

Lincoln Intermediates Present Puppet Show At Varsity Theater

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will be shown in a puppet show by the children of the intermediate department of the Lincoln school Friday, May 20, at the Varsity theater. A matinee performance will be given for school children in the afternoon, between showings of the regular feature at the Varsity, and another performance for adults will be presented in the evening.

The school children have constructed the puppets, properties and scenery under the direction of Miss Lucille Burtis of the Normal school art department. The children will operate the puppets during the performances.

Student teachers from the Normal school who have assisted are Ellen Watson, Ardoth Blair, Genevieve Thayer, Anita Cooke and Mae Harris with the puppets; Harry Meyers with the properties and controls; Helen Kaiser with the music. In addition members of the art club have helped with the construction of the stage.

Remember?

The local 1938 commencement makes us old timers recall the days when we were young . . . and when we proudly participated in high school graduation ceremonies. Photos posed by NBC artists.

Remember the sweet young thing who read the Class Will, who bequeathed your gum-chewing technique to little Johnny Jones of the freshman class? Miss Betty Winkler impersonates her here.

Then came the class proprietor who predicted that 20 years hence you'd be a famous explorer . . . or something. Betty Caine, dressed like yesterday's graduate, shows how the prophet looked as she glanced into the dim future and made her awesome prognostications.

Frances Allison impersonates the valedictorian. Remember? She was the brightest girl in the class.

Then came the commencement speaker (played by Bill Thompson) who challenged you to face the world. Serious, purposeful, he might have been a rising young lawyer or a professor of economics from the university.

THE SECRET'S OUT AGAIN!

MEDFORD'S hooded mystery wrestler, The Secret, pictured above, is still anonymous, and he will match grips in the top main event Monday night at the Medford arena with Red Lyons, the Joplin Ghost. Second up on the card will be Floyd Britt and Bobby Chick, and opening the program will be Lefty Paecer, Indiana athlete, meeting Tony Garibaldi. Opening gong will sound at 8:30 p. m.

MIGRATION UPS COUNTY CENSUS BUSY POLLS ARE FORECAST HERE

Residents from other sections of the United States, many attracted by accounts of Oregon as an attractive place in which to live and work, and others driven westward by economic forces, have added an estimated total gain of 2850 people to the population of Jackson county from 1930 to Jan. 1, 1937, according to a report, "Migration Into Oregon, 1930-37," recently prepared by the state planning board. This net gain is the estimated difference between persons coming into the county and those moving out.

Natural increase, or excess of births over deaths, amounted to 750 persons during these seven years, making an estimated total population for the county on Jan. 1, 1937, of 36,903. This increase of 10.8 per cent of the 1930 population compared with an increase of 61.4 per cent during the decade 1920-1930.

All types of workers are included in the list of occupations of these newcomers, with craftsmen and physical laborers leading. The majority of these immigrants are in the most active age range, 20-45 years. On the average more than 80 per cent were less than 45 years old at the time they migrated into Oregon.

The report, the first of its kind ever prepared in the United States, obtained its data by scientific means from school census, state unemployment service records and other sources. It depicts in a striking way the problems confronting the state in caring for these newcomers, and the figures show that the situation is one of concern for Jackson county.

The recent unemployment census showed that Oregon ranks high among the states in per cent of unemployed. Without enlarged opportunities, the report points out, continuing immigration may create serious economic and social difficulties, but through the active cooperation of local, state and federal agencies in aiding the essential basic developments of Ore-

HARRY HURST TO REOPEN LITHIA

Ashland's pioneer theater, the Lithia, will reopen at 7 p. m. Saturday, May 21, with Owner Harry B. Hurst managing. With the new film buying season at hand and top quality features available, Hurst has secured a schedule of first-run features and shorts which, he said last night, will be outstanding entertainment.

The theater had been temporarily dark since Eddie Lewis, previous manager, had surrendered his lease. Workmen have been busy this week renovating the house and making minor improvements.

Fred Cushing, former operator for Hurst, will be in charge of projection, and Mrs. Hurst will assist her husband in the theater's management.

Opening program, which will run through Tuesday, May 24, will bring a double feature program to the Lithia screen including "Born to Gamble," a story of love's sacrifice at the altar, with a cast of many favorites including Onslow Stevens, H. B. Warner, Maxine Doyle, Eric Linden, Lois Wilson, William Janney and Ben Alexander. The companion picture features Bob Custer in "Santa Fe Rides Again," a gun-totin' yarn of whoopee days in the old west. A news reel will complete the program.

FINAL WEEKS TO BE BUSY ONES AT SONS

Commencement activities for the graduating class of the Southern Oregon State Normal school have been arranged to include a senior sport dance Friday evening, May 27; baccalaureate services Sunday afternoon, May 29; alumni luncheon Wednesday noon, June 1; commencement exercises Wednesday, June 1, and a tea for seniors and their parents immediately following the commencement exercises.

Irving E. Vining, former professor of the old normal school at Ashland, will deliver the commencement address. The baccalaureate sermon will be given by Dr. Sydney W. Hall, district superintendent of the Cascade district of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Graduates of the June class and those of the March and December classes as well will receive their diplomas at commencement. Students expecting to graduate in July and August of 1938 also will take part in the exercises.
