

ASHLAND NINE TO FACE FIRST FOES SUNDAY

Ashland's Southern Oregon League baseball team will receive its first test of the current season Sunday at Jacksonville with Bud Conlin's Medford Gilmore Lions furnishing the opposition.

The battle will be a practice affair and will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Playing manager John Miljus is undecided as to whom will be the starting hurler for the Ashlanders, but it will probably be lanky Bob Hardy, the lefthanded high school fireballer. Miljus plans to work all his pitchers during the game but will do no chucking himself.

Bill Channing, righthander, Arnold Gosnell, righthander and Nell Winkle, Normal school hurler and another orthodox thrower will all see action.

Probably the entire Ashland roster will make the trip to the historic town and probably everyone will get to see what opposing pitching looks like.

Cliff McLean will probably do the bulk of the catching with Steve Fowler, high school receiver and John Baldwin alternating behind the bat.

Gilmore Lions, under the management of Bud Conlin, long and well known in Southern Oregon bush baseball, will enter the game with one victory already under their belt, a 7-0 win over Jacksonville last Sunday. They will undoubtedly present plenty of tough opposition, as they boast practically the identical team that drubbed Medford's Southern Oregon Rogues 8-0 at the tail end of last year.

The game will be the first of two practice affairs for Ashland before the start of the 1935 Southern Oregon League pennant race. The following Sunday, Ashland will travel to Hilt, California to play the Lumberjacks and the next Sunday, May 5, the Miljusites will be away to Grants Pass to blast open the league with the champion Grants Pass Merchants.

In the first workout of the season, held at Fuller field last Saturday, manager Miljus was greeted by a hustling crew of better than 25 aspirants.

For five solid hours the huge ex-big leaguer sent the throng a gruelling workout and when it was all over, expressed the opinion that he had the makings of a fine ball club. The big fellow was especially enthusiastic over Parker Hess, young high school shortstop, and Cliff McLean, SONS catcher.

Both those boys, stated Miljus, showed a lot of promise. Following are the players who have been turning out and who will probably make the trip to Jacksonville: pitchers, Kannasto, Gosnell, Hardy, Winkle; catchers, McLean, Fowler, Baldwin; infielders, Billy Courtney, Billy Hulen, Parker Hess, Bill Jungwirth, Ray Woodyard, Bill Courtney; outfielders, Leonard Hall, Wally Walcott, Barnes and several others.

Master Masons At Klamath Falls In Successful Meeting

The gathering of Southern Oregon Master Masons held at Klamath Falls last Saturday was a wonderful success. About 350 members of the order were present, most of them residents of Southern Oregon and northeastern California. The register, however showed lodge membership from the Isle of Man, Eng. on the east, to Hawaii and the Philippines on the west (they are not east.) and from Duluth, Minn., on the north to Key West, Fla., on the south.

Every Master Mason present was given a triangular badge printed in blue on white wood. His name and lodge were penned on in red, making it easy for visitors to identify one another.

Those attending from Ashland included Otis Johnson, David Whittle, Art Peters, H. J. Carter, Jim Lennox, D. A. Manz, H. H. Sprout, Fred Hitchcock, Harold Teal and B. W. Talcott.

JO MILLER TOLD ME THIS ONE

THIS FRIENDS TO MAKE FUN OF HIM. CLAIMED THAT ANYONE THEY TOLD HAD BEEN ONE OF 'JO MILLERS'

PEOPLE WHO GET TIRED HEARING A REPETITION OF AN OLD JOKE SAY — 'WAT'S A JOE MILLER'

BORN IN 1864, JO MILLER, AN OLD ENGLISH COMIC ACTOR, WAS REPUTED TO HAVE ORIGINATED ALL THE BEST (AND WORST) JOKES BUT NEVER TOLD THEM. HE WAS QUITE SOLEMN AND AT THE TIME OF HIS DEATH, AUGUST 15, 1878, IT WAS QUITE POPULAR TO PUBLISH BOOKS OF FAMOUS MEN'S JESTS.

SO JOE MILLER'S NAME WAS AT ITS HIGHEST ABOUT A YEAR AFTER HIS DEATH WHEN A BOOK ENTITLED 'JO MILLER'S JESTS' WAS PUBLISHED.

FROM THAT DAY TO THIS ALL THE OLD SAYS—GOOD, BAD AND INDIFFERENT—are STILL ATTRIBUTED TO 'JO MILLER'S LATEST' JOKE BOOK.

Stuff'n' Dates, first release of which appears above, will be a regular feature of the Greater Southern Oregon Miner from now on. It is another step in the Miner's expansion toward its ultimate goal. This feature, which is a historical "believe it or not," presents in an entertaining manner choice bits from the past of historical and human interest. In addition to this and other present features of the Miner, next week all paid-up subscribers will receive the Miner's new eight-page magazine section, replete with fiction, cartoons, illustrations, topics of the day, fashions and recipes. Famous 1927 World Series Miljus fans Gherig and Meusel Pitches to Lazzeri Was it wild pitch?

By BILLY HULEN

Just how close John Miljus, present Ashland baseball manager, came to being the hero of the 1927 World Series between the New York Yankees and the Pittsburgh Pirates instead of the "newspaper goat" will, of course, never be known, but it is safe to say that he came so close that baseball men for years to come will discuss it, just like they have been doing since that September day in New York.

FACING GREAT YANKS

Miljus, that afternoon, was facing the greatest collection of hitters the game had ever known. Never had there been, nor probably never again will there be, such a "murderer's row" as the Yankees of New York were throwing against the National league champions for the worlds title. Three games the American league champs had won, with the mighty array of hitting talent, Ruth, Gherig, Lazzeri, Dickey, Combs and Bob Meusel, literally blasting Pirate pitcher after pitcher from the mound.

