Milady's Aid by FRAN

SUNLIGHT, shadows, a perceptible change in atmosphere tell us unerringly that at last summer has come to us. Almost simultaneously, we find in the shops a new adaptation of an old material, as gay and delightful as the change in weather. It is our old friend pique, long a favorite because it launders so beautifully, all decked out in gorgeous colors in huge designs—some single figures as high as eight inches. The one we liked best had a lagoon blue background against which the graceful white sails of racing sloops stood out in startling detail, while their slim green hulls made pleasing contrast. What made it really interesting was that these strings of sloops were arranged in semi-circles, this way and that way, and ranged, per string, from eight-inch sails down to cunning two-inch ones. That is just one of the many designs in this grand mid-summer material.

If you want to startle people into noticing you, why don't you make your first appearance at the plunges in one of those shimmering satiny swim suits. The material has an indefinite pattern, reminiscent of fish scales. The general effect? Sleek! (Don't try it if you are much over or under weight.)

Flowers, fresh flowers, are beautiful right now. WHY NOT wear a bracelet of them—on each wrist—to your next dress-up afternoon or evening party. The trick is to tack the flowers (small, dainty ones that will lie flat are best) to a strip of cotton material which will fit smoothly around your wrists, as wide or as narrow as you wish. Tack the blooms close together with plenty of greenery, and pop them into the refrigerator until you are ready to go. They may be fastened on with hooks and eyes, or simply tiny safety pins. You'll find that during their stay in the refrigerator the band will absorb enough moisture to keep the flowers fresh a long time, but not so much as to make the bracelets clammy to the touch.

And here's a suggestion, just in case it gets hot all of a sudden and you begin to feel that looking fresh and cool is an impossibility. It's never too hot to look cool. 1. If you wear dresses of cotton or silk in cool colors. 2. If you pay especial attention to the pressing of them. 3. If you're careful not to wear too white or too brown a powder (and not too much of it at that).

Disgruntled Young Man: How long is a chap supposed to wait for a girl when he has made a definite date for a definite time? I have sat from 10 to 40 minutes. I wonder if arriving late would help.

Ettie Quette: A smart girl will time things so that she appears to have stepped out of a band box just as you rang. Not that ready-for-hours-waiting look. The 20-minute-late-dramatic-entrance is quite lost on a young man who has to spend that time listening to politics or weather or other small talk. On the other hand, my boy, be sure that you arrive not a dot too early. Even a smart girl can't be expected to cope with the situation if you arrive minutes before you said you would.

Position Agriculture Improved Over 1936

Despite some decline in the general farm price level during the past few weeks, without a corresponding decrease in farm costs, the statistical position of agriculture as indicated by the indexes is much better than a year ago. That is the situation, according to the June farm outlook report of the OSC agricultural extension service, which gives the purchasing power of farm products in the country as a whole in May, 1937, at 96 per cent of the pre-war average—one point less than a month previous, but 11 points above May, 1936.

The general Oregon farm price index for May is given at 92 per cent of the 1926-30 average, down one point from April, with market prices indicating some further decline since mid-May. The relative position of principal farm products at mid-May was reported as 57 for eggs, butterfat 75, hogs 90, lamb 93, wool 111, beef cattle 89, wheat 95, oats 97, barley 121, hay 88, potatoes 121, hops 176, apples 132 and dried prunes 63.

New crop prospects as well as current demand conditions now are influencing the trend of farm prices, the circular points out, as is usual at this season of the year. With respect to crop production prospects, the outlook for yields is better than a few weeks ago, as growing conditions have been more favorable. Except in the great plains area where the effects of the 1936 drought are still evident, the general crop production outlook now appears nearly up to average in the United States as a whole.

Gas Concern Stages Range, Heater Sale

Launching an interesting and unusual merchandising campaign, the gas company has announced a new combination sale of gas ranges and water heaters.

According to D. E. York, general manager, the object of the campaign is to bring the benefits of modern gas appliances to more homes at a cost and on terms that every family can afford. To this end, the cost of delivery and connection is included in the attractive contract covering both appliances. Moreover, it is pointed out, the use of gas for both cooking and water heating entitles the customer to the minimum combination rate—a dual saving.

A new-type cabinet gas range has been selected for the sale. A marvel of design, it includes in one compact unit four top burners, a large oven and a broiler. The water heater is of the automatic storage type, self-operated and requiring no lighting or attention.
