National Defense Alibi

With the administration sponsoring a gigantic national defense program, members of congress are attempting (with more or less success) to have their pet measures enacted on the theory that said measures are vital to the defense of the United States against aggressor nations. Bunk instances: Proposal to build a tunnel under Chesapeake Bay (it would cost millions) would aid national defense: a canal across Florida, leaving the lower end of that state an island; a few million for grasshopper control-to save the forage which is necessary in war; an interlocking network of power lines the other; wider and heavier roads which can stand up under the pounding of mobile anti-aircraft equipment and mobile big guns; bonus for airplane manufacturers; more and better landing fields maintained by the federal government, and so forth and so on. There is supposed to be magic in the appeal "for national defense.

Approximately 92,000 government workers have the jitters. This is the estimated number of men and women on the federal payroll who are affected by President Roosevelt's "reorganization plan, No. 1." About 85,000 of these employees are in the field, which means that they are not employed in Washington, D. C. Thousands have civil service status, but that does not prevent them from losing their jobs. It does, however, give them a priority if there is a chance to hook on to another government position. Government jobs sound imposing, but the average pay is around $1200 a year and an employe may remain at that figure as long as he or she continues in the service. And, if you believe all you hear, promotion is a matter of favoritism and not merit. A senatorial committee recently was told that a plain girl is generally passed over for one who knows more about cosmetics than dictation, typing or filing. Of course, there political pull within the civil service-always has been.

White House

Lady Eleanor not infrequently holds three teas or receptions at the White House in an afternoon. One group of women scarcely leaves before the next batch arrives and the third crowd is mov-ing toward 1600 Pennsylvania avenue in taxicabs before the second company makes an exit. Mrs. Roosevelt, on these occasions, merely appears for a few minutes, smiles, bows, and says a few remarks and leaves. A peculiar gift of the president is that he can discuss local affairs (particularly political), of any part of the country with all the authority of a native. In public the secret ser-

'Oklahoma Kid' Will Bring Action, Thrills To Varsity Sunday

"The Oklahoma Kid," with James Cagney in the title role, is the surging drama of an empire in creation, a rousing melodrama of the open spaces laid in the homesteaders were days when erasing the last frontier in the United States.

It is a semi-historic tale of the great land rush and other events which followed the opening up of from one end of the country to Oklahoma territory to settlement in 1893. Humphrey Bogart, Rosemary Lane and Donald Crisp are in the supporting cast which will start a three-day run at the Varsity theater Sunday.

> vice men guarding the president never look at him-they watch the crowds, which is a different system from that in vogue in other countries. The one man who can boss the president is the head of the secret service detail attached to the president. Housekeeper of the White House must keep track of every broken dish and all silverware, these articles being the property not of the presidential family, but of the United States. Favorite dishes of the Roosevelts: hot dogs and scrambled eggs.

Gold Hill Marine To Get Second Crack A Weed Wop Monday

Sgt. Bob Kennaston of Gold Hill, world's junior heavyweight wrestling champion, gets another chance for sweet revenge at Medford armory next Monday night, May 8, when he takes on Pete Belcastro, the mad Italian of Weed, Calif., in the top main event of Mack Lillard's weekly mat program. Kennaston lost no time in trouncing Joe Smolinski two straight falls last week to get even for beatings at the hands of Smolinski earlier in the champion's career and the Gold Hill oride and joy will have the same thought in mind when he goes to the post against Belcastro.

Kennaston showed himself a much improved performer last Monday in presenting a new hold which he named the "Gold Hill swivel." It consists of taking the opponent's lower part of the face in one brawny arm and locking it with the other in the form of a headlock, then swinging it for dear life. It usually results in the victim yelling "uncle" long and
