SCIENCE TALK FILLS VARSITY

Robert Stanley Ross, CSB, of New York City, Thursday night delivered a talk, "Christian Science: Its Unlimited Possibilities," before a large audience in the Varsity theater. The speaker, member of the board of lecture-ship of the Mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, came here under the auspices of the First church of Christ, Scientist, of Ashland.

Ross spoke substantially as follows:

No doubt, all professing Christians believe that, if they had lived in the days of Jesus, they would have unhesitatingly embraced His teaching and become His followers. To have seen Him heal leprosy, blindness, insanity, deafness, epilepsy and raise the dead would—we now confidently say—have convinced everyone. But did it convince everyone in those days? It should have done so; but instead of joyfully accepting the healings as unquestionable proofs of divine power, some of those who were witnesses became enraged, declared the healings were the work of the devil, and hastened to report Jesus to the authorities at Jerusalem. The latter, in turn, sought to put him to death, lest all the people should follow him. To defend their theological beliefs, even to the extent of shedding innocent blood, seemed to be more important than to learn the practicable truth about God and man.

Love Blesses All

This reminds me of an incident that occurred a year or two ago. One of my neighbors, upon finding a nest full of motherless birdlings, sought to feed them; but whenever his loving hand would draw near enough to the nest, the open mouths would instinctively close. When he tried leaving food on the edge of the nest, they would not touch it. Had not my neighbor been thoughtful enough to put the birdlings into an already well filled nest where they were fed by the mother of another brood, those birdlings would have died of starvation.

I have related this incident in the hope that it will help to illustrate why everyone did not accept Jesus as the true representative of God. They dearly longed, even prayed, for the promised Messiah who, they believed, would come in a particular, predetermined, humanly-outlined way. But because He came quite differently; because He came meekly illustrating the power of impartial, divine love to free the people from mental bondage to sin, disease and death, instead of a warlike monarch who would free the nation from political bondage to Rome, they misunderstood His loving mission and rejected the blessings He came to bestow upon them.

It is this same mental attitude which today prevents some persons, even when in great need, from accepting the helping hand of Christian Science, notwithstanding the proofs of healing which it presents. Their preconceived notions about the manner of Christ's reappearing would seem still to be more important than the supplying of their human needs. Though spiritually famished, they would starve rather than accept, from the hand of a stranger, the absolute truth that comforts and heals and saves.

Now, my friends, who among you wants to shut out helpfulness? Who wants to permit his fears, his doubts, and his suspicions to rob him of the limitless
