MUSIC UNITS LISTED FOR 4TH

At least four outstanding musical units will be included in the local Fourth of July parade this year.

Invitations have been extended to the Yreka American Legion Drum and Bugle corps to participate, with acceptance practically assured. The local kiltie band has announced that it will be on hand, also a musical unit from the Silver Moon; a "German Brass Band" composed of musical students from the high school, and the Ashland City band.

Line of march for the parade, which is slated to start at 10:30 a. m., will be south on Main street from Helman, to the Junior high school intersection and then north again on Main street to Water street where the units may disband.

Three divisions will be set up, comprising the floats, children's and horses. Judges' stand will be on the porch of the Ashland hotel. Judges already have been selected and notified.

CITY'S STORES TO CLOSE 4TH

Majority of Ashland's business houses have signified intention of closing on July 4, to open as usual Saturday morning.

Practically all of the clothing stores, hardware stores, groceries, and professional offices will be closed.

The local chamber of commerce offices will be kept open all day to provide information and other data to guests and visitors. A general information booth is to be set up on the Plaza early next week for tickets, information and data.

A dual loud speaker system has been provided by the Fluhrer Bakeries for the day and will be located at the Plaza booth.

"DARBY" HOUR MOVED UP PEG

The youngsters' soapbox derby, first major event on the 1941 July Fourth celebration program, has been re-scheduled for 9 a. m. the morning of the 4th instead of 9:30 a. m., it was announced Thursday.

The race will be run on Pioneer street between the Shakespearean theater and the armory. Police officers will block off the side streets in ample time, it was indicated.

First prize will be a trip to Portland for the winner and his car, for competition in the north-west regional finals. Cash prizes will be awarded to second, third and fourth place winners.

There is still time for youngsters to participate in this event. Registration, rules and regulations may be secured at the Selby Chevrolet company, sponsoring the event.

Lessons in Flag Etiquette Supplied By Veterans of Foreign Wars

• Bunting should be used for platforms or for the decoration of speakers' stands and for general decorations. The blue stripes should always be placed uppermost and the red at the bottom.

• On patriotic occasions, the flag may be displayed above and behind the speaker against a wall or curtain. If flown from a staff, it should be placed at the speaker's right.

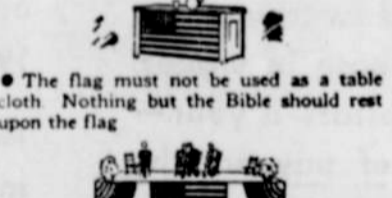

• In church, the flag should be placed at the congregation's right. Other flags should be placed to the left of the congregation. In the chancel, or on a platform, the flag should be placed at the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation, and the other flags at his left.

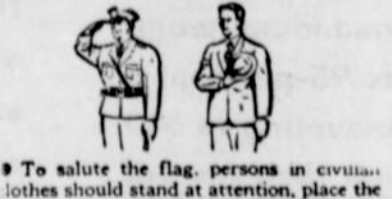

• When one halyard is used for two or more flags, the American flag should always be flown at the peak. In displaying flags on adjacent staffs the American flag should be hoisted first and lowered last.

• When the American flag is displayed with another flag with staffs crossed, the American flag should be on the right, with the staff over the staff of the other flag.

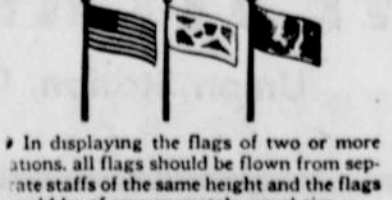

• The flag must not be used as a table cloth. Nothing but the Bible should rest upon the flag.

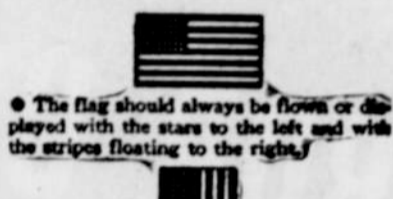

• The flag should never be used to decorate platforms or stands, or draped in any fashion for decorating purposes.

• To salute the flag, persons in civilian clothes should stand at attention, place the right hand over the left breast. Persons attired in military uniform should execute the right hand salute.

• No other flag should be hoisted above the American flag except a church pennant, which can be flown from the masthead above the Stars and Stripes when religious services are in progress in a military chapel or aboard a U. S. Navy ship.

