell, who is teaching in Gold Hill, spent the week-end in Ashland with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mitchell.

● On her 85th birthday, February 6, Mrs. Jennie Hammond was honored by Mrs. A. C. Spindler, hostess at a lovely birthday party. The afternoon was spent in playing anagrams, followed by delightful refreshments served at a well-appointed table lighted by candles, with center piece of the birthday cake, which had Happy Birthday written on top in pink and green.

Many lovely gifts were received by the honoree from the following guests: Mesdames Estella Cobb, Bertha Corthell, Myrtle Spaulding, Maude Cyphers, Tarbox, Lulu Howard, A. F. Abbott and the hostess, Mrs. Spindler.

● Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Jones, who have been residents of Ashland for the past three years, coming here from Raleigh, North Carolina, have gone to Los Angeles for a vacation. Mrs. Jones will probably return to Ashland in a month or six weeks, but Mr. Jones plans to remain in the south indefinitely.

● Harvey Gearhart, well-known in Ashland, left last Saturday morning for Oakland, Calif., to stay at the Boeing school of aeronautics for a week. Later he expects to enroll in the school. Gearhart has been employed for the past year and a half at the Lithia hotel.

● Lawrence Hubert presented his pupils in a fine violin recital Friday night at the Lithia hotel. Each pupil showed unusual technique and promise for the future. Every number on the program was played with a mastery of understanding.

The pupils presented were Dale Williams, Bonnie Boone, Stanley Coleman, Jeanette Burton, Beatrice Werth, Mouryne Burton, Dick Dayhoff, Veda Williams, Patsy Whitney, Corinne Croft, Van Ness, Andrew Johnson, Billy Willets, Harry Kahn, Peggy Guiley, Alice Coggins, Lois White, Jean Billings, Carol Templar, Margaret Harrison, Florence Hubert, Joe Burdick, Elmer Ayers, Shirley Walton, Ruth Hardy, Leslie Cincald, Francis Aikens and Phyllis Sparr.

Mary Louise Roberson, one of the most brilliant young violinists in the city, was unable to be in the recital, but she will be presented in another recital soon at the Lithia hotel.

● Miss Charlotte Wolters had as her guests Saturday evening at a delightful Valentine party Elaine Andrews, Eleanor Oium, Helen Dunn, Betty Beatty, Lucille Lambert, Frances Aikens, Ethel Mae Thompson and Gladys Lininger. Refreshments were served at a table beautifully decorated with flowers, and lighted by candles placed on both ends of the table. At the conclusion of the amusing games, Ethel Mae Thompson was awarded first prize and Eleanor Oium second prize.

● A birthday dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Peachey for their son, Bill Bailey, celebrating his eighteenth birthday, on Sunday, February 10. Every member of the family was present, including all the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Peachey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Jones, Mabelle Jones, Carl Brower, Frances Port, Bob Bailey, Bill Bailey, Edwina James and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Peachey.

The dinner was delightfully fragrant of the south, where Bill was born—Raleigh, North Carolina. The white birthday cake lighted with small yellow candles made a beautiful center piece for the attractively laid table. The dinner was given two days earlier than planned because of the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Jones for Los Angeles Monday morning.

● The Camp Fire Girls of Ashland gave a Valentine party honoring their mothers Saturday evening at the Senior High school gymnasium. Decorations were in red and white, hearts being featured in red. The committee on decorations was directed by Miss Janzen of the Junior high school. Miss Child's girls arranged the many entertaining games on the separate tables to which each girl and her mother moved after completion of one game. Prizes went to Jean Fridegar, daughter, and Mrs. Frazier, mother. Stunting and singing followed the games and the committee on refreshments under direction of Miss Ott served light refreshments for the 125 mothers and daughters present as the proper ending for this delightful and successful party.

● The American Legion and Ladies auxiliary is preparing a program of special interest to be heard over KMED on Washington's birthday. The hour for this program will be announced later.

A group of ensemble players will be featured consisting of the Misses Mary Louise Roberson and Alice Coggins, violins; Mrs. Berta Denton, flute; and Chester Woods, cello. An orchestration for the auxiliary theme song, "Trees," is being prepared by the music chairman, Frieda Ernestine Hartley, to be sung by Mrs. Fred Schuerman with string and flute accompaniment. The auxiliary ladies' quartet, the Mesdames Smith, L. Hansen, Edwin Dunn and Paul Beyers will be heard in patriotic numbers, and Mrs. Alita Lear will favor the radio audience with a whistling solo, accompanied by Chester Woods on the cello.

● A surprise party was given for Miss Hazel Etwiller on her twentieth birthday anniversary at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday evening at her home, 95 Coolidge street, by Barney Mast.

During the evening guests enjoyed dancing and games and at 10 o'clock attractive refreshments were served, carrying out the Valentine idea in the beautiful cake.
