My Neighbor Says:

Mice object to camphor. If it is put in places frequented by them it will drive them away completely.

For cleansing baby's nursing bottles nothing equals potatoes cut in small dice and shaken with a little water in the bottle.

Waffle sandwiches are good for Sunday tea. Put two hot waffles together with butter, honey and one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon.

A delicious frosting for cake is made by adding maple sirup to confectioner's sugar, until it is of the right consistency to spread on cake.

The intestine on the back of the tail of a lobster should always be removed. The whole lobster is good to eat except the shell and craw, or stomach, which lies between the eyes.

Baked peaches and pears are delicious. Peel fresh fruit, sprinkle with lemon juice and sugar and bake in moderately slow oven until tender. Fruits prepared this way can be served with meats or as dessert.

Musical Notes

By LAWRENCE HUBERT

● The Ashland Orchestral society will make its debut to the public at the concert to be given by the Music Study club, Monday, November 16. Radio programs have been held in abeyance in order to give Ashland the first opportunity to hear this local group perform. This is sort of a benefit for the Music Study club and by attending you will not only help pay the rent but the best talent available will attempt to send you home and to bed with the strains of sweet music in your ears.

● James Potter, young guitarist, carries his music book under his shirt. He claims that numbers such as "Hed Hot Henry Brown" keep him warm in the winter and during the hot spells "Finlandia" does a perfect refrigerating job—I wonder!

● Robert Lewis Smith says that he has invented a gadget that makes chords easier on a guitar. He has sent it into the patent office. Another musical Edison!

● Favorite tunes: Charles Tonner likes "Robins and Roses" but Yvonne Shepherd is a push over for "Did I Remember." William DeNoyer goes for any music from the "Messiah" when played on a pipe organ. Jean Claycomb favors "Star Dust." The writer goes the same as Jean in the popular category but the "Song of India" and any Hungarian or gypsy air takes me places.

● The wood-wind and brass sections of the Orchestral society, which includes Mrs. Bertha Denton, Marcus Woods, Howard Mayberry and Dewey Van Curler, finally bucked over the traces and refused to play with my low-pitched piano. After a secret session the whole orchestra decided to get the piano tuned. Now if they would just decide that they don't like the slab wood I burn and bring me a load of oak everything will be O. K.

● C. H. Thomas, french horn player, is one of the most persistent walkers I know of. Most any nice day means a round of the high drive through the park. This sort of puts him in the celebrity class because most of the Hollywood stars are great walkers, especially Warner Baxter and Greta Garbo who like nothing better than to be alone in the hills with the good old knee and ankle for locomotion.

● Now that the election is over Bill Grenbrenner has sent in an order for a larger and louder bass drum. The Kilty band will undoubtedly need to add at least four more bagpipes to maintain the balance. The above information came from "Chick" Farlow who also plays a drum in the Kilty band and who is at present working on a system of subterfuge and chicanery which is designed to muffle Bill's drum and slow down his beat enough to let the good Republicans keep up with the roaring boom man of Roosevelt and the Kilty.

● The Walt Queens played a program for the Normal school last Wednesday morning that almost refused to jell. Some of the girls forgot their music racks, some were late and—woe unto me—the leader forgot the music. These things happen and although it is kind of hard on the constitution it is good experience. I guess it was too early in the morning. I never knew a good musician who could put up his best job in the forenoon. Anyway, the girls still have a perfectly good program laying on the shelf all rehearsed and ready to be played for the asking.

● Ward Croft officially opened the winter season by leading the "Pep Band" at the last football game in his overcoat. This serves a double purpose—warmth and also a hiding place for some of those high notes he has been keeping up his sleeve.

● The expression "The doleful dumps" comes from the fact that in early English music there was a very mournful sort of composition known as a "dump."

● The general public has always had a pet belief that dance musicians were not of the calibre of symphony men or other musicians on the higher class musical jobs. This belief started in the smaller towns where musicians were scarce and where anyone who could toot a horn played dance work regardless of whether he could read music or not. This type of music became and still is so obnoxious that the storm of criticism swept away the fact that good dance orchestras have as high a rating as any other type of orchestra. Herb Weldoff's dance orchestra was recruited almost entirely from the Los Angeles symphony. Paul Whiteman's men could all handle the best of symphonic music and believe it or not, the musical scores for the movies you hear are all handled by the same orchestra. Each studio has its staff orchestra and whether the music is for a spectacular picture like "Cleopatra" where the music was of the very highest class or some slap-stick comedy full of jazz—the same men performed it. I don't mean that any dance musician can do this but good ones can and they are the only kind you hear on your high class dance programs.

● Coda: The whistling milk man found the following note when he delivered milk to a customer's home the other morning:

"Dear Sir: The milk is fine, but do you mind altering your whistling program? Instead of 'Minnie the Moocher' seven mornings a week suppose you give us 'Berceuse' from Jacyln Sunday and Wednesday, Schumann's 'Slumber Song' Monday and Friday, 'Sweet and Low' Tuesday, 'Cradle Song' on Thursday and of course 'Minnie' every Saturday."

● Mr. and Mrs. Walter Longstreth returned Sunday from Long Beach where they were called by the death of Mr. Longstreth's mother.
