Friday evening at 7:30 the Lincoln P-TA had a hobby show. Some of the hobbies brought by the children were marble collections, match covers, dolls, racks, different kinds of money, model airplanes, glass figures and salt and pepper shakers. Many people came to see it.

On Friday the children in the upstairs rooms went to hear a talk on the junior Red Cross by Miss Carter. It was very interesting. Monday, March 24, Miss Vera Humphreys came over from Medford and showed us an interesting collection of things which children in other parts of the world who belong to the junior Red Cross had sent to the American Junior Red Cross members.

The sixth grade visited the public library Friday, March 20. They took back the books they already had read and brought back different ones. Miss Mason, librarian, helped them choose books by showing them interesting ones. A lot of the pupils took out copies of Arabian Nights.

Room seven made murals of the industries and means of transportation in the United States. It is about three feet high and made with colored chalk. It was shelacked and hung above our blackboard. It is very colorful and makes our room very attractive.

On March 25, room 6 went to the high school to see a moving picture on wheat farming. It showed where the farmer plowed his ground and used a drill to plant the grain. The grain grew well and was harvested with a combine. The farmer had a good crop that was taken to the grain elevator.

Monday, March 24, room six elected new room officers. The president is Harry Kannasto; vice president, Lorraine Hooenpyle, and secretary, Ronald Nance. They appointed new room monitors.

The fourth grade of Lincoln school has new student teachers. Their names are Muriel Samuelson, Betty Dano, Lillian Bair, Helen Hough and Warren H. Foster. Miss Samuelson will teach arithmetic and art; Miss Dano will teach physical education; Miss Bair will teach science and health; Miss Hough social studies and Mr. Foster, reading. The children are very glad that they have come.

The fourth grade of Lincoln school had a violin program Wednesday, March 9. The pupils that played were Venita Roberson, Mary Jane Coleman, Ellen Swingle and Barbara Lee Dotson. The children played "Reuben and Rachel," "Little Waltz in G," "Fido and His Master" and other selections.

Patricia Sollee took Croaky, the second grade's pet toad, home last week-end. He got away. She cannot find him.
