

HINDSIGHT ON SPORTS

By I TOLD YOU SO

IT is with regret that we bid adios to Ashland's football season after that Thanksgiving game with Medford. For this department, at least, the final minutes of that fray were the biggest athletic thrill of the year.

Now we can forget the game for the time being with the hope that next year we'll have more material and enough jerseys for AHS stalwarts. Ashland's Grizzlies turned out to be wolves in cheap clothing... if you get what we mean, and you must have if you were among those local fans blushing present when the usual skin-the-cat exchange of jerseys took place before a record crowd.

We see where Billy Hulen has called on the coaches and daily sportswriters of the southern Oregon district to pick an all-star galaxy of gridiron greats from the high school loop. As was the case last year, The Miner is left outside looking in, which is oke with us. (Daily papers are hanging together lest they hang separately.)

Just for that we won't let Hulen see the movies this department took of the walloping handed Medford by the Ashland eleven last week. The picture doesn't show the final score, and an unbiased viewer would swear that the Black Tornado was filmed with slow motion while taking its beating.

This column was unable to avoid paying off on every single bet placed on the inter-city feud, even Hulen (the fat capitalist) collecting a buck. But we were glad to back the home town lads to the limit, win or lose, and we don't regret a single penny of the $2 squandered so recklessly.

Hulen, during an orgy of gloating, waxed loquacious the other day and demanded the Christian moniker of I Told You So. Well, Willie, we'll play you a game of trade-last. Who's this guy I. Pickem who don't?

Arkansas Scufflers Arrive for Battles In Medford Arena

Three nationally famous wrestlers, the Jones brothers, commonly known as the Arkansas Scufflers, arrive in Medford this week to appear on Promoter Mack Lillard's weekly card at the Medford armory. These lads are bewhiskered hillbillies with plenty of flash and color and fans are guaranteed plenty of excitement during the evening.

Frankie Schroll meets Tuffy Jones in the top spot of the card. He weighs around 195 pounds, and according to advance dope is the cleverest of the trio; Cecil McGill tangles with Tony, heaviest of the trio. He tops the scales at 205 pounds, and Alvin Britt, the Kansas arm breaker specialist, will meet Mike, 185, in the opener.

Ladies night will also feature this all-star card.

Bruce Brahs, Don Lundy of the Applegate district, with Don Callahan of Ashland, made a trip to Klamath Falls on business Tuesday.
