

J. O. RIGG LAID TO REST SUNDAY

John Riggs is dead. With him goes the grief and sorrow of both youngsters and oldsters of Ashland.

He died July 19 at 6:30 p.m. at 57 years of age at the Barber Convalescent Home where he had been resting and attempting to win once again strength enough to continue.

He came to Ashland in May 1908 with J. R. McCracken from Oakland, California. A painter by trade, he acquired lead poisoning at an early age while working in the lead mines in Colorado. This poisoning ultimately led to his death.

Riggs was a staunch supporter of the Methodist church and interested himself in the affairs of the YMCA and Boy Scouts. His activities in the two latter had endeared him to hundreds of now small boys and to others who are no longer small.

The funeral was held at the Methodist church with large numbers of friends present. Flowers were in abundance, with beautiful floral tributes coming from all parts of southern Oregon. Rev. C. E. Dunham of the First Baptist church was in charge of the services, assisted by the Rev. M. T. Wire, pastor of the Methodist church.

Palbearers were C. Presnall, J. R. McCracken, R. E. Stevens, O. F. Carson, James A. Yeo, and Ralph Billings. A male quartet composed of Allan McGee, Lew Hansen, George Mason and C. A. White with organ accompaniment by Louise Anderson. Interment was held in Mountain View cemetery.

Survivors are Mrs. Daisy Rigg Field of Kilbourne, Ill., and Mrs. Myrtle Rigg Parker of Omaha, Neb. Two nieces also survive.

Miner Had Brand New Type Dress Months Before—!

Imitation is the sincerest flattery, and this week the Miner would like to indulge in a bit of vanity while it points out the fact that other journals in the same field are "modernizing" their equipment by adding features which the Miner first brought to Ashland.

Not only did the Southern Oregon Miner bring the first modern, new headletter type face to this city, but it still pioneers the field in the newest type design (in which the text of this newspaper is set) which is the last word in readability, legibility and causes less eye-strain than any other type face yet designed. It is the newest creation of the Intertype corporation. New advertisement borders and other modern typographic features were introduced first to Ashland by the Miner.

The Miner also leads in another department of newspaperdom—printing. This little weekly is setting the pace for ALL southern Oregon in the matter of clear, well defined printing. No new type will show to best advantage unless it is made to print, after purchase.

● Mr. and Mrs. Erford Poole had as their guests last week, Mrs. Charles Payne and son of Grants Pass.

● Mr. and Mrs. Homer Billings and Laura Billings returned to Ashland the first of the week from Union Creek where they had been since last Wednesday.

● Mr. and Mrs. Max Crowson have as their guest for an indefinite length of time, Mrs. Crowson's sister, Mrs. Norma Rust of San Francisco.

● Mr. and Mrs. T. L. O'Harra had as their guests for the latter part of last week, L. H. Witty and son Tom, of Portland. Witty and another son, Jerry, who had spent most of the summer here with his grandparents, returned to Portland the first of the week, leaving Tom to spend the remainder of the summer in Ashland.

About People You Know

● A marriage of interest to Ashland residents was solemnized recently at the home of F. H. Minear on the Jacksonville highway, between Miss Violet Judy and Norman P. Fraley. The bride, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Minear is well known to Southern Oregon, as a result of her work in Christian Endeavor circles. The groom is equally well known for the same reason. The wedding was held on the spacious lawns of the Minear home, with the wedding group centered in a beautiful floral arbor, while the wedding march was played by Miss Genevieve Brown.

A reception was held immediately following the wedding, with Mrs. F. H. Minear, Mrs. J. E. Judy, Miss Helen Judy, and Miss Lininger of Ashland, serving punch and the wedding cake which was cut by the bride.

The Rev. James E. Morgan of Ashland, officiated at the ring ceremony. Miss Irene Judy, as sister of the bride was bridesmaid, and Adrian Fraley, a brother of Norman Fraley was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Fraley left immediately to spend a week at the coast and returned to Medford to spend the summer.

● Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lockhart returned to their home in Ashland last week-end from a vacation trip lasting over two weeks, during which time they visited in California, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, and other states. Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart also spent some time in Tia Juana and Agua Caliente, Mexico.

● Mrs. J. W. Moore returned to her home here on Sunday from a several days enjoyable visit in San Francisco.

● Miss Mardel Alexander of Hollywood, Calif., is spending this week in Ashland, demonstrating Colonial Dames cosmetics.

● Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wagner had as their guests for the week-end Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Parmenter and Donnie Barckley of Salem, who continued their trip on Sunday, going to Crescent City, and returning home along the coast.

● Mrs. Steve Zarka and Miss Lillian Hamilton spent the week-end in Grants Pass.