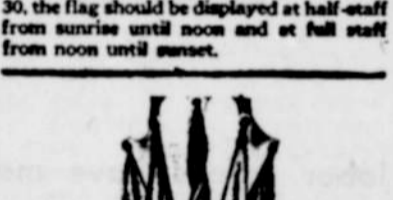

• The flag should always be flown or displayed with the stars to the left and with the stripes floating to the right.

• When hanging with the stripes in a vertical position, the stars should always appear in upper left hand corner.

• On parade the American flag always claims the place of honor—at the right.

• When flown at half-staff the flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position. Before lowering the flag it should be raised again to the peak. On Memorial Day, May 30, the flag should be displayed at half-staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset.

• When displayed with a group of other flags, the American flag should be at the center or at the highest point of the group.

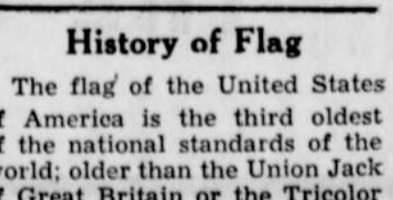

• When displayed on a staff projecting from a building, the field of blue should go clear to the peak of the staff unless the flag is being flown at half-staff.

• Never display the American flag with the union down except as a signal of distress.

• When displayed over a street between two buildings, the American flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street, or to the east in a north and south street.

• When used in connection with the unveiling of a statue or monument, the flag should be prominently featured but should never be used as a covering for a statue.

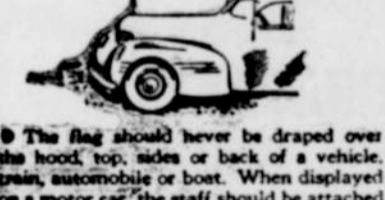

• Never let the American flag touch the ground or the floor, or wall in the water.

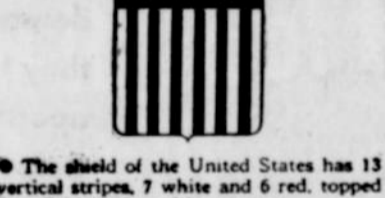

• Make sure the flag never touches the ground when placed in a fixed position such as green.

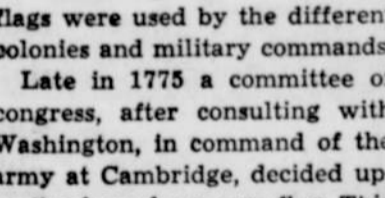

• When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the stars are at the head in the upper right hand corner (over the heart) looking from the foot. The flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground.

• The flag should never be draped over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, train, automobile or boat. When displayed on a motor car, the staff should be attached firmly to the chassis or clamped to the fender cap.

• The shield of the United States has 13 vertical stripes, 7 white and 6 red, topped by a field of blue without stars.

During the early days of the Revolutionary war a variety of flags were used by the different colonies and military commands.

Late in 1775 a committee of congress, after consulting with Washington, in command of the army at Cambridge, decided upon the form for a new flag. This flag consisted of 13 stripes, red and white, with the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew on a blue field in the canton or union.

The flag was first unfurled by Washington, January 2, 1776.

During 1776 and 1777 a number of flags with 13 stripes came into use and the need of a definite national emblem was realized. On June 14, 1777, congress passed an act stating "that the flag of the 13 United States shall be 13 stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." This was the birthday of the flag as we now know it and June 14 is now celebrated as "Flag Day."

In April, 1818, congress passed an act providing that the flag should have 13 horizontal stripes, alternate red and white, and that the union should display 20 stars, representing the number of states then in the Union. It also provided that on the admission of every new state to the Union a star should be added on the following July 4th, and this has been the regulation ever since, accounting now for the 48 stars shown.

History of Flag

The flag of the United States of America is the third oldest of the national standards of the world; older than the Union Jack of Great Britain or the Tricolor of France.

SUMMER BOWLING LEAGUE SUGGESTED

The Ashland bowling alleys report that 13 have signed up for a proposed summer league, but that plans still are uncertain concerning definite organization of such a league.

High scorers last week were Mark Smith with a 227 for the men and Arlene Wooldridge with 139 for the ladies. Tons so far this week are Bill Allen 230 and Mern Provost 135.
