AHS 11 CLOSES YEAR WITH 14-13 UNIVERSITY WIN

ASHLAND high school pushed over one touchdown in the first quarter and another in the last. University high school trailed once in the third and again in the fourth, but both of Steve Fowler's placekicks were good for additional points while Halfback Sargent's trusty toe failed him in one attempt which spelled the difference in score last Friday afternoon when Coach Skeet O'Connell's Grizzlies played a spotty last game of the 1937 season against the purple-clad gridmen from Eugene and barely eked out a win, 14-13.

Playing before a small crowd on a windy and rain-swept field, the two teams fought on nearly even terms throughout the contest with first one and then the other clicking on offensive drives. Some swell passes from Fowler to the very efficient Joe Jessel did much to spark the Ashland eleven and Charlie Warren, 1936 all-conference quarterback, turned in his finest performance of this season. Combined with Bob Gregory's spectacular blocking and Furman Carter's line-plunging, those boys helped the Grizzlies keep ahead of brilliant work by backfieldmen Stone, Sargent and Perin of the University team and an annoying habit of sifting into the Ashland backfield which was shown by Richardson, smart Eugene right end. Ashland made eight first downs to nine for their opponents.

The local boys scored first after Jessel had received a pass from Fowler on the University 38-yard line. Fowler picked up a first down on the 32. Carter made two short gains, one of Fowler's passes went astray and then the next was taken on the 13-yard line by Warren who skittered across the goal line standing up with Gregory knocking would-be tacklers galley-west. Fowler's place kick barely was good for the extra point.

Ashland's next offensive spurge bogged down only a foot from the goal line later in the same session and UHS took the ball on downs just in time to hear the half-time gun which relieved them from an awkward spot which was too crowded with their own goal posts for comfort.

Halfback Sargent, whose kicking was one of the game's features, started the UHS touchdown drive in the third period when he took a ball fumbled by Warren and made several yards before hitting the ground. Perin picked up a first down and then another on the Ashland 18. Two no-gain plays followed before Perin waffled a sweet pass to Richardson for first down on the Ashland three-yard line. Quarterback Emmons hit a solid mass of Grizzlies on one play but Stone, shifty and capable fullback, plunged through for six points which were followed by Sargent's pole-splitting conversion which tied the game. After the next kickoff, which Ashland received, the Grizzlies drove steadily to a first down on the University 43 as the quarter ended.

Changing sides hampered the local lads not at all and Fowler set to work with a long pass to Warren who made it first and 10 on the University 22. One short gain was made by Fowler before Warren sneaked away and, just as he was hit, lashed out a perfectly timed lateral to Carter who carried it across for the touchdown. Again Fowler's kick was good.

Sargent took Scheidreiter's kickoff back from his own 17 to the 31 and the parade was on as the Willamette valley boys moved steadily up the field and with eight line plays and two completed forward passes made the score 14 to 13, only to see the tying point blown under the bar as Sargent's kick caught the high wind.

Ken Harris was sent into the game in Carter's place and only the final gun tripped up a last Red-and-White journey to the end zone as Ashland made a steady 50-yard march to the University high 30-yard marker in the closing minutes of play.

Starters for Ashland in the 1937 wind-up game were Jessel and Stewart, ends; Bell and Newbry, tackles; Brady and Schilling, guards; Scheidreiter, center; Warren, quarter; Carter and Gregory, halfbacks, and Fowler, fullback; Weaver, Harris and Gettling were substitutes.

Wyatt Padgett, who spent Thanksgiving day at the home of his sister, Mrs. May Davis, left for Klamath Falls Thursday night planning to return to Ashland today or tomorrow to spend the rest of the week-end here.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Ausland left Thursday morning for Klamath Falls where they visited with Mrs. Ausland's parents.

D. Virginia Hales, dean of women at SONS, left Wednesday to spend Thanksgiving in the northern part of the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Poley and Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hartley went to Redding early Thursday morning to spend the week-end with friends and relatives.