MILJUS RELIEVES IN NINTH

The Series simmered down to the ninth inning of the fourth game. The Yanks had already won the first three. They needed only one more to own baseballs highest prize. And, to start the last of the ninth inning, Donnie Bush, Pirate manager, sent Miljus to the mound with the score tied. Two Yank batters got on base when Grantham and Pie Traynor bobbled easy ground balls.

GHERIG AND MEUSEL FAN

Yanks on first and third and at the plate, Babe Ruth, in the heyday of his career. Miljus curved one at the Babe and it was a strike. Bush came out of the Pirate dugout and held up four fingers, motioning to first base. He was afraid of Ruth. So Miljus walked the big boy. Now Gherig was at the plate. Dangerous? He had led the National league in runs batted in! Miljus struck out Gherig on five pitched balls. Now it was Bob Meusel at bat. Also plenty dangerous in the pinch. Miljus used exactly three balls to fan Meusel.

WILD PITCH OR PASSED BALL

The fans were hysterical. Miljus had struck out two of the greatest hitters in baseball in succession. And, the bases were still loaded. Tony Lazzeri was the batter. Miljus curved in a strike. It couldn't be done, breathed 40,000 hushed fans. Not three of them in a row. Miljus hooked another, blindingly fast. Again a strike! Baseball immortality was flirting with that big righthander out on the Pirate mound as he got the signal from Johnny Gooch, his catcher. One more strike and he would have fanned, one after another, the heart of the mightiest batting lineup in the world. Three of them! And with the bases loaded, the score tied and in a World Series game. Gooch's signal was for another curve ball, thrown sidarm, Mil-

HOWELL K-O'S KID DALLAS AT EAGLES

By ART (SCOOP) COOPER

Wardlow Howell, popular SONS athlete, won a technical knockout over Kid Dallas, Klamath favorite, in the second round of a scheduled six-round bout last Tuesday night at the Eagles hall. Dallas is a hard-hitting lad but the mighty Howell had things his own way while the fight lasted.

Howard Abel, Ashland's lightweight flash, won a technical knockout over Bob Parrick, former lightweight champion of Vancouver Barracks. Howard is a clean fighter and will meet Parrick in the next smoker in a six-round main event.

Frank Redke, Ashland's "Fighting Clown," took a four-round decision over Red Handsaker in a rematch bout. Frank was hardpressed every round but a right sock to Handsaker's eye in the second placed Red horizontal-like for the count of eight, and colored the decision.

Irish O'Hoxie scored a technical knockout over Al Handsaker in the second round of a four-round preliminary. Sonny Icenhower went down to defeat under the crushing blows that Dale Adams nanded him in the curtain raiser.

Just best delivery. Miljus wound up, and with every muscle straining to its utmost, threw toward the dangerous Lazzeri. The ball flashed toward the plate, broke with razor edged sharpness and smacked into Gooch's glove. But Gooch hadn't shifted with the curve and the english deflected it off the catchers mitt. Toward the Pirate dugout the ball rolled while in from the third came a Yankee runner with the score that ended the game and World Series.

CLOSE TO FAME

That play is one of the most discussed in all world series history. For who knows what would have happened if Miljus had fanned Lazzeri, forcing the game into extra innings. But one thing is certain. If little Tony Lazzeri had struck out, the name of Miljus would have gone into the book as performing one of the greatest feats in the history of Baseball. Striking out Gherig, Meusel and Lazzeri in succession.

They're after that Horse Heaven hermit who has been trying to get by without living off the government.—Weston Leader.

HOBSON RECEIVES WORD WEDNESDAY OF NEW COACH JOB

Howard Hobson, head coach and physical director of the Southern Oregon Normal school for the past three years, was appointed to the positions of head baseball and basketball coach at the University of Oregon Wednesday.

The selection of Hobson, made from a list of over 40 applicants, was announced by Hugh Rosson, graduate manager of the university after a student body athletic and executive session, and was telephoned to Ashland where the announcement was made at the meeting of the Active Club.

In returning to University of Oregon after a number of years, Hobson will round out a staff of coaches that all are graduates of the Eugene school, and will take over the positions left vacant by the resignation of Billy Reinhart, who will continue his athletic coaching at George Washington university at Washington, D. C.

The new coach will report for duty next September, at which time Reinhart's resignation takes effect.

BALL CLUB NAME CONTEST TO END SATURDAY NOON

Tomorrow is the last day, baseball fans, to win that $5.00 season ticket to each and every home game of the Ashland baseball team. The contest closes at 12 noon and to have your suggestion considered, your contribution must be in the Southern Oregon Miner office, the chamber of commerce or the Ashland Daily Tidings office by that time.

All you do is think of a name for the Ashland baseball team, write it down on a slip of paper with your name and address below it and leave at any of the three above mentioned places.

Judges of the best name are John Miljus, playing manager of the Ashland team, Bill Eberhart, city editor of the Daily Tidings and Billy Hulen, sports writer of the Miner. In case two or more of the winning names are turned in by different persons, the winner will be decided by a draw.

Remember these names cannot be used, as other Southern Oregon League teams are known by them: Merchants, Eagles and Red Sox.

Master or Victim of Circumstances?

Life isn't all "luck." Though ability isn't evenly divided among humankind, ability to get ahead is often a matter of choice.

Often the man called "lucky" in business has made his own luck by foresight, careful planning, saving for opportunity. He realized opportunity would mean nothing if he weren't in a position to grasp it.

The man with money saved regularly can usually master circumstances. Your future is up to you, but we can help you earn your master's papers.
